Mont Blanc Is Advertised Light of the Mind—Not Much for $1,250,000 Living Without Religion

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

FRANCIS H. SISSON, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Co., repeats, what has often been said here, that the big problem is not production but distribution.

Business is on the upgrade. Mr. Sisson does not agree with that distinguished political economist, Solly Wetheim, who says "business is looking up, flat on its back, looking up."

Mr. Sisson reminds merchants that with adequate advertising goods can be sold at a lower price than without advertising.

First, have what the people want, then let them know you have it.

Consider Mont Blanc, nice mountain in Switzerland.

One million and eighty thousand people visited Mont Blanc last year, spending more than $10,000,000 in little communities near the mountain. Only 100 climbed to the top.

We have bigger, better mountains, but they don't get the advertising that Mont Blanc gets, and they don't take in the money.

It is true that established reputation helps Mont Blanc. It is also true that advertising helps to establish reputations, and keep them established.

There is no better work than distributing good books. They are the light of the mind, stimulate ambition, develop good taste, prepare men's mind for services in the present by making them acquainted with the achievements, discoveries and services of the past.

Maj. George H. Putnam, veteran of the Civil War, and a most distinguished veteran of the book publishing profession, now dead at 85 years of age, represents public service in a high degree.

Department of Justice agents believe recent radical demonstrations in American cities were financed with $1,250,000 from Russia.

It is said the "Third International" plans a world-wide Communist demonstration for March 6.

It may be, but the Russians sent $1,250,000 for a demonstration that, judging by what happened in New York City last Thursday, they got little for their money.

Paraders could not even start their parade. Several had their heads clubbed. One detective was slightly injured. One lady announced her intention of wiping out the capital class soon.

A good American organizer could get the Russians a good deal more for less than $1,250,000.

Can a country live without religion, churches, clergy?

Russia thinks it can. Weddings, funerals, baptisms continue there. And Walter Duranty says the people do not seem much grieved.

One religious Russian mother, whose daughter was married in a hall a minute in the Soviet marriage bureau, bemoaned the absence of religious ceremonies until her son-in-law reminded her that a religious wedding cost $15, a Soviet wedding only 30 cents. She invested the difference in food and vodka. The mother cheered up.

Arabs and Jews in Palestine forget their quarrel to join in fighting locusts. Whole villages are mobilized, flame throwers attack endless millions of eggs and the adult insects.

If young locusts, soon to be born on 250,000 acres near the Egyptian border, are allowed to grow and start their hungry march, everything green in Palestine and Trans-Jordania will be ruined.

Earlier it would have been suggested that the locusts came to punish the Arabs for killing Jews. It would, however, be a little difficult to explain why locusts eat Jewish and Arab crops indiscriminately.

New York's police force includes a "Radical squad," selected to deal with rebellious radicals.

Planning that squad in days of extraordinary prosperity, somebody was looking far ahead.

As a rule, prosperity is more effective than poison gas in dealing with radicalism.

In the clash between unemployed radicals and police in New York, the photographs show women struggling and fighting more violently than men. Nothing surprising in this. When women believe anything, they believe it more violently than men, and when they believe nothing is important compared with their belief, and they

Award Girl $45,000 for an Injured Leg

New York, March 1—The lost beauty of a shapely leg from which stylish chiffon stockings are forever barred by an ugly jagged scar on the calf is worth just $45,000 to its charming owner. Palpitating jurymen who had been called upon to inspect closely the comely Miss Winifred Conahan's limb decided in less than an hour's deliberation that she was entitled to that much from Louis Sherry, Inc.

Miss Conahan had her leg severely gashed last October as she was passing Sherry's famous restaurant when a pane of plate glass fell out on the sidewalk.

SOVIETS CLOSE 81 CHURCHES, NEW RECORD

Atheist League Head Broadcasts Attack on Pope and Imprisoned Religionists

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Moscow, March 1—Eighty-one churches were closed this week in Russia, marking a new record in the anti-religious campaign throughout the Soviet. All were turned into grain elevators, flour mills, clubs and movies.

The Atheist League accepts responsibility for obtaining the closing of sixty of the churches, and the trade unions and city authorities say they closed twenty-one.

The Atheist League's president, M. Yaroslavsky, a member of the communist line workers' federation of anti-religious propaganda, but warning against indiscriminate church closings without sufficient preliminary educational propaganda, designed to allay the feelings of women who cling to religion more closely than men. He said:

"We must be cleverer than the Pope. We mustn't use the institution of bake-burning and the guillotine, like the Roman church. We must propagandize."

The ever-growing resentment of the hostility Christian churches abroad are showing towards the Soviet government is continuing to manifest itself in further derisive cartoons of the Pope and the archbishop of Canterbury and intensified anti-Christian propaganda.

Government officials continue.

RETAIL BOARD FIGHTS 'DEAD' PARKING BAN

Merchants Charge Proposed Traffic Order Is Backed by "Selfish" Interests

The suggestion of garage owners, taxicab companies and truckmen that "dead" parking of automobiles in downtown Boston be prohibited met with a storm of protest today.

One of the chief opponents of the plan, which was offered by Atty. Merrill Griswold for the Traffic Control Association, was Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the Boston Retail Trade Board.

"We are strongly opposed to the plan to prohibit 'dead' parking of automobiles in downtown Boston and Beacon Hill and will fight the proposal," he said.

"It is obvious what is behind the suggestion. Certain real estate and garage interests want to shift the retail business center of Boston. It is nothing more than a selfish move on their part and has nothing to do with civic betterment."

"The proposed plan is ill-considered and would work great hardship not only on the business houses of the section which pay substantial taxes, but on the general public. It is no solution of the traffic problem of the city.

"It would be far better for all business and civic groups to get behind Mayor Curley's original plan for a loop highway through downtown Boston, which plan is the best yet offered for traffic relief.

"The group which is proposing this change is the same group which fought Mayor Curley's plan."

Col. Thomas L. Sullivan, acting traffic commissioner, has set the tentative date of March 18 for a hearing on the suggested change, and in the meantime a survey of conditions will be made.

Atty. Griswold suggested that the parking of automobiles, other than taxicabs and trucks, unless occupied by operators should be prohibited in the territory within the loop created by Causeway st. and Atlantic ave., Kneeland, Stuart,

Taft Rallies, Speaks, First Time in 3 Days

Washington, March 1 (AP)—The condition of William Howard Taft was said by his physicians to have slightly improved this morning.

The 11:30 a. m. bulletin read:

"The condition of the former chief justice is slightly improved as evidenced by a moderate rise in his blood pressure which has been continually falling for the past three days."

The bulletin was signed by Drs. Francis R. Hagner and Thomas A. Claytor.

Dr. Hagner said that Mr. Taft spoke today for the first time in three days.

When Dr. Claytor knocked at the door of his room the former president said, "Come in."

Further, the physician said that Mr. Taft also recognized and spoke to Mrs. Taft and made words to his son, Robert A. Taft.

The physicians seemed surprised at the apparently slight rally of their patient.

The doctors have said, however, that any improvement in Mr. Taft's condition could be only temporary as they have abandoned hope for his recovery.

The first caller at the big Taft mansion on Wyoming ave. today was Vice-President Curtis, long a friend of the ill man. Mr. Curtis expressed his solicitude. Shortly after he left, Mgr. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, the apostolic delegate to the United States, visited the home.

FLAMES ROUT SIX; YOUTH IS RESCUED BY CHIEF

Maid Warns Family of Peril in Blazing House; Leads Pet Dog to Safety

Six persons were driven to the street in their night clothing and a boy was saved from death by Chief Albert Brown of the Hingham fire department when fire of an unknown origin broke out early today in the basement of the J. A. Davis mansion, in Main st., Hingham.

Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Davis, their three children, Lowell, 17; Jean, 18; and Esther, 16; their maid Miss Josephine Colvi, and a Mrs. Charles Mapp, a relative of Mrs. Davis who was visiting the Davis home had difficulty in getting from the second floor to the street in safety through the smoke.

Lowell Davis, a boy hemmed in by flames, nearly lost his life when he went to see if his mother had escaped.

He was overcome by smoke, and was found unconscious on the second floor by Chief Brown.

The fire was discovered by Miss Colvi, who aroused the family and then telephoned the fire department.

"Bobby," the family's pet dog, was saved by Miss Colvi, but a pet canary perished in the flames.

The Davis home was one of the show places along the South shore. The flames worked up through the center of the house and broke through the roof. The Hingham fire department had a difficult job in keeping the damage down.

$10,000 Loss in Hyde Park Fire

An overheated furnace is believed to have started the two alarm fire in a frame dwelling house occupied by William R. Murphy and family at 1133 Hyde Park ave., Hyde Park, causing damage of $10,000.

By the time the fire apparatus arrived the roof and the second floor was a mass of flames, threatening residential section of Hazelwood, which caused the District Chief Murray to send in a second alarm.

While on his way to the fire, the chief had a narrow escape from colliding with an Elevated bus on River st. While battling the flam..., Everett J. Haskell of engine 48 received a severe cut on the index finger of his right hand.

Heavy Fog Halts All British Ship Traffic

Liverpool, March 1 (AP)—One of the worst fogs in years dislocated shipping traffic on the Mersey river, the Irish Sea and along the western Scottish coast today.

More than 1000 passengers at Liverpool who should have been outward bound for the United States, were gazing disconsolately at the heavy pall hanging over the river. These included 300 on the Montcalm, 450 on the Scythia and 180 on the Cedric.

German Police Seize 80 'Reds' in Raid

Stettin, Germany, March 1 (AP)—Police today dissolved a meeting of local communistic "Anti-Fascist Young Guards" and took 80 members to the police station for identification.

Search of their headquarters produced a mass of coded writing and one pistol. The meeting today was to protest against police raids in Berlin and elsewhere.

Copenhagen, March 1 (AP)—W. Perceval Dodge, retiring American minister, with his wife and daughter, today left here for Paris en route to Washington.

TO GO LIMIT IN WHEAT FIGHT

Washington, March 1 (INS)—The Federal Farm Board, through its grain stabilization corporation, was prepared to buy 50,000,000 bushels of wheat, if necessary, to stabilize the American wheat market.

This stupendous plan of relief for the wheat farmer has the almost unanimous endorsement of administration leaders. Indeed, administration Republicans vied with Democrats and insurgents in voicing approval of the board's efforts to stabilize the price of wheat.

With this support, Alexander M. Legge, chairman, who is in Chicago on the "war front," taking personal charge of the board's battle against "bear speculators." Before he left Washington Legge was told by administration leaders to spend every dollar of the $150,000,000 available if it were needed to stabilize the grain markets. He was told to "go the limit."

The board already has purchased far in excess of 3,000,000 bushels of wheat, which it promptly placed in storage. All was bought at a basic price of $1.25 a bushel in Minneapolis. The board will continue to buy at that figure until the market generally reached that level.

FLAMES SWEEP FISHING TOWN

St. John's, N. F., March 1 (INS)—One-half of the waterfront of Grand Bank, the largest town on the west coast of Newfoundland, was in ashes today following the most disastrous fire in the history of the town, which raged practically throughout the night.

The first incomplete messages from the stricken town made no mention of casualties and it was hoped that at least the town had escaped without loss of life.

Grand Bank is the headquarters for the fishing fleets which conduct the great fishing industry off the Grand Banks. The wiping out of the waterfront section of the town, it was believed, would seriously cripple this industry.

Among the larger structures razed were the premises of J. B. Patten, J. Foote & Sons and Harris Co., all big export concerns in the fish industry. In addition, several nearby stores and one large fishing schooner, the Gen. Wood, were destroyed.

Mexican General "Stolen" by Gang

Mexico City, March 1 (AP)—A dispatch to El Universal from Puebla today said that Gen. Macario Hernandez, retired, had been abducted by an unidentified band disguised as soldiers.

They bore a false order for his arrest. He submitted and later his family found the order to be a subterfuge.

Hernandez was military commander at Puebla during the regime of Venustiano Carranza.

SOCIALISTS FLATLY REJECT TARDIEU BID FOR 3-MONTH TRUCE

WON'T GIVE PEACE EVEN TO FRANCE

New Premier Still Confident In Crisis; Parley Expected to Last Two Months

Paris, March 1 (AP)—The radical Socialists today refused the peace move of Andre Tardieu, premier designate, who wished to call a three months' political truce to permit solution of France's immediately outstanding problems.

Despite the rejection, M. Tardieu announced he would have his ministry together tomorrow. It was believed he possibly had won enough individual radical Socialist votes to his standard with the offer to insure a chamber majority.

His proposal was, briefly, to quit political scrapping for three months until the naval conference could be concluded, the budget passed, the Young plan put into execution, and other major problems settled. He was reported in addition to have offered the recalcitrant group five ministries and two undersecretaryships in his projected ministry.

He said he had urged M. Herriot to realize that the nation demanded action on its vital problems and he pledged his ministry to resign at the expiration of the three months' period.

M. Herriot carried the offer to his party, which immediately rejected it.

So far as is known, M. Tardieu has actually filled only one post in his new ministry, that being the foreign office portfolio, which he announced today Aristide Briand, who has become a fixture in the office, had accepted.

The radical Socialists have been particularly obstinate as to collaborating with M. Tardieu in the formation of a new government, holding him personally responsible for defeat of their premier, Camille Chautemps, in the Chamber Wednesday, when he asked for a vote of confidence on his ministerial declaration.

Big 5's Fate Expected to Be Known Definitely in 2 Weeks

London, March 1 (AP)—Six weeks to two months are expected to elapse before the naval conference is concluded, this time being contingent upon return shortly of a French delegation.

In some quarters it was believed the next two weeks will determine whether the conference can evolve a five-power agreement.

Practically all delegations today were in the midst of week-end celebrations. Most Americans were spending the holiday in the country, with others visiting friends or resting in London.

One member of the American delegation was busy today. Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, was engaged in completing the speech he will broadcast to America tomorrow over the Columbia network at 5:15 London time (12:15 p. m. E. S. T.).

A prominent Japanese, close to the naval delegation, today quoted the first Napoleon in explanation of his country's attitude toward a 70 per cent cruiser ratio with America.

Napoleon Bonaparte said: "An attacking force to be sure of success must have a superiority of at least 50 per cent over its enemy."

The Japanese today said: "Japan believes thoroughly in the Napoleonic axiom, and for that reason it is asking 70 per cent of America's cruiser strength.

"While we do not anticipate ever going to war with America, yet conservative Japanese naval men are always looking toward the question of security.

"Since the United States is our greatest and nearest armed neighbor it stands to reason we must take her into consideration theoretically when figuring out relative naval strengths.

"Now the five-five-three battleship ratio comes very near to a 50 per cent superiority; in order to be technically secure we must have an increased ratio in other branches of arms.

"It must be remembered that America, with its 10-10-7 ratio has ample protection so far as Japan is concerned in case of war—which, of course, is unthinkable.

"At the same time Japan, keeping the Napoleonic theory always in view, believes that with these ratios America will not have sufficient naval strength theoretically to attack Japan successfully.

"In other words, everybody will be happy with no harm done. We certainly can't attack America and we wish to feel America can't attack us."

Japs Standing Firm in Naval Demands on U. S.

Tokyo, March 1 (AP)—Beyond intimating that newspaper dispatches purporting to reveal the latest American naval proposals to Japan are mere guesswork, officials here are observing extreme reticence on the subject.

While there is no indication that Japan is weakening in her stand it was learned from well-informed quarters that greater importance is attached to her demand for 70 per cent of America's total for 8-inch gun cruisers than to her claim for the same ratio for total auxiliaries.

Hence it was regarded as possible that Japan might be satisfied with fewer small cruisers and destroyers, provided her other claims were conceded.

ACTRESS SUED; ADMITS LOVE

Pittsburgh, March 1—Frances Williams, star in George White's "Scandals," playing at the Alvin has been made defendant in a $100,000 action suit filed by Bertha Jones, Pittsburgh wife of Alan Jones, pianist now playing in "Fifty Million Frenchmen" in New York.

The suit was filed in common pleas court, before Judge Moore. Atty. Louis Little represents Mrs. Jones.

Jones was a former taxicab driver here and at Beaver Falls. A capias attached to the suit asked that the actress be arrested and held in bail of $5000. Judge Moore reduced the bond to $1000. When told of Mrs. Jones $100,000 suit, Frances said:

"I haven't a thing and she can't get anything from me. Even my jewelry isn't paid for and I have no money.

"Love Alan? He knows it and I'll wait 10 years if necessary to marry him."

"When you are engaged to him?" she was asked.

"I certainly am. I became engaged to him about Christmas time and not only that but he was almost engaged to another girl and I really broke another engagement to accept his proposal," Frances replied.

She was told she probably would be arrested by the sheriff and required to post $1000 bail before she was released.

"I'll have to go to jail if they want that much money to let me out," she replied.

Peasants Flee Russia; Soldiers Desert

Warsaw, Poland, March 1 (AP)—The Polish press today published reports that a detachment of 20 Soviet border guards, fully armed and headed by an officer, crossed the Polish border during the night and reported to the Polish police station in Luniniec.

The soldiers were said to have told the Polish authorities that they had contemplated deserting for some time. Bread shortage and orders to proceed against peasants defending themselves against expropriation and collectivization of their land were stated to be causes for dissatisfaction.

Because of the steady crossing of the Polish border by Soviet peasants, Warsaw newspapers have sent special correspondents to the frontier. The correspondent of the Warsaw Morning Express today reported that the number of refugees from Russia was growing hourly. He said the refugees were exhausted and many of them bore wounds inflicted by pursuing Soviet patrols. This correspondent said he had been told by the refugees that the Soviet government had sent to the border special punishment expeditions which are destroying and burning entire villages.

The correspondent reported that he had witnessed a border fight between peasants and Soviet guards. Several peasants were killed.

however, to deny to me that priests, rabbis or mullahs are being persecuted because of their religious beliefs, despite reports to the contrary through underground sources.

TO EXTERMINATE CHURCH

The officials said that the jailed church officials are charged with anti-social crimes, or have indulged in anti-Soviet political or religious propaganda, or have abused the privileges given them in the new church law promulgated last summer.

The officials, however, admit that the Church per se is being exterminated as rapidly as possible, because they call it "an institution thriving on darkness and illiteracy." They express themselves as "interested" by the Atheist League's drive to make Russia a "Godless nation."

SENATE OPENS A BATTLE FOR COTTON DUTY

Coalition Cocky After Its Victory on Lumber and Oil Schedules

Washington, March 1 (AP)—The Democratic-Independent Republican coalition was still master of the tariff situation today as the Senate devoted its attention to a proposal that a duty be placed on long staple cotton, now on the free list.

With some help from administration Republicans to offset the defection of Democratic members the coalition has maintained its numerical superiority through two crucial roll calls and in the face of the determined efforts of its opponents to break its grip long enough to place a tariff on lumber and oil.

The second of these tests came late last night on a proposal that crude oil be made dutiable at 21 a dollar a barrel and petroleum products, including gasoline, at 50 per cent ad valorem. By a vote of 39 to 27 the proposal was defeated and oil retained on the free list.

CHARGES OF TRADING

The roll call came as the climax of a dramatic session, in which there were charges of vote trading on sugar and oil, allegations that the American Independent Petroleum Producers' Association had attempted to foster such an exchange and had "even" been willing to trade the President of the United States on this deal.

This assertion was made by Senator Blaine, independent Republican, Wisconsin, a member of the Caraway lobby committee, which during the day had questioned Wirt Franklin, president of the association, on its activities in behalf of the oil tariff. Blaine declared the methods of the association "nefarious and damnable."

COTTON SCHEDULE UP

A group of a half dozen southwestern senators, both Democrats and Republicans, came to Franklin's defense. Allen of Kansas, a Republican, asserted that the independent producers were endeavoring to stabilize a "stricken industry" and had sent representatives to Washington to seek "influence in a perfectly proper way."

Seven Democrats deserted the coalition to vote for the oil tariff, all representing Mississippi Valley or southwestern states. Eight Republicans voted for it, five of them from New England, however, voted against the proposal.

By agreement, the long staple cotton schedule came up today, debate centering upon an agreement by Senator Shortridge, Republican, of California, to take that question off the free list and impose a tariff of seven cents a pound.

Voice Expert Dies as Pupil Sings

New York, March 1 (AP)—Dr. Floyd Summer Muckey, a nose and throat specialist who devoted the last 40 years to a study of the science of voice production, died of a stroke of apoplexy while seated at his home listening to a woman pupil singing Handel's "Oh Sleep." He was 72 years old.

He is credited in "Who's Who" with having been the first to give a working analysis of tone, to have photographed a manometric flame and to have made a descriptive photograph of vocal cords in action. A widow, son and daughter survive.

OTTAWA DEATH SUSPECT HELD

Leonard Doherty of Emerald st., Medford, held at the request of Canadian authorities as a fugitive from justice, was arraigned in municipal court today charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Doherty, whose fingerprints and description are said by the police to check with those of the man charged with a murder in Ottawa in 1925, pleaded not guilty.

Sergt. John P. Meane of Division 16, who presented the case, requested a continuance of two weeks pending word from Canadian authorities.

The request was refused, inasmuch as Doherty's counsel, who was unable to be present, had asked that his client be arraigned next Monday. Judge Zottoli continued the case to Monday and fixed bail at $25,000.

Before going to court Doherty was taken to headquarters where he told Chief Inspector Ainsley C. Armstrong he would go to Canada voluntarily.

The Ottawa authorities charge a man known to them as Frank James, with a string of aliases, with the murder of his roommate, Charles Underwood, in 1925.

Doherty was arrested during a battle with garment workers in St. Botolph st., Back Bay, yesterday, during which it is charged he wielded an iron pipe.

At headquarters he denied ever having been arrested before, but the Frank James circular bore fingerprints which checked with his, as did the photograph and description, police said. Ottawa police were notified and asked that he be held.

HEAVY VOTE IS CAST IN MILTON

A heavier poll than was anticipated marked the voting in the town election of Milton today.

The chief contest was for the board of selectmen, with five candidates for the three places. Kenneth D. Johnson, chairman, and Selectmen Josiah Babcock and Morton Wigglesworth are seeking re-election, the other candidates being Frederick A. Gaskins and Lawrence R. Flint. Gaskins was a member two years ago, being defeated last year by Wigglesworth.

There was also a four-cornered contest for school committee, the candidates being Edwin S. Weber, Mary Miley, who was defeated last year; James G. Russell and Charles L. Furber.

James L. Donald, John F. Kerrigan and Joseph A. Norton were battling for park commissioner, and Lieut. William J. McCluskey sought to displace Marcy L. Sperry as water commissioner.

The only other contest was for constable, the contestants being Chief of Police James R. Travers and his deputy, Timothy McDonough.

OPPOSE 'DEAD' PARKING BAN

Arlington, Beacon, Charles and Nashua sts. A portion of Harrison ave. might well be added to the loop, too, he said.

CALLS EXPERTS TOGETHER

Griswold explained that certain areas in the Arlington, Beacon and Charles sts. sections might be subject to revisions in so far as the granting to residents of the right to park outside their homes.

Mayor Curley considered the suggestion so radical that he suspended the meeting and summoned Acting Traffic Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan, Chairman Thomas J. Hurley of the street commission, Public Works Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke and Park Commissioner William P. Long.

The mayor asked the proponents of the scheme their opinion about the attitude of property owners and business men in the proposed loop and emphasized that their ideas should be accorded as much consideration as the recommendation of the proponents of the plan.

Griswold replied that the purpose was to acquaint the mayor with the plan as a preliminary to a subsequent public meeting.

APPROVED PLAN

It was admitted by the proponents that garage owners are not obtaining adequate financial return on their investment and that taxicabs are being operated at a loss on short hauls, but that these disadvantages would be offset by the advantages that the public would derive from the speeding of trolley cars, trucks and taxicabs.

Representatives of taxicab companies, of C. Bowen Co., truckmen, of the Metropolitan and Back Bay Garage associations and of Harris, Forbes & Co. and Atty. Lothrop Withington favored the plan.

Montreal Terminal to Cost $50,000,000

Montreal, March 1—The new Montreal terminal of the Canadian National Railways, which is to cost $50,000,000, will require more than 58,000 tons of structural steel, according to the estimate of the engineers.

Some 350,000 barrels of cement will be used in the construction and 355 acres of land will have been acquired. The work calls for the building of about 80 miles of new track and re-arrangement of another 12 miles.

SPANISH KING MAY DECLARE MARTIAL LAW

Double Guards at Royal Palace; Alfonso Will Fight to Retain His Throne

Madrid, March 1 (AP)—Gen Damaso Berenguer, Spanish Premier, has acted promptly to save the Spanish monarchy from the threat of republicanism sounded Thursday by Jose Antonio Sanchez Guerra, former Premier, and echoed subsequently in street rioting.

Spain awoke today to full realization that the character of the Berenguer government, mild enough in the days immediately succeeding fall of Gen. Primo De Rivera's dictatorship, changed greatly overnight. Strong measures were in force to preserve the new government and repress further anti-monarchial agitation.

It was believed Gen. Berenguer was ready to proclaim martial law at any time the situation should warrant it. The guards around the royal palace and the university were augmented as a precautionary measure and reserves held in readiness in case of disorder.

There were minor disorders in Madrid and the provinces Friday night, although on the whole the nation was comparatively quiet. Groups of medical students appeared on the balconies of the university shouting "Down with the monarchy!" and "Long live the republic!" There were similar disturbances in Barcelona.

After a cabinet council and conferences of King Alfonso with Gen. Berenguer and other Spanish notables, it was announced that the censorship would be tightened on news dispatches to prevent the spreading of the anti-government propaganda.

Spanish Ruler Faces Crisis in Political Revolt

London, March 1 (AP)—A Gibraltar dispatch to the Daily News today predicted sensational developments in Spain as a consequence of disavowal of the monarchy by Jose Antonio Sanchez Guerra, former Conservative Spanish premier. The dispatch said King Alfonso's position was becoming extremely difficult.

Information in palace circles was cited that King Alfonso would not submit meekly but intended to put up a fight rather than abdicate. Under certain circumstances, it was said, another dictatorship, headed by Gen. Martinez Anido, home secretary in Gen. Primo de Rivera's administration might be expected.

The dispatch explained that Friday Gen. Martinez Anido conferred with Captain Gen. Barrera and other generals, after which Gen. Barrera resigned in protest against the "timidity" of Gen. Berenguer, the premier.

The correspondent denied reports that the Spanish Queen would depart shortly for England.

WANT GUARD AT DANVERS POLLS

Acting on information that an attempt will be made to steal the election from him, Charles E. O'Neill of Danvers today appealed to Alfred E. Foote, commissioner of public safety, to assign State police to Danvers Monday to guard the polls.

O'Neill is one of seven candidates seeking a place on the board of selectmen. Three are to be elected. More than 3000 votes are expected to be cast and interest in the election is intense.

The polls will open at 6:45 o'clock on Monday and will close at 4 o'clock. Edwin Cook, Jr., Albert F. Learoyd and Harold D. Stone, present selectmen, are seeking re-election and are being opposed, in addition to O'Neill, by William H. Garvin, Ralph E. Williams, George H. Williams and Clarence W. Cook.

The request for State officers to guard the polls created a stir in the town today.

FAVORS MAKING POLITICS "FASHIONABLE" TO ATTRACT WOMEN

NELLIE ROSS SCORES LACK OF INTEREST

Former Wyoming Governor Cites the Progress Made by Her Sex in Great Britain

Washington, March 1 (AP)—While they were gathered at a dinner to honor the achievement of one of their number, a hundred of Washington's outstanding women heard Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming, take the American woman to task for not recognizing and discharging her public responsibilities.

Then she made a thrust at feminine psychology, remarking:

"We are going to have to make political activity fashionable. Countless women won't embark unless they are quite certain it will be regarded as 'the thing to do.'"

Addressing a group that glittered and shimmered in evening gowns, scarfs and jewels, assembled to felicitate Miss Annabel Matthews on her recent appointment to the United States board of tax appeals, Mrs. Ross, a member of the Democratic National Committee, placed the blame for what she termed an "unawakened political consciousness" in American women, despite a decade of suffrage, squarely upon the women themselves.

DODGING THEIR DUTY

She advised the women who were rejoicing over a signal triumph in "the opening of a door heretofore closed to women" that "exaltation of spirit must be tempered with humility."

"We deplore, but we cannot refute the charge that the decade since the suffrage amendment has made no appreciable advance in ethics," said Mrs. Ross. "Some women are accepting their responsibilities, but there is a far larger number whose political consciousness is altogether unawakened.

"Enfranchised women in other countries are outstripping us in many directions — certainly in achieving the outstanding positions where they can mould political life and thought."

Mrs. Ross pointed to England, where 48 women stood for the House of Commons at the last election and 13 of them were elected.

GIRLS IN POLITICS

"In England, there is a distinct vogue for politics among women of rank," she said.

Mrs. Ross mentioned the woman in the English cabinet, and a 24-year-old woman who stood for the House of Commons.

"How would it be received if a girl, 24 years old, presented herself for the Congress of the United States?" she asked.

From the background of her experience as organizer of the women of the Democratic party, Mrs. Ross commented, "if the political parties were smart enough to have women shape some of their policies their whole tone would be elevated and "women could restore the idealism that has been merged in materialism."

'Bulls' Drop $500,000; Hens Lay—And How!

Chicago, March 1 (AP)—The great American hen had something to cackle about today—sort of a hen coup.

Samuel A. Sugar, head of Sugar Brothers, Inc., gave some of the details. He was a member of a group of egg dealers which claimed to have made a quarter of a million dollars in recent weeks through their confidence in the nation's favorite fowl.

"Early in February," he said, "the wholesale price of eggs ranged from 27 to 30 cents. Then the price broke to 25 cents. The 'bulls,' confident that prices would go up, tried to corner the market as they might control prices.

The trouble was that the hen kept right on turning out eggs. February was a month of spring weather. Hens laid as they never had laid before at this season of the year. As fast as the bulls' bought, new trainloads of eggs poured into town. The retail price went down to the lowest it has been since 1924."

Sugar estimated that the unwonted activity of the American hen cost the 'bulls' on the Chicago market more than half a million dollars.

Innkeeper's Rites Attract Notables

Vienna, March 1—Frau Anna Sacher, who in her lifetime was proprietor of a widely known Vienna hotel, was buried. For elaborateness and solemnity her funeral was comparable only to that of Konrad Hoetzendo, Austria's popular field marshal during the great war. Numerous members of former royalty, scions of the most ancient nobility, thousands of members of society and prominent actors attended the last rites.

HAITI IGNORES HOOVER BOARD

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, March 1 (AP)—The Hoover commission on Haitian affairs opened its first session here this morning, but no one arrived to testify.

The commission was informed by a spokesman of the opposition press that they had advised everyone to stay away because they had decided that this morning's invitation to testify meant that the commission was a "secondary McCormick commission."

The opposition editors said this commission "heard all the past misdeeds of the occupation and threw their books into the ocean without remedying the situation."

The American commission immediately issued a statement saying:

"We are not another McCormick commission, but we are here looking to the future and not the past. We want to find from the people how and when the occupation can cease and national institutions be re-established."

CONFESSION BY DR. SNOOK

Columbus, O., March 1 (AP)—Dr. James H. Snook, the iron-nerved professor who killed Theora Hix, co-ed, and paid with his life for his crime in the electric chair, deliberately planned to end an affair which threatened to ruin his position and reputation.

Dr. Snook had confessed, Warden Thomas admitted, that he planned to end his three-year friendship with the girl, after she threatened to expose him. He "feared disgrace and loss of position" and he cut her throat and battered her skull with a hammer to make the deed look like the work of a thief.

Dr. Snook, who was 50, walked unassisted to the chair. His manner was cool, his eyes open, his lips silent. A minister, from whom he had just accepted communion, intoned a benediction as two guards adjusted electrodes to Dr. Snook's right leg and the top of his head.

Today Dr. Snook's body was at the disposal of his faithful wife, Helen Marple Snook, who visited him daily for the past week, as the Ohio Supreme Court, the Federal Supreme Court and Governor Cooper refused to intervene in his behalf. She shared his last meal with him and remained at the penitentiary until he had been executed.

Find Loaned Auto in River, No Body in It

Little Falls, N. Y., March 1 (AP)—An automobile registered in the name of Alfred Dygert of Herkimer was dragged from the Mohawk river today.

Mrs. Dygert said she loaned the car to a neighbor, Henry Brown, 29, to go to South Adams, Mass. Brown was not at home today. No body was fund in the car. The machine was discovered by a passing motorist, who noticed that the fence separating the Mohawk valley turnpike from the river had been broken.

Freight Hits Auto, 3 Escape Death

An East Boston man and wife and a woman companion narrowly escaped death when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a freight train at the Eastern ave. crossing, Chelsea.

The driver of the car, police say, was John D. Kaylander of 285 Lexington st., East Boston. The other passengers were his wife, and Mrs. Olga Lane of 163 Saratoga st., East Boston. Kayander failed to see the train crossing the grade, until he was almost upon it.

$400,000 Napoleonic Gems Hunted in N. Y.

New York, March 1 (AP)—The famous necklace that Napoleon gave to Empress Marie Louise at the birth of their son, L'Aiglon, in 1811, is being sought here by the district attorney's office.

A search is being made also for a man described as a colonel of the British Colonial Secret Service, who, authorities were told, was commissioned by the Archduchess Marie Theresa of Vienna to sell the necklace, which is valued at $400,000.

Mrs. Anna Eisenmenger, who described herself as an intimate friend of the archduchess, told Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings that she had been sent to this country with power of attorney from the archduchess to seek the agent and recover the necklace, which consists of 44 matched diamonds set in silver and gold.

She said the archduchess, who is 43 years old, received a year ago to sell the necklace, which has been in her family more than a century. Mrs. Eisenmenger said the archduchess met the British colonel, gave him the necklace, and he tried to sell it to the Khedive of Egypt, who declined to pay the price asked. The necklace was returned to the archduchess. Several months ago she received a letter from the "colonel," saying he believed he had found a buyer in the United States, so she sent the necklace to him by mail and has heard nothing further from him.

Mrs. Eisenmenger said she had heard the necklace was sold for $400,000 to a jeweler in Boston and that some of the larger diamonds had been removed and sold separately.

Archduke Leopold of Austria, who is said to be living at 151 East 66th st., has been subpoenaed in the case.

CLAIMS PLAY IS STOLEN FROM WIDOW

Editor Battles for a Woman Who Spent All to Save Son From Death

Amarillo, Tex., March 1 (AP)—Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo News, will leave here Monday for New York with the announced purpose of "either closing the biggest dramatic hit in New York or securing an equitable settlement for an Amarillo widow and mother."

Howe referred to the play, "The Last Mile," which he asserted was based on the experience of Robert Blake, son of Mrs. Ella Blake of Amarillo. Blake was executed in the State Penitentiary about a year ago.

Just before his execution he wrote a playlet," The Law Takes Its Toll," which was published in American Mercury, and the rights of which were given Mrs. Blake as her son's only legacy. This playlet, Howe charges, was used by John Wexley in writing "The Last Mile."

"According to New York newspapers," Howe said, "Wexley stated he obtained the idea and the words for his first act from Blake's playlet. However, Mrs. Blake informs me that she did not give permission for use of the playlet. Wexley or his representative have been in communication with Mrs. Blake, but they have not come to terms."

Mrs. Blake, Howe said, spent every cent she had in an effort to save her son from the electric chair. She decided that either Wexley must "do the right thing" or he would attempt to enjoin the producers of the play.

NAB MAN WITH GUN IN FIGHT

Seizing a fully loaded automatic rifle and arresting Edward Murray, 27, in a room on West Springfield st., South End, today, two policemen found they had a battle on their hands, and all three fell from the third to the second floor of the house in the tussle, before Murray was overpowered.

A short time before, according to Bernard Bloom, a taxi-driver, and Allen Rogers of Molley st., who was riding with him, Murray threatened them with the gun and gave chase when they slipped off the driver's seat and fled through an alley.

Patrolmen Fred Hoy and William C. Williams of East Dedham st. division were treated at City hospital for injuries suffered in the fight with Murray. Their prisoner was taken to municipal court and held i n$15,000 by Judge Zottoli for a hearing on March 6.

Murray is charged with unlawful possession of firearms, assault with a dangerous weapon, and assault and battery on two policemen.

Bloom testified he felt the barrel of a gun against his back as he was driving Murray through Springfield st., and when he tried to argue with his fare, Murray said: "Don't call me buddy. I don't like taxi-drivers and you're not long for this world."

Everett Council Flays Paid Liquor Buyers

While professional liquor buyers were characterized as "rats" at a joint session of the Everett city council and board of aldermen, Mayor O'Neil inaugurated the report of Chief of Police Hill that the city has been cleaned of liquor and ordered the rum squad back to work.

Sergt. Donahue and Patrolman Edward J. Dunn, recently resigned as members of the liquor squad and Chief Hill reported the city clear of liquor dives and bootleggers.

The denunciation of professional liquor buyers came when Chief Hill sought to have $2500 allocated in the city budget as funds to pay them $25 for every case.

DAWES SEARCH IN VATICAN FOR ATLANTIS KEY

Ambassador Has Yale Man in Rome Delve Into History for Mayan Link

Washington, March 1 (AP)—The lost continent of Atlantis, theme of speculation for centuries by historians and fiction writers, has cast its spell over Gen. Charles G. Dawes.

The former Vice-President and present American ambassador to England believes there was an Atlantis where prospered a highly civilized people, and that part of its people, at least, were the ancient Mayas, who inhabited Yucatan and Guatemala, Central America, before the coming of the Spanish conquistadores, 400 years ago.

Charles A. Lindbergh directed the world's attention to the land of the Mayas recently when he flew through Yucatan, seeing elaborate monuments, bigger than the pyramids of Egypt and other graven records of a forgotten, high civilization.

A LAND IN RUINS

It was such a civilization as has been attributed to the lost Atlantis in legends, and Dawes believes, perhaps partially historical, certainly partly mythical, describe a great continent called Atlantis, of peacefulness, industry and wealth, whose people, unpurged by travail, turned to sin for excitement.

Then came a day of darkness, when the sun was hidden by black clouds, and the earth trembled and the sea submerged Atlantis and its people.

Today there stand the Mayan ruins, inscribed with hieroglyphics no man can read, although the Mexican and Guatemalan Governments, the Carnegie Foundation and many exploring archaeologists have labored for decades to find the key to their mysteries.

Sheldon Whitehouse, newly appointed United States minister to Guatemala and a lover of archaeology, revealed today that Ambassador Dawes believes these Mayan temples may hold, chiseled in their great stone blocks, the story of Atlantis.

EMPLOYS YALE MAN.

Whitehouse said Dawes had employed Prof. Charles Upson Clark of Yale to go to the library of the Vatican in Rome to seek the key to the Mayan mysteries.

There, Prof. Clark is rummaging through one important paper, a report sent to Rome by Spanish priests attached to the Conquistadores. It was written 30 years after the conquest by a Mayan who had learned the Spanish language from the priests.

MANY OF SOCIETY'S HANDsomest young matrons, arriving at the Copley-Plaza for the senior supper dance last evening, presented a sartorial picture unmatched for rainbow hues. Their gowns kept the color dancing from one new shade to another. Cherry red shadow lace fluttered about the brocade shod heels of Mrs. Richard C. Storey, Jr., and Mrs. Ralph Bradley as they danced, and this combination was chosen by many of their contemporaries who followed the vogue for red and the allure of lace. One of the loveliest costumes noted was the velvet brocaded lace princess model in apple green that set off the clear complexion of Mrs. Charles E. Hodges, Jr. She wore matching brocaded slippers. Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper was stunning as usual. Her gown was a fitted ivory satin with draped skirt ending in a train and green satin slippers matched the glossy leaves of the gardenias on her shoulder.

MRS. HENRY P. KIDDER, who was among the hostesses entertaining at supper parties wore a heavy white crepe import with groups of fan shaped rhinestone sprinkled tucks that pinched in the waistline. Cerise slats draped and contrasted with jade green slippers lent distinction to the costume of Mrs. Roger Griswold, Mrs. Taylor's gown was of black net over satin, embroidered with large red poppies and finished with a wide silver hem and blue and cerise sash. Purple shadow lace was chosen by Mrs. Louis Curtis, Jr., and orange crepe by Mrs. Albert S. Howe. Mrs. Gelston T. King's white satin gown with draped skirt and rhinestone shoulder straps. Mrs. George Lyman's elaborately done black velvet costume was combined with net which fell in points over the skirt, and sparkled with rhinestones. Mrs. S. Prescott Fay's burgundy crepe was a lovely creation, set off by waxy white gardenias. Midnight blue velvet was worn by Mrs. John M. B. Churchill of Philadelphia, who was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Edward Morton Guild, in black crepe and red slippers.

THE HOSPITABLE HOME of Mrs. John S. Richardson, on Chestnut Hill, is the scene of a party such as the debutante set delights in. This is being given by Mrs. Richardson in honor of her debutante granddaughter, Miss Hope Richardson of Readville, and takes the form of a dinner dance. The party is to be informal, with no ushers.

MISS NANCY HALLOWELL, Miss Anne Frothingham, Miss Charlotte G. Hopkins, Miss Priscilla Prince, Miss Leslie Grinnell, Miss Katharine Gilchrist and Miss Vyvyan Sears are the debutantes chosen to inaugurate an innovation in the Copley Society ball on next Tuesday evening, by playing the role of ushers. This departure from the usual procedure of Copley entertainments was arranged by Mrs. Albert G. Titcomb, and a special committee in charge of the revel to be staged in the Salle Moderne, Hotel Statler. This entertainment will be the one gala evening event that will emphasize Art week in Boston, which begins on Monday.

ADDING TO THE GAIETY of the affair will be numerous dinner parties given both by the debutantes and the older sets. Miss Eleanor Strickland will be hostess to a large group of the younger set at her Brookline home. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Francis Law will entertain a large party at the Hotel Statler. Occupying the tables overlooking the sunken dancing floor in the artistic Salle Moderne will be Heiker Abbott, president of the Copley Society, Mrs. Geo. H. Monks, Miss Nellie L. Thompson, Miss Isabel Wesson, William G. Weir, Frederick Winsor, Jr., Millard Burr Guilck, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Strickland, whose guests will be Miss Eleanor Strickland, Miss Margaret Emerson, Miss Priscilla Hedge, Elliot Hedge, John Dinsmore and Joseph Holmes.

Mrs. Campbell will present excerpts from "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "Pelleas and Melisande," "Pygmalion," "Ophelia" and other plays, and will also give an informal talk on "Beautiful Speech and the Art of Acting." Chiffon Frock in Pastel Colors Is Youthful; All Manner of Capes Popular

WE may revert, if we will, to past pages of fashion's resplendency—yet in spite of Paris and the dressmaker we will preserve a youthifying appearance by means of ruse or subtlety. If longer skirts are to give us a new dignity, then capes must needs be rushed to the fore to lend a flippant air. The dash which brevity loaned to fashion cannot be ignored completely—so it remains for some such animated note as a short cape to keep a youthful flair in this sophisticated era.

Not for many seasons has there been such an enthusiasm for all manner of capes. Short ones, attached ones, long ones and detachable ones are being tacked onto every imaginable type of costume. Capes flare from the new short-jacketed suits, frocks wear them with nonchalant grace and coats employ them for a dashing emphasis to their flaring lines. Even the long separate cape has been revived to be adopted by those moderns who enjoy the more exclusive trends of the mode.

THE chiffon frock pictured is of the informal type, correct to wear on many and various occasions. It is printed in the Marie Laurencin colors, the softest of blue, rose and violet tones that characterize the work of that French artist. The bodice has a shirred princess line, ending in a double flounced peplum and topped by a shoulder cape in the Directoire manner, deeper in back, and edged by ruffle similar to the peplum. The cape has circular fullness, as has the skirt, and a shallow V neckline, finished by chiffon flowers repeating the soft Pastel colors.

The frock has the additional versatility of sleeves, with flounce detail, which may be quickly adjusted for afternoon wearing.

The simplicity of a single strand of pearls and plain opera pumps add to the youthful charm of this costume.

Printed chiffon continues outstandingly smart, and reports from Southern resorts accent the pastel prints for afternoon, and larger designs with more vivid color for evening.

WHETHER or not we are growing more picturesque in our dress is a question answered again in an emphatic affirmation by the appearance of prints designed by a famous advocate of that quality. Erte, known by his previous costume designs and his equally elaborate illustrations, has turned his hand to designing printed silks.

Stylized butterflies flutter across a shadowy chiffon. The peacock feather inspires another lovely design. Several shades of one color are used in still another design that is based on the curved line and depends largely on the use of color for variety and interest.

NOT only are flowers returning to the mode but they are finding new places for themselves Poiret, artist and couturier, places a bouquet at the belt of coat or frock, an innovation for the flower that has hitherto been limited to the lapel or the neckline for daytime wear.

Another clever new note is the pair of gardenias gracing a tailored frock, one on each lapel. This makes a smart note of color on the dark dress. Prints add a bit of novelty to their design by bouquets of the flowers of the printed pattern, made by cutting out several of the designs and fastening them loosely at the neckline in place of the usual gardenia.

Model from Gilchrist Co.

WHETHER your formal frock is mint green or blush pink, your ankles must match it. Clad in hose of pastel shades the ankles are daintily reserved about their appearance—leaving the toes of the opera pump to play that role celebrated in verse. In a day when it was smart to be demure, one's feet beneath a lengthened frock "like little mice stole in and out." Pastel hose are also an excellent idea for the pastel slippers that are worn with light frocks for afternoon.

WATER COLORS SCULPTURE IN EXHIBIT

A pleasing collection of water colors by a group of five, and sculptures by Isamu Noguchi are on display at the Harvard sq. gallery of the Harvard Society for Contemporary Art, where they may be seen until March 15.

Noguchi, who has had a fellowship of the Guggenheim Foundation, is the debut exhibitor. From Japanese father and an Irish mother he has inherited a tendency for modern lines.

Early in his career he went to Paris, determined to study with Brancusi. When that master of distortionistic modernism said he was taking no pupils, Noguchi pleaded for a job as stone cutter, and got it.

In this fashion he was able to observe the methods of the master and his experience has stood him well.

His bronze and brass portraits on exhibition now emphasize the characteristics which have replaced the old-time searching for character.

One of the most conventional of Noguchi's likeness is that of Nicholas Roerich, Russian painter and scholar. Other works depict Buckminster Fuller, inventor of the dymaxion house; George Gershwin, Ladjoe Tihany, Anna Bodi, Elda Frankau et al.

The five water colorists have been exhibiting together ever since one of those art club rows.

They are Marion Monks Chase, Charles Hovey Pepper, Charles Hopkinson, Carl Gordon Cutler, Hedley Perkins.

The two who have somewhat changed their methods since the earlier exhibitions of the five are Mrs. Chase and Perkins.

In "Morning" and "Charles River," the former seems to have switched from the very stylistic, swirling abstractions which she was making to luminous and objective representations such as plain middle-class people say they like.

Resident for some time past abroad Perkins has gone in for heavier, more sombre tonalities than were his wont. His enjoyment of the Gaelic art to Dunsany has not been lessened, but has been intensified.

Still, as of yore, Cutler is the super-realist, making his "Distant Islands" more like the actual effect in nature than any of the guild ever would permit it; and Pepper is the super-conservative, painting "The Big Tree," or at least its trunk, with plenty of guache and with the low general tone against which erstwhile radicals were in revolt 30 years ago.

Clever and calligraphic as in all his long series of equestrian studies whose pieces look good to the initiated from whatever distance seen, even though they leave out some of the niceties of representation which the untrained eye would hope to find. His "Landscape Silhouette" is one of his smartest.

"ABOVE ALL WHAT THEY ARE WEARING FORMS ONE OF THE CHIEF INTERESTS IN LIFE FOR MOST OF US"

"Freedom of the Knees Is Well Worth Fighting For..."

Says Dr. Woods Hutchinson

"The first round in the big fight . . . has been won by reason and good health . . . so evening dresses will continue long . . . afternoon confections medium . . . while sports and informal clothes will be TRIUMPHANTLY SHORT"

What Do You Think?

Should all dresses be long . . . or all short . . . or some long, and some short?

AIRPORT GROUP ORGANIZE NEW FLYING CLUB

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Deciding that all members of a flying company, those on the pay roll as well as the officers, should know how to fly, the employes of East Coast Aircraft Corp. have formed a flying club, and intend to purchase a D. H. Moth to use for their flying activities.

This announcement is on the very good authority of Johnny Polando, the "flying trouble shooter" of the company, and when this boy says something, it is always the truth.

Employed by East Coast are three young ladies, and they have all climbed right aboard the band wagon with their applications for membership, and what hard-hearted group of men mechanics could turn down the plea of three charming young ladies? So, the Misses Sara C. Granger, Henrietta M. Zolla and Mary G. Corinha are full-fledged exhibites in the East Coast Flying Club.

John Polando was named president and J. Albert Vaughan secretary-treasurer.

WALLY CONTRIBUTES

H. E. "Wally" Wallis, chief of maintenance, owns the fuselage of a Moth, and volunteered to turn it over to the club for what it cost him, providing he could become a member. This offer was immediately snatched up, and the club had the start of an airplane.

A dance and general airport whoopee party is scheduled for March 28 in the sales and reception room of the East Coast building.

The two and girls at the airport haven't had a get-to-gether for a long time and the prospects of this gathering look exceedingly bright.

Enlisted as club members, in addition to the aforementioned officers and girls, are William Goodell, Wylie B. Saunders, Kenneth Hurley, Everett Lamkin, Richard Canfman and George Cornell. Both Wallis and Saunders are former members of the Royal Flying Corps, with Saunders having plenty hours in war-time British fighting planes like the Camel.

WOMAN EXECUTIVE

Entirely unannounced and unheralded, we have New England's first woman executive in a flying company. She is Mrs. Dolly Bernson, wife of Bob Bernson, and she holds down the job of office manager for the outfit, as well as being on the board of directors.

When the North Shore Airways, Inc. was brought into being, Bob Weimore was elected president, Bob Bernson, treasurer and general manager, and Mrs. Dolly copped the job of sales manager.

The first item on the program was the placing of one of the Arrow Sportplanes, owned by the new company, in an automobile salesroom in Salem.

It seems as though the boys who flew overseas during the late rumpus and who have continued to fly commercially since, never get out of touch of one another.

A Fairchild monoplane came up from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., on a photo mission, and the first act of the photo man was to inquire for the whereabouts of Adolph Backstrom. J. Paul Herman took Uncle chap, Lt. A. Smith, to the Curtiss pilots' room and there the reunion was held.

Letters From Readers

The Personality of George Washington

Editor Boston American:

Some facts about George Washington on his birthday, Feb. 22, may not go amiss with many of your readers when applied to modern life.

It cost Washington $100,000 to serve as first President of the United States. He was not a chilly, reserved character, but a red blooded eating, drinking, six-foot three, Virginian, with abundance of humanity. He did not feel his oats. He was idolized by officers of the army and if he said, "Make me your king," they would have responded.

Then again he disapproved of slavery on economic grounds and hoped for eventual freedom of all slaves, though he was a large slave owner.

He liked the whistling of bullets. He was a man of tested bravery and toughness. When Patrick Henry was asked who was the greatest man in Congress he replied: "If you speak of solid information and sound judgment, Col. Washington is unquestionably the greatest man on the floor." His friends knew that he had no axe to grind.

Housing Important in War on Crime

Editor Boston American:

There is probably no use of trying to solve the causes of crime, for no two persons can agree upon it. Your letter column recently handled this matter and showed this condition.

Under existing conditions in many places in this country, I am sorry to say, crime is bred. Until those conditions are improved we will see crime stalking around us.

Look at the conditions under which thousands are living today. Some right here in Boston. A family of 14 living in a three-room house, nine of whom sleep in one bedroom and five in another. If you improve housing conditions you are likely to lessen crime in many ways.

Parents with large families who have come to live here in Boston, to make a future for their children away from the isolation of the country, must often put up with such small and injurious conditions in housing and are helpless to improve them. Parents can do much, but proper housing conditions and playgrounds will do most to lessen crime. Don't hit the parents who are doing their best, Supt. Crowley. But make it easy for them to live in sanitary places where their children can be brought up in proper conditions of modesty and respect for one another.

If you house children like cattle in apartments and then deplore their conditions in sermons, you are simply beating around the bush. We have got to have proper housing conditions for those who cannot pay a big rent and we have to expand our work in this direction before we can grasp this problem of crime.

Africa Vieing With Boston and Salem

Editor Boston American:

What do you think of an African chief who was so superstitious he employed a witch doctor to jump backwards and forwards over his bed nightly, as he thought, to keep evil spirits away. This was told a Boston audience this week by a returned missionary from Africa.

But this is no different than what was required of witches right here in Boston and Salem. If we will read some of the antics asked of these witches in Colonial times, we would agree that Boston and Salem witches could do better stunts than that.

Says Peace Rests With Individual

Editor Boston American:

It interested me to see one letter defending war in your Letters to the Editor Column, and then another knocking it. I believe both of these writers could come to terms if they met each other. No one wants war. But before we get rid of the fighting spirit as expressed in war, we must weigh other matters.

For as long as nations are committed to the competitive system in commerce and industry, so long will political consequences ensue, fatal to peace and certain catastrophe as they easily lead to the annihilation of the civilized world.

Unless we can make peace within, some day there will be war outside, and such a war that will break up the civilized world. The World Court and the League of Nations are good steps in advance, but they will never eradicate war. There must be a wholesale conversion of the individual to personal peace within himself and on herself before we can do away with war.

JOHN J. KNOWLES.

Believes America Should Be Supreme

Editor Boston American:

The London naval opera-bouffe conference has not received any curtain calls up to date. The only calls are the ones when we do wrong. Maybe on the morrow things may turn out different.

We should not allow England to dictate to us in regard to how many and what kind of ships we must have. Our country is the greatest and the most powerful on earth. Therefore if there's any dictating to be done it is up to us to do it. Let us have the greatest navy in the world, not to overlook the greatest air fleet.

It is plain to be seen that in the event of another war the greater fighting will take place in the air. Some writers say we may have another war with England. We must take that as a joke. England would not dare go to war with us. No more than a mere child would want to fight Carnera the giant from Italy.

In other words it would be her downfall. From a mighty Empire to a little country on the European map where she naturally belongs. It would be a golden opportunity for Canada, Australia and other possessions to be free and independent which they should. All countries that are capable of governing themselves should be absolutely free from the control of others. And there are quite a few on the world's map.

W. C. T. U. Critic Is Called Misinformed

Editor Boston American:

That tirade by your correspondent against the Women's Christian Temperance Union reminds me of the back fire of a congested automobile. Evidently the writer of the letter is not familiar with the work, achievements and, above all, loyalty, of this organization to the best interests of this country. He is to be numbered with those assailants who, crowded with their hallucinations about things, present them as facts.

If he will henceforth give up false ideas about this organization and get in touch with some of its members, he will have his unreasonable ravings pardoned. He needs to be informed about the meaning of temperance as carried on by this society, and not enslave himself to his misconceptions of that word.

There is no organization of women that has done more for the world's best interests, and any one who will take the time and energy to look into their work will have a different angle of vision than mars his letter.

Gen. Brown Lauded for Fine Qualities

Editor Boston American:

Those who have watched and admired the command of the first corps area by Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown will regret his leaving Boston. He knows men and he knows how to get the most out of them. While a strict disciplinarian in many of his accomplishments, the men under his command regarded his activities as beneficial to them and to the morale of the army.

He goes to be deputy chief of staff of the United States army. With his poise, ability, experiences, his educational inheritances he will undoubtedly fill such a position and add to his honor and the prestige in the army.

There is a line of honorable generals who have served in the first corps area and New England needs to be proud also of those who have gone before in this command.

Scores Coast Guard in Liquor Cases

Editor Boston American:

The rum running episode at Newport in which three young men were shot to death in the cause of fanaticism is considered "unfortunate but unavoidable."

What a statement from one in authority! What an absolute admission of incapability! Why was it necessary to shoot to kill? Because the would-be-captors were afraid their "quarry" would escape. They were lacking the sporting blood of the English hunter who will never shoot a hunted animal if the dogs are not fast enough to catch it.

They were lacking the sporting blood of the English hunter who will never shoot a hunted animal if the dogs are not fast enough to catch it.

Should shooting be necessary why not make it effective at the water line and at least save human life. But perhaps the other reasons if the runners are killed that is so many out of the way.

But we realize the rum-running vessel Flor Del Mar when her crew set her afire. Why didn't the guards capture the runner instead of salvaging the liquor which would have gone down gracefully to provide a little New Year's cheer for Davy Jones? Oh no! the answer was found at New London.

The press told us how the crews of various cruisers scrambled for the liquor and got plenty of it much more than the government will admit. Picture their midnight revels (according to the press) inspired by the spirits taken from the captured rum runner; drinking rum for the intended slaughter of which three young men were killed.

SIMPLE RITES MONDAY FOR FR. GASSON

All classes will be suspended at Boston College Monday out of respect to the memory of Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., former president of the college. Pall-bearers for Father Gasson will be selected from the senior class of University Heights.

Simple services of the Jesuit order, a low mass of requiem in which there is neither singing nor music, will mark the funeral of the noted educator on Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Harrison ave., South End.

The body will lie in state before the main altar in the church Sunday afternoon. Previous to being taken to the church Sunday afternoon the body will rest in a parlor of the church rectory where the public will be allowed to view it.

The body will be brought to Boston from Montreal, where the priest died, arriving here Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock.

The Rev. William A. Hingston, S. J., Provincial of the Canadian Province of the Society of Jesus, and the Rev. Eric Bartlett, S. J., president of Loyola College, will accompany the body.

Burial will be in the Jesuit Cemetery at Holy Cross College.

DECLARES WAR IN INDIA NEAR

Ahmadabad, Bombay, India, March 1 (AP)—Vallabhai Patel, Mahatma Ghandi's chief lieutenant, addressing a public meeting today, prophesied an Indian war would begin soon.

The meeting was to outline the all-India national congress civil disobedience campaign., Patel said:

"War unprecedented in the history of the world will begin in a few days and the beginning will be made at Gujarat (a division of Bombay).

"Those afraid of death should go on a pilgrimage and those possessed of riches should go to foreign countries."

Pandits Motilal and Jawaharlal Nehru arrived today and conferred with Ghandi, who, it is understood, will not publish his ultimatum, with conditions upon which the civil disobedience campaign will not be initiated until Viceroy Lord Irwin gives his permission.

It was stated in authoritative circles, however, the campaign will be begun within a fortnight.

Hungary Celebrates Horthy Anniversary

Budapest, March 1 (AP)—Hungary today celebrated the tenth anniversary of the election of Nicholas Horthy regent, to the high office by the National Assembly.

In accordance with his wish, no brilliant festivities marked the celebration; the only gift he was willing to accept was the signatures of several million Hungarians presented to him in a 2000 volume testimonial.

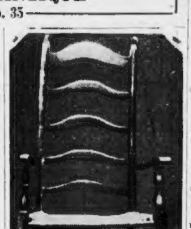
DAILY ANTIQUE
—No. 35—



Pompadour in the reign of Louis XV.

Slat back, ladder back, fiddle and five-back chairs, this piece of furniture is called. Many ladder back chairs of authentic antiquity date from the latter half of the seventeenth century, but the one shown is of a rare type, of which the museums have examples dating from about 1710 to 1720. The rocker is the property of Mrs. Paul F. Christopher of Scotsville, N. Y., whose Southern fireside chair was shown earlier in the week in these columns. The New England rocker shown today will be discussed further by an expert in Monday's American.

Along with a grand miscellaney of furniture of many varying styles, the sofa shown yesterday must fall into the period which Americans call Empire. This all-embracing name takes under its wing many extremes of design, from the simplest models developed from Duncan Phyfe to cumbersome, and monumentally carved giants that would shame the wildest offerings of the Victorian era.

The piece shown yesterday probably dates from the latter days of the 18th century, and its design is good. One peculiarity is the fact that the legs ending in lions' feet, are swept forward instead of toward the ends. A sofa of very similar design is to be found in Pynchon Hall of the Connecticut Valley Historical Society at Springfield, Mass.

True Empire, showing its legitimate derivation from Louis XV. and Louis XVI. is to be seen in such place as the Louvre in Paris, and at the Trianon Palace and Petit Trianon in Versailles. Empire style in France is of more exact classicism and purity of line and ornament than its counterparts in England and America. Empire borrows from the Roman, and is consequently somewhat heavier and more ponderous than the Greek designs brought into favor by Mme. de

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. In case no photograph is available, the American will send one of its staff cameramen to photograph your antique if you live in Greater Boston. Material should be addressed to "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

DOCTORS READY TO TEST NEW DISCOVERY

Toronto, March 1 (By the Canadian Press)—Placental crystalline extract, the discovery of which was recently announced to the world by Dr. J. B. Collip of McGill University, Montreal, will be made available to physicians immediately under certain specific conditions for treatment of women patients, Dr. Collip made this announcement in a speech before a gathering of medical men, bio-chemists, chemists and research workers.

Dr. Collip stipulated that all cases must be treated shall be thoroughly examined to determine if they fall into the classification of disorders already shown to be amenable to the extract treatment. He also insists that if they do, the patients shall be treated in a hospital and under the most careful observation.

Owing to the natural limitations on the production of the extract and the fact that the application of the discovery is still in the early stages, Dr. Collip feels that the greatest care must be exercised in its use and experimentation by himself as well as others.

Setting forth the achievements and possibilities of his extract thus far indicated, Dr. Collip said it had proved encouragingly valuable in adjusting certain disorders. Success had been obtained, he said, in a dominant majority of cases treated, with restorations of normal functioning, gains in weight and vanishing of nervous afflictions.

Mass. Motorist Paid Lowest 1929 Gas Tax

Washington, March 1 (INS)—The average American motorist used 571 gallons of gasoline last year. The American Motorists' Association estimated today.

New Mexico customers paid the highest per capita gasoline tax, an average of $37 each for the year, based on a five cents per gallon tax and consuming an average of 740 gallons of fuel.

Massachusetts drivers paid the lowest tax, an average of $8 per vehicle based on a two cents tax and using an average of 400 gallons of gas.

BAN AT SHRINE TO CONTINUE

Holy Cross Cemetery was not reopened to the public today, as was expected, and cemetery officials stated that no definite date had been set for permitting the public to again visit the cemetery which contains the tomb of the Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Power.

Closed to the public several months ago, after many reported cures had been reported and more than a million pilgrims had visited Fr. Power's grave, the gates of the cemetery will continue to be guarded by State police.

While the general public will not be admitted, all these who come to decorate graves of relatives will be allowed to enter.

Investigation of the reported miracles is still under way by the Catholic Church authorities, who have not disclosed whether or not they have obtained undisputed proof of cures among the many pilgrims who claimed relief or complete banishment of ills after praying at the grave of the priest.

BARD STILL SWAYS THE CROWD

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

If all other happy omens were lacking, we might still be reassured of the theater's convalescence by the encouraging threat of Shakespearean forays into these lately most unclassical regions. For, following Mr. Fritz Leiber's personally conducted excursion now promised for the Wilbur in another week, the greatly extolled Stratford-on-Avon Players, direct from Merrie Olde England herself, will take up a similar task of exhibiting Shakespeare to the multitude two weeks later at the Hollis.

* * *

ALL this points to better days in the playhouses—a greater blending of the arts; an assorted choice of indoor recreation for every diversified taste in entertainment. It may be especially appropriate, therefore, for the drama's Leibergen days to show other wares than fluff, jazz and sex appeal designed to snare the unregenerate and care-free customer. Upon this point Mr. Leiber makes so bold as to insist that Shakespeare, regardless of the professors, whose endorsement, of course, he cherishes, was a great playwright for all classes of people—not just a solemn object of worship for a limited group of bespectacled intellectuals.

Nicholas Young

* * *

AS Mr. Leiber takes the ground that Shakespeare's plays, in their day, were what we call "good theater," there is no reason why their interpretation in these perilous moments of madcap recreation should not be made to enlist the appeal of the average playgoer. Mr. Leiber has set up for himself an interesting task; a job from which the boldest of the drama's teachers might shrink. It appears, however, that the conquest is more than half completed, if not totally. For Leiber alone of American actors remains active and militant in the field of Shakespearean production. Upon his own record, Shakespeare has been made interesting and appealing to the every-day reader of the playbills.

* * *

IF you could listen to Mr. Leiber, you would hear him pleasantly, but convincingly criticize the modern tendency to put Shakespeare on a pedestal at the sacrifice of his humanity as a playwright. Few, if any, writers, he will tell you, have sensed the frailties of life as Shakespeare did, and no one has recorded them so faithfully. It will be seen that Mr. Leiber indulges in no pet illusions as to the saintly qualities of his patron dramatist, he accepts him as just a builder of plays who turned in a better and more poetic job at characterization and story than any writer of his day—or of the centuries that have followed.

* * *

THESE Leiber presentations, we have been more than once reminded, are not to be taken as merely intellectual flights to rarey regions of the drama. Rather they are to be Shakespearean presentations made easy for the casual customer.

It's by No Little Accident That the Merry Widow Hails the New Moon as Good Omen

EVELYN HERBERT

MISS HERBERT is far prettier than the lady supposed to be up in the moon. She is the scintillant lady in "The New Moon" at the Shubert. She is a whole eyeful of beauty.

BEPPIE DE VRIES

MISS DE VRIES is a merry-go-round of vivacity and ability in "The Merry Widow" at the Majestic. She knows how to handle the big role in the world famous Lehar operetta.

JANE TRAYLOR

MISS TRAYLOR has lots to take up her time acting in "Little Accident" at the Plymouth. She is an exceptionally bright and attractive lassie, and is one of the many hits of the show.

LORETTA YOUNG

MISS YOUNG has a big role in "The Careless Age" now to be seen at the Keith-Albee.

GREASE PAINT LURES COHAN

IN 1901 George M. Cohan told Hap Ward (Ward and Vokes) that he intended to gamble his life on Broadway. This he has done. The trick, he always said, is to gamble and not look like a gambler. Twenty-eight years passed, bringing Mr. Cohan one smash hit after another—"Little Johnny Jones," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Over There" are three out of more than 40 — and yet most remote from his mind was the thought that he looked like a gambler. Occasionally, of course, he lost a bet, all part of the game. But look like a gambler—never! For two years he denied right and left that he would act again, and specifically, that he would not appear in his new play, "Gambling," which will be at the Tremont beginning Monday, March 10.

George M. Cohan

The reason he finally gave for making another debut was that he could not find the right actor to fill the leading role, that of a cardman whose foster daughter is mysteriously slain.

RARE MUSIC PLAYED AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

THE program of this weeks' Symphony concerts has been subjected to much buffeting from an unkind fortune and—shall we say?—capricious conductor. But as the list finally emerged it was occasion for one of the finest concerts we have heard in years.

Sibelius' Violin Concerto and his Sixth Symphony retain their places on the list as orginally announced. To begin the concert there is a Bach Organ Prelude and Fugue in E-flat, arranged by Schonberg, and to end it, the Prelude and Loved-Death from "Tristan and Isolde."

The magnificent music of Bach is mated with the magnificent orchestral setting of the arch modernist, Schonberg. Heard here now for the first time, this setting does not do violence to Bach's harmonic or contrapuntal scheme. At first breath the modernism of the orchestration is a bit shocking. But one soon realizes that Schonberg is approaching the master in a thoroughly reverent spirit, and is simply translating the organ music into the language of the modern orchestra, of which he is an outstanding master.

The performance of this work, as of the two Sibelius pieces to follow, was worthy of the orchestra's highest standards. The concerto had as soloist Richard Burgin, concert-master of the orchestra, who played this same music here exactly a year ago. His performance was masterly, despite a regrettable slip in the second movement. His tone seemed broader than on any previous occasion; his disposal of the difficult technical problems with which the concerto abounds was the work of a virtuoso. Of the musical and emotional content he missed not a detail.

Mr. Koussevitzky and the orchestra were eloquent in this concerto and in the following symphony, which was performed here for the first time. It is a "little" symphony, taking yesterday less than half an hour to perform. It is music of such beauty, of such originality, of such stark and naked directness as only Sibelius in our time can write.

The audience was in happy mood throughout the concert, especially after the Burgin performance. The tribute to him was sincere and liberal.

The New Play

MAJESTIC—"The Merry Widow," perhaps the most popular of this generation's musical romances. Now revived as a fitting companion piece to the list of old favorites included in the current Victor Herbert Festival. Made famous by Franz Lehar's haunting melodies. On this occasion, Donald Brian returns to the role that 20 years ago brought him fame and fortune as an unknown youngster of the stage; also in the cast are Beppie De Vries, a Continental songbird, who will make her first Boston appearance; Craig Campbell, Francis Tyler, Oscar Fuyman, Mildred Newman, Ethel Jane Walker, Joseph Barlow and Charles Angle.

TELEPATHY TO HELP SPIES

"THE war spy of the future will inform his army of the movements of the enemy by mental telepathy," declares "Mercedes the Wonderful," now appearing in person at the Scollay Square Olympia. Mercedes backed up the statement with demonstrations of his theory at the conclusion of half an hour of his regular performances, which includes the playing of musical numbers "thought" by members of the audience.

ILLS OF STAGE ANALYZED BY NOTED BOSTON PRODUCER

By E. E. CLIVE

Producer-Actor-Manager at the Copley.

ONE of the questions most frequently put to the theatrical producer concerns itself with the causes to which he attributes the decline of the legitimate stage. Psychologists blame it on the war, industrialists on the stock market, producers on prohibitive costs and the erstwhile theater-goers on the box office.

* * *

OF all these explanations, one of the oftenest heard seems the most logical. To the average family — and they give us our very finest audiences — an evening's entertainment can not come at a price that completely disrupts the weekly budget. First of all, ends must be made to meet, and no matter how skilled the mathematician, 35 and 55 theater seats aren't at all helpful. No wonder they rebel and tune in on the radio. There is, too, a woeful lack of originality in the current drama. "Blue Days" is a huge box office success, and along comes "Indigo Afternoons," with a change of locale its only dissimilarity.

E. E. Clive

And despite the persistence with which they crop up, the public is tired of these age-old sex problems dressed up in a diaphanous bit of chiffon and smacking in every other line of a comic valentine. These devastating problems aren't humorous, they aren't pleasant, they aren't entertaining; they're simply pathological subjects being aired at the expense of theatergoers who have grown tired of them.

The theater is primarily the place to be entertained, not shocked and disgusted by the perverted humor of a super-cynical, self-constituted moralist. The theater needs wit, perhaps, but not vulgarity. After all, it's a stage, not a laboratory.

When we have more and better plays, written by the man or woman who can be clever without sacrificing every other dramatic requirement just for the sake of that cleverness, when the box-office levels aren't over everybody's head, the question will be satisfactorily disposed of.

Pop! Goes the Bootleg Weasel

HARDIE ALBRIGHT

THE FLASK IS a corker. Mr. Albright is making motions preparatory to a drink in "Young Sinners," at the Lyric. (Formerly the B. F. Keith). Sketch is by Artist Schmidt.

THIS MOON IS TRULY EVER SO BRIGHT

TO Boston people who have enjoyed the Schwab and Mandel musical productions of the past few seasons, and particularly "The New Moon," now at the Shubert, it is known that the producers understand the art of embellishing a show with hearty laughs. If, as George M. Cohan says, each laugh in a show is worth a thousand dollars, then each of the Schwab and Mandel shows must be in the million dollar class.

Putting laughs in a musical comedy is not so difficult, although the musical comedies produced by this firm, such as "Queen High," "Good News" and "Follow Thru," all have had twice the chuckles and guffaws of the average show. But sprinkling an operetta with hearty laughter is a more delicate task.

An operetta must be, first of all, romantic. But audiences tire of full evening of romance, no matter how well conceived and how excellently played. It is therefore necessary to relieve the serious scenes with humor. But the humor must not destroy the glamor of the operetta. It is here that Schwab and Mandel have proven excellent showmen. It would not be hard to dot a show with "rags" or interpolated jokes, but this would hardly be in keeping with the atmosphere of a musical play like "The New Moon," or "The Desert Song."

In "The New Moon" there is an abundance of laughter, but there are no so-called gags in the show. All the humor grows out of natural situations in the play, and for that purpose several characters have been created, true to the period of the play, but provided with lines and scenes that are naturally comic. For instance, there is William Sully, as a down-trodden, long-suffering servant, pursued by two unwelcome feminine suitors, who suddenly finds himself in a position of authority over the characters at whose hands he has suffered.

The situation of the beggar on horseback is entirely natural, and the comedy resulting from it provides the audience with many a burst of merriment.

Then there is the character of the French peasant girl suffering from a case of unrequited love, and the engaging ship's boatswain who lords it over the crew, each of whom contributes a fair quota of the evening's laughter.

Plays Remaining

"Young Sinners" at the Lyric. (Second week.) Two youngsters take a fling at life in the Adirondacks with astonishing results.

"The New Moon" at the Shubert. (Third week.) Musical plays like this are what keep your faith alive in the theater.

* * *

"The Ghost Train" at the Copley. (Third week.) A spooky night in a small town railway station. The last week.

* * *

"The Little Show" at the Wilbur. (Fourth week.) Musical revue done in the modern manner. A merry affair. The last week.

* * *

"Little Accident" at the Plymouth. (Seventh week.) The surprise of unexpected fatherhood turned into the year's best comedy.

SIR HARRY LAUDER, who comes to the Colonial Monday, March 10, is a golf "fan."

Harry Lauder

At his estate at Dunoon, Scotland on the Clyde, he has private links, where he invites visitors to share the pleasure of the pastime with him. When playing in London, Sir Harry always lives with Sir Thomas Lipton at the latter's suburban home, and Lauder's spare hours are spent with Sir Thomas on the links. The Duke of York often joins these impromptu golf meets. Lauder has played golf in every civilized country of the world. There is a story that often Sir Harry and the late President Harding had played golf in Washington and the little Scot had won. Someone asked the President what he thought of Lauder's game, and he replied:

"Well, I hadn't the heart to beat him."

JUST A SEVEN "COME 11"

SOMEBODY has "thrown a seven" on Clayton, Jackson and Durante, the night club and musical comedy trio, who provide the fun-and-song relief in Paramount's "Roadhouse Nights," at the Metropolitan.

First of all, each of them has seven letters in his last name. They have been teamed together for seven years. The first week of their partnership netted them exactly 700 dollars. When they started their first night club act they had a four-piece band, which made a total of seven in the act.

Each of the boys wears a size seven hat. Clayton and Jackson wear number seven shoes.

BEAUTY NOT LEAST WEE BIT DUMB

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

WITH Marion Davies as the star, and King Vidor as the director, a superb picture just naturally had to be the outcome. "Not So Dumb" is the production, and it is coming to Loew's State next week. This film is Miss Davies' second talkie, her first having been "Marianne," seen here last fall. Advance word is at hand that the new photoplay is a wow and that its humor sets the peak mark in screendom.

* * *

"NOT So Dumb" is based upon the stage success, "Dulcy," in which Lynn Fontanne had the role now played by Miss Davies. The play deals with ordinary American folks, and the talking picture version is declared to have all the good points of its footlight parent, plus everything that the camera can add to the best of "legit" product. The lines sparkle, the acting is flawless, the photography splendid, the direction is Mr. Vidor's best vein. we are informed. Miss Davies is acclaimed as having again proven her right to her title of being the silver sheet's best comedienne. Her new part is entirely different from that in "Marianne." But let her tell the difference in her own words:

Marion Davies

* * *

"WHEN I played Marianne, I realized that what lines were to be spoken entirely in French must be read perfectly, since many people in the audience would be able to detect flaws. It also was just as important that the girl speak very poor English in the subsequent action. This was not by any means a simple task. It meant learning the lines in pure French and then mixing them up with broken English. In 'Not So Dumb,' I had a different problem to tackle. The heroine is a flapperish little person, body without any great burden of brains to hold her down. I found a voice for her by studying a girl like her whom I know in real life. In every picture I hope to develop a new vocal personality. Difficult? I suppose so. But it's lots of fun as well as work. And when I cease to have fun making pictures, then I won't be making pictures."

"NOT SO DUMB" deals with common American types, their everyday ambitions and their ordinary life. Many persons would not consider this a fertile field for comedy, and yet, if they only stopped to consider that they themselves are part of it, some day try to show, and if they will try to remember how many laughable things cropped up at the office and in their homes, they will see that Mr. Vidor and I are not far wrong in considering the haunts of Babbitt and his brothers as a garden in which good-natured laughter and sympathetic smiles are hung on every bush."

IN the cast supporting Miss Davies are some fine names; witness . Elliott Nugent, Julia Faye, Donald Ogden Stewart, as a few of them.

'MERTON OF THE MOVIES" IS TALKIE, EVEN BY NAME

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service Inc.)

NEW YORK, March 1—"Merton of the Movies" is to have a little brother, as befits a recent addition in the family and one born in 1930; he will be called "Merton of the Talkies." Jack Oakie, Paramount's young white hope, will have the leading role. I assume Merton the 2d will be very much like the "Merton of the Movies" in which Glenn Hunter starred both on the stage and the screen.

Curiously enough "Merton of the Movies" was no great success when it reached the screen simply because so many other companies had used similar ideas, and had taken the edge off the original play. "Made for the Talkies" is something new again, and Paramount will probably show something besides the interior of a studio, which Louella O. Parsons is on all has been seen again and again.

NOAH BEERY must be getting better. When I last heard of him he was in the hospital seriously ill with an appendix operation. But even stubborn appendices have a way of healing, and Noah is well enough now to have one of the important parts in Warner's picture, "See Naples and Die." This is the picture for which they borrowed Charlie King and in which Irene Delroy will play the feminine lead. Lowell Sherman has been signed for an important role. Lowell and his future brother-in-law, John Barrymore, will be working on adjoining stages. Alan Crosland is directing "See Naples and Die" with story by Joseph Jackson and music by Alan Dubin and Joseph Burke.

POLLY WALKER, the gal who emoted in "Hit the Deck," is rumored as Samuel Goldwyn's choice for the leading role opposite Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee." While Polly may not be rating as a Helen of Troy, her voice is said to be the kind that can be depended upon to carry a tune. I don't mean that she is not without her charms, but I mean she, at least to this writer, is not as pulchritudinous as some of our movie beauties. 'Tis said that Sam will not exercise his option on "Bitter Sweet," so that probably means he will go back to his original plan and have Rudolph Friml write an original operetta for Evelyn Laye.

WE can hardly imagine that there was a time when Jesse Lasky was on the vaudeville stage. We always picture him as Jesse Lasky, vice-president of Famous Players-Lasky, and film magnate. Well, Mr. Lasky was on the vaudeville stage and in association with E. A. Rolfe he produced a sketch, "The Red Heads," which, William Le-Baron wrote, if you think that is being buried you don't know your talkies. Out of the dark wrappings of yesterday Pathe has taken this "Red Heads" and they are now planning to make it in technicolor. Charles B. Kaley, who played the lead in "Lord Byron of Broadway" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will have the leading role. Others in the cast are Nat Carr, Joan Gaylord, Katherine Wallace and Janet MacCloud.

AFTER dickering for well nigh onto two months with Paramount, Cyril Maude, famous British actor, has finally consented to come to America and play the lead in "Grumpy." He will have the same role that the late Theodore Roberts played, and if Mr. Maude goes well in the cinema, he may be prevailed upon to remain here and star in "Aren't We All," a stage play as popular as "Grumpy" and with just as many possibilities as a talkie. "Grumpy" will be made in Hollywood this summer. If Mr. Maude goes as well in Hollywood as certain as our other prominent visitors, he may decide to remain with us.

YOU can be Irish and still be English. After that paradoxical statement I better explain that Maureen O'Sullivan, the little Irish girl brought here by the Fox Company to play with John McCormick, has been signed for the ingenue role in "So This is London," Will Rogers' next picture.

While we are on the subject of Fox, I might mention "The Fatal Wedding" is to be produced. George Manker Watters will write the adaptation, continuity and dialogue. William K. Howard has been handed this melodramatic thriller. It should be something to direct.

500 in Chorus for New Modern-Beacon Film

The task of selecting five hundred choristers who could sing and dance was no small part of the talk of casting "The Great Gabbo," which comes to the Modern, Beacon and Egyptian next Saturday.

In "The Great Gabbo," the chorus is featured several times. The black and white number is one of the effective specialties. The "lapdance" number is novel and snappy.

ACTOR LIKES THE BOSTON PURITANS

By THOMAS MITCHELL
In "Little Accident," at the Plymouth.

FIRST of all, I should like to say a word of grateful appreciation for Boston audiences.

Thomas Mitchell

It was not at all difficult to come to this city in so well known a comedy as "Little Accident." I knew this all along—better perhaps, than anyone else connected with the production; for I had played here before in "The Wisdom Tooth" and had found Boston playgoers keen and friendly. Long before we came to the Plymouth, I felt certain that Boston would give us a warm welcome; for, although Boston is still the Puritan capital, its generous support of anything worth while in stage entertainment is proverbial.

I for one had no worries regarding Puritan sentiment. After all, Boston is a seat of culture. For many generations it has been a leading factor in support of everything that is best in American stage annals. That we had what you may call an unconventional comedy consequently did not disturb me. It is one of the traditions in the show business that the Hub, as they call it, is kindly and up-to-date.

As regards "Little Accident," a certain amount of sophistication is desirable to understand the quandary of the bachelor father and to make allowance for what I might call good intentions. That Boston has enjoyed our little play is exactly what I predicted would happen. I felt sure of this when others were in doubt. Ours, after all, is a very human sort of comedy. And that is the main point. That, in fact, is the little secret of the success the play has met ever since it started.

SAWDUST HAS THE LURE

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., who, with Loretta Young and Carmel Myers heads the cast of First National-Vitaphone newest all-star film, "The Careless Age," at the Keith-Albee, hopes some day to join a circus! Perhaps he inherits the acrobatic lure from his famous father, as well as athletic ability.

During the winter young Fairbanks has trained with some of the circus riders and acrobats in Los Angeles. Some of the tricks he learned from them, added to his own large store, he hopes to put into a film of circus life some day in the near future.

"The real thing in circus pictures would be something in sound that would include the noises of all the animals in the menagerie, the announcing, the creak of saddles and trapezes, and all that sort of thing for a sound background," young Doug points out. "Few things are so interesting or varied in the way of sound. Not even cities—for there traffic blots out most of the lesser noises."

Pictures--Variety

WALDRON'S — "Mischief Makers," a Mutual burlesque show. Featured in the cast are Margie Vay, Harry Meyers and Milt Frankford. Also two all-talking pictures.

BOWDOIN—"Chasing Rainbows," with Charles King and Bessie Love; "The Girl From Woolworth's," with Alice White, and other screen features. Also vaudeville.

GLOBE—"Hot for Paris" and "The Sacred Flame" for four days; starting Thursday, "Murder on the Roof" and "Pointed Heels," featuring Helen Kane and William Powell.

Famous Actress to Speak on Stage Art

With the South End Music School as beneficiary, Mrs. Patrick Campbell will have a matinee at Jordan Hall next Saturday. She will talk informally on 'Beautiful Speech and the Art of Acting," and supplement the discourse with scenes from her successes.

Baldassare Ferlazzo

Baldassare Ferlazzo, violinist, will give a concert in Jordan Hall on Thursday evening, March 27, at 8:15.

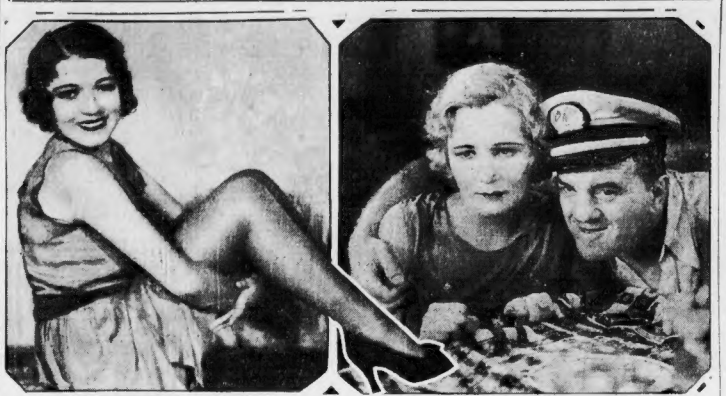
Looking Ahead

MARCH 10—
George M. Cohan in "Gambling" at the Tremont.
Fritz Leiber in Shakespearean repertoire at the Wilbur.
Sir Harry Lauder at the Colonial.
"A Night Off" at the Copley.

MARCH 17—
"The Chocolate Soldier" at the Majestic.

MARCH 24—
Stratford-on-Avon Festival Company at the Hollis.

Even Sorrow's Sombre Face May Change to Happy Smile



MARION "PEANUTS" BYRON

MISS BYRON has won fame as a screen dancer. She is aide to Alice White in "Playing Around" at the Scollay Sq. Olympia. She's petite and peppy.

KAY JOHNSON—LOUIS WOLHEIM

MR. WOLHEIM IS of course the villain and Miss Johnson the victim. They're in "The Ship From Shanghai" at Loew's Orpheum. The villainous fellow seems to be gloating.

EVEN "PROPS" SHED TEARS

ACCORDING to newspaper canons, when a man bites a dog, that's news. And according to motion picture studio standards, when a hard-boiled crew of electricians, property men, carpenters and "gripes" weep during the filming of a dramatic scene, that's news, too. And that's just what happened during the making of the talking picture, "Her Unborn Child," now at the Fenway. The story of "Her Unborn Child" is a deft mixture of pathos and comedy. In the cast are Adele Ronson, Pauline Drake, Frances Underwood, Harry Davenport, Paul Clare, Elisha Cook, Jr., Elizabeth Wragge and Doris Rankin.

Doris Rankin

Stanley Lichtenstein

Stanley Lichtenstein, tenor, will give a song recital in Jordan Hall on Saturday afternoon, March 29. Mr. Lichtenstein is a pupil of Charles Hackett.

Something in His Eye, Maybe

JOHN MACK BROWN—MARY NOLAN

MISS NOLAN SEEMS to be trying to find what is registered on Mr. Brown's retina. These two stars are seen and heard in "Underdog," feature film now at the Park.

MISS BOW IN SEA FILM

THE REPERTORY, starting tomorrow and playing through next week, is making a revival of the beautiful and alluring "Down to the Sea in Ships." It was in this film that a young girl, now the celebrated Clara Bow, made her first success. It was her first real role. It is of interest to know that this film has been shown in every part of the world and has been a tremendous box office triumph. In 1922 a number of New Bedford men formed a corporation with a capital of $200,000 paid in cash to produce a film that should record the scenes of the days when whaling as an industry was at its height. The film was produced in that year, the entire production being made in New Bedford.

Clara Bow

Every scene has as its setting the houses, grounds, streets, and interiors that have come down to us unchanged from the days when the whaling industry flourished.

JUNGLE FOLK SURE 'FALL' FOR BEADS

THE Davenport-Quigley expedition, which took the motion picture of "Jango," now being presented at Tremont Temple, suffered many hardships and had numerous interesting experiences. Clashes with elephants, leopards and other beasts of the jungle were of frequent occurrence. But the chief obstacle, however, that they encountered was the reluctance of the natives to be photographed by the camera. By means of much wheedling and the presentation of beads, mirrors, knives and other objects which they coveted, Dr. Davenport finally succeeded in making pictures of native ceremonies which had never before been witnessed by white men.

Dr. Daniel Davenport

On one occasion the party nearly died of thirst while crossing the Bulsan. A supply of water had been taken which should have been sufficient to carry them across the desert of Abyssinia. Two servants (missionary trained) decided that they needed a bath and used up the water in three great goatskin containers for the purpose. As a punishment the two transgressors were made to dig for water, as the character of the sand indicated its presence below the surface. At twenty feet of depth they struck the precious fluid, which was desperately needed.

Gridiron Hero Gets Motion Picture Job

From national gridiron hero to screen idol! That is the achievement of John Mack Brown, who plays the lead opposite Mary Nolan in "Undertow" at the Park.

A few years ago Brown was star halfback on the University of Alabama eleven, and the acclaim showered upon him because of his sensational plays made him a national hero. He went to Hollywood for a visit and a screen test, made more as a novelty than for any other reason, led to his being immediately cast in "Sugie Call."

Burlesque Changes

HOWARD — "Bowery Burlesquers," featuring Clyde Bates and Rehe Almond. On the screen, "Speedway," with Anita Page and William Haines, and "Lady of the Pavements." Vaudeville and short screen subjects.

GAYETY—"Big Revue," a Mutual burlesque attraction, featuring Lillian Dixon. Included in the cast are "Cheri," a dancer; also Fred Reeb and Phil Harr, comedians. Special numbers by Holub's jazz orchestra

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

BOSTON, SATURDAY, MARCH 1, 1930

2D SECTION

A Tense Serial of Love, Romance of Today

CHAPTER 43

A MINUTE later Tom backed his car out of the driveway and drove away at top speed.

And a minute after that Lovejoy was at the telephone calling Steve Oglebay's number.

"Hello, Steve," she said when he answered her ring. "I want to ask you something and I want you to give me a perfectly honest answer—Steve, did you truly mean what you said to me the other night?"

"Every word of it," he said promptly. "You know that without asking. . . . What's happened?"

Lovejoy cleared her throat. "Everything here has gone to smash," she told him, "and I wanted to be sure I could bank on you—I'll call you tomorrow. Good night, Steve."

She hung up the receiver, and then she called a taxicab.

Ten minutes later she was on her way to Aunt Em.

She found her alone in the big homelike flat, with a glass pitcher of lemonade on a table beside her and a great stack of old newspapers on the floor at her feet.

Aunt Em seemed never to find time to read the papers the day they were printed. She was always saving them up to look over on the evenings when Uncle James went out to his lodge-meeting.

She was all excitement now over something that she had just read in a paper two weeks old.

"Dear me!" she said to Lovejoy, looking at her from over the rims of her glasses. "They say that Lindbergh and that girl he's going to marry are at her father's home—"

"Why, he's married her! He married her a week ago!" Lovejoy interrupted her with a laugh. "Aunt Em, why don't you look over the papers when they come?—You never know what's going on in the world until it's all over!"

"Don't you laugh at me!" snapped Aunt Em with a spurt of sudden anger. "If I want to read the news when it's a year old it's none of your business—There ain't been anything worth reading about anyway since the Queen of Roumania's trip to America!—Now, then, what's on your mind?"

Lovejoy sat down on the stack of old papers as if it were a floor cushion. She clasped her hands with their pink, glittering nails on Aunt Em's gray poplin knee.

"Aunt Em, I'm going to leave Tom," she said abruptly.

Aunt Em's glasses dropped into her lap and her mouth popped open with astonishment.

"God, bless my soul!" she exclaimed. "Whatever foolishness is this you're telling me?"

Lovejoy shook her head. "It's not foolishness. It's the truth," she said. "We've been quarreling and fighting with each other for months—and we've both come to the end of it. Things were going on before Norrie came to live with us—and now they're impossible."

"Norrie?" repeated Aunt Em. And I told-you-so gleam came into her sharp eyes. "I just knew you'd be getting jealous of Norrie! I told James a week ago Sunday that I was sorry I'd ever suggested getting Norrie into your house!—And even he noticed that she never big Tom get out of bed right the first thing. I'm sorry for her!"

Lovejoy went on with her story. She told Aunt Em about her meetings with Steve Oglebay and about the letters she had kept for Aline. She left out nothing, from beginning to end.

Aunt Em's eyes were bright with interest when she finished. Here was something that had the Queen of Rumania's visit backed off the map!—Here was a news story right in the middle of her own family!—A divorce story!

But all at once the bright interest died out of her eyes, and her lips came together with a snap.

After a moment or two she opened them with a question: "But she baby—what are you going to do about the baby?"

"Ah now they were getting down to brass tacks, thought Lovejoy. Now they were getting down to the problem that she had brought to Aunt Em to solve for her!

"I thought perhaps you'd take the baby," she was beginning when Aunt Em stopped her.

"No, indeed, I shan't take the baby!" she snipped off the words with her thin lips. "I took you when you were a little girl, but I was young and strong then. I'm far too old to take care of a child now, and your uncle and I haven't much money. . . . Besides, a child ought to be with its own mother!"

She stood up, groaning a little with the pain and stiffness in her old bones.

"No, wonder you were so quick and airy about a divorce!" she said. "Thinking that all you had to do was dump the baby on me and rush off to tell the judge about it!—You'd just better think twice about leaving Tom, young woman! That blessed baby needs a home and it isn't its fault that its mother and father have been acting the fool!"

Lovejoy got up from her stack of newspapers.

"I never thought you'd throw me down, Aunt Em," she said, "like this."

She went home that night feeling that she had only one real friend in the world—Stephen Oglebay.

The next morning she made up her mind to go to see Steve.

Steve would tell her just what to do. He would tell her what to do about the baby—and where to get a good lawyer.

I suppose it's immoral to go to the man I expect to marry with all this, she thought, looking out at the summer rain that ran in streams down the window panes. But where else can I go?

Aunt Em certainly had failed her.

Sought Arrest in Taxi 'Test' Case in Vain

The question of whether the statutes give the police commissioner power to grant taxicab stand permits will be the subject of a report to be made within a week or 10 days by Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman.

This report was sought as a result of threats of a policeman to arrest Councillor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., for parking his private car on a taxi stand on State st. This was revealed at the opening hearing of the Council's investigating committee.

Councillor Wilson disclosed the story that he had urged the traffic officer to prosecute him as he sought to carry a "test" case to the Supreme Court for a definite decision, but without avail.

Power to grant taxi stand permits rested with the street commission, but the commission remained complacent when Police Commissioner Wilson usurped the authority, Rep. Finnegan said, quoting previous testimony of Chairman Thomas J. Hurley of the street commission.

He declared that the president of one of the favored taxi companies reported that the company paid 2 per cent of its gross revenue of $1,250,000 to hotels and railroads for stand privileges. "That's $20,000 a year," said the representative.

Chairman Wilson insisted that the fees should be paid to the city, if at all, and he was supported by the other members of the committee, comprising Councillors McGrath, Donovan, Ruhy and Mahoney.

Seeking to end the practise of giving special cab companies monopoly of stands to the exclusion of independent owners and private operators in the public streets, the committee asked Corporation Counsel Silverman to find the source of authority for such action so that steps may be taken to repeal it, either through action of the City Council or the Legislature. Upon receipt of the legal report, the committee will resume its public hearings.

DRUG AGENTS SAFE HERE

The dispatches from Washington indicating a widespread shakeup in the Federal Narcotic force throughout the entire country will not seriously affect the local narcotic force to any extent.

Dr. H. H. Wouters, chief of the Federal Narcotic agents of New England, with headquarters in the Federal Building, is considered one of the most efficient narcotic leaders. He was assigned to the local office on July 1, 1929, and since then has done, it is said, as much as was done in the 12 months preceding his arrival.

Among his achievements was a cleanup of a notorious "Little Brooklyn" gang of wholesale and retail drug pedlers.

Medford Police Hunt Narcotic Pedlar

The man, described as six feet tall, and about 35 years of age called at the home of Mrs. Eleanor Pagina at Wellesley st. and tried to sell the woman some dope. The pedlar also solicited trade on the street.

GARRETT HAS NEIGHBORS IN PANIC

Cries From Pain After Extraction of Teeth Brings Police to His Home

Plans are proceeding for the opening of hearings in the investigation of the activities of Oliver B. Garrett, Monday morning at 10:30, although whether Garrett, himself, will be able to attend remains in doubt as a result of the sudden illness which precipitated a furore in the vicinity of his Allston home.

The enigma of Garrett, pensioned Boston police raider, which has stirred public curiosity and official inquiry and so far has defied explanation, was further involved with the arrest of his butler for driving an automobile without a license.

This occurrence, together with his attack of illness has served to raise interest in the forthcoming investigation to a fever pitch.

REPORTED CRAZED

Garrett, suffering, it is, reported, from the effects of novocaine administered for a dental operation, seemed to go suddenly delirious at his home in Park Vale ave., Allston, and his cries and shouts led to the report that he had gone out of his mind.

Alarmed neighbors telephoned to the Brighton police station and three patrolmen were rushed to the Garrett home to investigate. Some reports were to the effect that Mrs. Garrett had called for them, but this the ex-patrolman's wife denied. Later it was said that her sister, Mrs. Helen Beck of Garden st., had sent in the call.

Upon the arrival of the police, Garrett had recovered sufficiently to require no further attention, but is reported still to be on the verge of collapse.

Another incident, commanding even more attention in official quarters than his illness, was the arrest of his hostler.

NAMES PEDLER

The arrest took place in Everett, and the man gave his name as Norman Mosely. He pleaded guilty in the Malden court to operating a car without a license, paid a fine and left.

Within 20 minutes Garrett appeared on the scene and inquired for Norman T. Magee of South Weymouth, who, he said, was his hostler. In Magee's possession, it was said by Everett police, was a registration of a car owned by Garrett.

In a police checkup of the fictitious name of "Mosely," proprietors of a Massachusetts ave. malt and hops shop, declared that Magee was well known to them. Federal police are said to be interested.

QUESTIONS BARRED

While these events overshadowed the preparations for the opening of the probe, Attorney-General Warner was busy lining up his case and made several rulings as to procedure, one of which bars Garrett or his counsel from direct interrogation of the witnesses.

Due to the illness of the ex-raider, no statement on this angle of the probe could be obtained.

The Original Kidnaper

Kidnaping Eagle in Harvard Collection

The original baby kidnaper among birds has just been given to Harvard. It is called the bearded lammergeier, and is included in the LaTouche collection of Chinese birds presented to the Agassiz museum of comparative zoology.

The bird receives its name from the old German dialect word lammergeier, which meant lamb chaser or robber, or warrier. It is large and powerful and could easily have killed sheep. It is probably due to this fact that folk stories originated of children being carried off by immense eagles, as this bird is of the eagle family.

A tuft of black, bristling hairs just in back of its beak closely resembles a beard.

This bird, found for many years in the Alps in Switzerland, is now totally extinct there. It builds its nest in high crags in the rocks. It is still very often found in China and all through the mountains of Central Asia, as far west as the Caucasus.

Several enormous specimens of the bearded lammergeier are included in the collection of 8000 Chinese birds given to Harvard.

In charge of the work of classifying these specimens is Outram Bangs, curator of birds in the Agassiz Museum, who has been a member of the department of comparative zoology for more than 36 years.

This collection contains specimens from eastern and southern China and was gathered by J. D. LaTouche, formerly a member of the Chinese Postal service. It is the result of over 40 years of collecting.

During this time LaTouche was stationed at a number of different posts and with the assistance of his Chinese whom he had trained especially in the preparation of specimens, he amassed this collection which is not equalled by any collection of Chinese birds either here or abroad.

It forms the basis for his Handbook of Birds of Eastern China, of which five parts have now appeared.

PROBLEM TO IDENTIFY LINGERIE

West Roxbury Families Claim Clothes Thefts Have Been Going on Five Months

In the arrest of a father and two daughters as the clothesline thieves who have stolen clothes worth $60 from lines in West Roxbury in the last five months, police believe they have solved a perplexing case.

John G. McLeod, 60, of Bellevue st., West Roxbury, was arrested after Special Officer Martin F. Kelly searched his home and found clothes that were identified by victims of the clothesline thievery.

His two daughters, Mrs. Helen Hurley, 22, and Miss Isabella McLeod, 18, were charged with larceny and the receiving of stolen property.

For the last five months West Roxbury families have had their clotheslines stripped of all the clothing left out after dark. Among the victims was Mark R. Mulvey of 335 Park st., West Roxbury, custodian of the Boston schools, whose bathrobe was stolen some time ago.

As it was a cherished gift he advertised for it and received mail from all over New England, the writers saying they had seen the bathrobe hanging on neighbor's lines. He readily identified a robe found at the McLeod home as his.

The police had much difficulty in obtaining identification of women's lingerie included in the alleged loot. When a blushing officer would hold up pieces of lingerie for closer inspection ownership was promptly denied, especially if the garments contained holes.

Police said the father of the girls said that he had committed the robberies. Both of the daughters claimed that they had bought the clothes. It is alleged.

However, police charged that linen found in the house bore laundry marks of some of the people whose clothes were stolen.

McLeod and both of his daughters will be arraigned in the West Roxbury District Court charged with larceny and the receiving of stolen property on March 7.

COLLEGE GIRLS LAUDED

The college student of today abhors the "collegiate," the exceptional college spirit, and impromptu group activities, said President Ada L. Comstock of Radcliffe, addressing alumnae of the college at a meeting of Radcliffe representatives.

This feeling, President Comstock added, expresses itself in decreased attendance at athletic contests and loss of interest in amateur theatricals and group meetings.

This generation, so aptly described as "decent and dauntless," she said, a sense of adventure instead of the snugness of the '90's.

The modern college girl represents, not one type, as formerly, but every variety from the wealthy merchant to the girl from the poorest and most uncultured home.

Yachtsmen to Plan for Tercentenary

At a meeting at the Boston Yacht Club, attended by 71 delegates of the Massachusetts Bay Yacht Clubs' Association, William Carleton, representative of the Massachusetts Bay Colony Tercentenary Commission, asked the association to lay before the commission its plans for the marine tercentenary celebration.

The association directed its tercentenary committee, headed by ex-Commodore George H. Voter, to meet the commission as soon as possible.

The plans of the committee provide for a water pageant which will extend through several weeks and will include entries from all over the United States.

NEW INQUIRY IS DEMANDED INTO COAST GUARD MYSTERY DEATH

'SECRECY' OF OFFICIALS ASSAILED

Atty. Crooker Asks Reopening of Harris Shooting Probe, Claiming Rum Plot

Charging that coast guard officials have adopted a policy of secrecy and that the widow of Victor L. Harris, coast guardsman who was found dead in his bunk aboard the CG-152, February 1, may be deprived of the six months pay that should be here if Harris died in line of duty, Atty. Conrad A. Crooker of the Liberal Civil League has demanded a new inquiry into the death.

Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath found Harris committed suicide by shooting. The dead coast guardsman's relatives, however, have engaged Atty Crooker to demand the new inquiry and that Crooker be permitted to cross-examine witnesses to prove the contention that Harris was "put on the spot" by members of a rum ring.

After Comdr. H. R. Searles, commandant of the coast guard in this district, informed Atty. Crooker that he had nothing to say and that the case was closed so far as his office was concerned, counsel for Harris' relatives appealed by letter to Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the entire department.

PLAYS OFFICIALS

In his letter to the commandant of the coast guard service, Atty. Crooker said:

"Every possible effort was made by the local representatives of your service to prevent public knowledge of Harris' death and it was only through some leak on the part of enlisted personnel that press representatives learned of the incident late in the night of Monday, Feb. 3.

"Secrecy, concealment, refused to talk and the general attitude of hostility to our perfectly natural inquiry has only strengthened suspicion already aroused in the minds of my clients that Harris was not a suicide but that he was in fact murdered by some person or persons as yet undisclosed.

"As you are well aware he was preliminary responsible for the capture off Boston Light on the night of Dec. 25 of the Irena C, a rum runner, and was an important witness for the Government in the prosecution of this case.

CITES STREET ATTACK

"I have every reason to believe that a mysterious attack, made upon Harris on the public streets subsequent to the Irena C's capture, was part of an attempt to place Harris temporarily in a position where he could not be used as a witness against the Irena C's rum runners."

In a letter to Crooker, Admiral Billard said that a separate action in this case has been instituted through the Department of Justice. Until this report has been made it will be impossible, Admiral Billard said, to supply any information other than that given by Commander James A. Alger of the East Boston coast guard base.

Many in Peril as Truck Overturns

Several persons, including a mother and baby, had narrow escapes when a two-ton truck, loaded with coke, broke a rear axle on Dorchester ave., near Gibson st., Dorchester, while traveling down a slight incline. It careened toward the sidewalk, missed striking a tree and an Elevated electric pole and then turned over on its side at the curbing.

The truck was operated by Harry C. Shepmoes, who was accompanied by his helper, Michael Gramolin.

A woman pushing a baby carriage just had time to leave the spot and a group of school children also scattered a scant moment before the truck struck the curbing.

Gave Boy to Country

Mrs. Flora Gaillac of 16 Blossom st., Chelsea, is another Gold Star mother. Her son, Emile, not 21 when he enlisted, was the first of his outfit, 101st Engineers, to die in France. The seal of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, cast by her son while he was a student there, is one of Mrs. Gaillac's treasures. (Staff photo.)

Chelsea Boy Leader Even in Death

Mothers were the "second line of defense" in the World War, as in all wars. Now the government is going to send to France, that they may view the last resting place of their hero sons, the Gold Star mothers of America, those mothers whose sons made the supreme sacrifice. Today the Boston Evening American presents the fifth in a series of biographical sketches of heroes who gave their lives in the war—sketches made by the Gold Star mothers or widows themselves.

Emile Bertrand Gaillac of Chelsea was a natural leader.

Although not 21 when he enlisted for engineering service in the A. E. F., this honor student from Massachusetts Institute of Technology had already achieved a brilliant record.

This record was further advanced when the 101st Engineers of the 26th Division were sent to the Wentworth Institute for some special training before sailing for France.

Not only did Emile shine as a student in this course, but also he was one of six men out of more than 1800 who were highly commended for "special excellence as instructors."

While Emile's military and college comrades knew he was one man in a thousand to his mother, Mrs. Flora Gaillac of 16 Blossom st., he was a man in a million.

"He was my only son," she said, "but he was a wonderful boy."

This boy was the first of his outfit to die in France, and one of the very first of all Tech men to make the supreme sacrifice.

Emile had been in France only a few days when he became ill with pneumonia and died.

"His death was as much a soldier's death as any that later followed," comrades wrote.

Emile early showed his genius at Chelsea High school, where he stood at the top.

"He was business manager of the school paper," recalled his mother.

Emile also was class orator and honor man. At M. I. T., he won one of the highest scholarships ever awarded.

There he was prominent in the Aero club, Mechanical Engineering Society and the Tech Christian Society.

"He was religious and of high ideals," his mother said.

One of the achievements of this boy was his casting of the college seal, as shown in the accompanying photograph.

The boy spent a great deal of time in making this copy, which was hailed at the institute as perfect work. A strange angle to this boy's history is that the State of Massachusetts apparently is unaware of his military career. In the Gold Star Record book of the 5000 or more listed, no mention is made of Emile.

This is evidently an error on the part of some one compiling the book, for the boy is specially mentioned in two other volumes.

In the war book of the 101st Engineers, attention was called to Emile's death as the first of his outfit.

In the M. I. T. record book on the alumni who served in France, Emile's photograph and his service record is given.

"I hope they'll put my boy in the book in the next edition," said his mother.

On Monday the Boston Evening American will tell of a Gold Star Mother who sent three sons to France and only two came back. The third was recommended for a Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in voluntarily rushing a machine gun nest. The boy was Corp. Gavin R. McIver.

More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

WILKINS PARTY ABOARD SHIP N. Y. BOUND

By CAPT SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Hearst-Wilkins Antarctic Expedition

Universal Service Special Cable
Montevideo, Uruguay, March 1

We are all now safely aboard the line, British Prince at the port of Montevideo. Reception in Montevideo was wonderful.

The text of this dispatch was written today aboard a New York-Buenos Aires airplane, flying from Rio to Montevideo. On this trip I learned that all heroes are not necessarily engaged out of the war places.

In a high wind and pouring rain through which we could see scarcely 100 yards, Pilot John Shannon of the N. Y. R. B. A. Line made two trips to Montevideo from Buenos Aires through weather that was much too bad for flying. The second trip was made especially that I might catch the earliest possible boat for New York. Shannon risked his plane beside the Eastern Prince so that I might join Cheesman Porter and Cramer.

We were late for the sailing deadline, but Hoodoo Brothers, the shipping agents, held up the boat for us. Yesterday, in almost a bad weather, Cheesman and Porter flew over the San Francisco, one of the prettiest ships on the Antarctic, and we crossed to the Prince.

This enabled me to deliver both of our machines to the N. Y. R. B. A. airport where they will be stored until the contract for their use is made with the Argentine director of aviation is completed.

All our flying equipment has by the contract been sold to the civil authorities of the Argentine government. We are now free and happy to start our homeward journey to New York.

We have been treated with every courtesy by the officials in Montevideo and Buenos Aires. The N. Y. R. B. A. airline officials especially have been helpful and obliging.

The Aero club of Argentina yesterday invited us to attend a welcoming luncheon at the airport, where, as the time was too short for great preparations, they made me a beautiful and presented me with the club insignia.

Our next commute to New York will not be idle, for, since starting home, we have been too busy to complete our reports. These will be finished aboard ship.

LUTHERANS IN AND ABOUT BOSTON

NUMBERS

According to Lutheran figures there are 81,000,000 Lutherans in the world, 86,000,000 other Protestants and 258,000,000 Catholics; 4,000,000 Lutherans in the United States—about equal to the Presbyterians.

"PURE LUTHERANISM"

Pastor Volk of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, 91 West Newton st., represents the large Missouri synod. His people are German-Americans and hold closely to the Augsburg Confession. This synod does not believe in mixing with other faiths or other branches of the Lutherans. "We would keep our religion pure," says Pastor Volk.

LUTHERAN WOMEN

The Finnish division of the Lutheran church is beginning to give women some small part in the church management. Most other Lutherans, especially the Missouri synod, hold strictly to the biblical advice of St. Paul, for the women to keep silent in the churches.

1100 YEARS AGO

All Lutherans, the world over, will commemorate in June the 1100th anniversary of what is known as the Augsburg Confession. It was then that the Lutheran church, as it is known, came into existence, and definitely broke from the Catholic faith. Swedish Lutherans will also celebrate the 400th anniversary of the coming of Christianity into Sweden, brought by St. Ansgarius. The Pentecost of Christianity, the birth of the church 1900 years ago, is still another celebration for Lutherans together with other Christians.

N. E. CONFERENCE

Pastor S. G. Hagglund, Ph.D., B. N. O., of the Vasa Swedish Lutheran church, Rochester, is president of the New England conference, in which there are 82 congregations divided into four districts, Boston, Hartford, Worcester and Providence.

ZION EVANGELICAL

There are communicants who belong to the Zion church on West Newton at from 43 districts of Greater Boston. The membership is 800. It is the mother church, from which went three or four other churches, belonging to the Missouri synod. There are bilingual services in this Zion church—German and English. "Our purposes," said Pastor Volk, "are 1—to conserve the faith of Lutherans. 2—restoration of those who have been baptized, and our missionary projects at home and abroad. These are, I believe, about 50 per cent of all citizens of Greater Boston who are unchurched," he said.

"Who Is the Biggest Fool in Dorchester?" is the title of the subject of the message at the Bisney Memorial Baptist Church, Dorchester, tomorrow night by the pastor, Rev. Eugene Dunsmore Dolloff

Thirty-four Lutheran churches of Greater Boston are a part of the largest single denomination of the Protestant world. There are almost as many Lutherans as there are all other Protestants combined. The Scandinavian countries are 95 per cent Lutheran, and there are 4,000,000 in the United States, making them fourth in America. The sect is, however, divided into many groups and synods, largely according to nationality. Fundamentally all believe alike on great issues. The four clergymen above represent the three leading synods to be found in New England.

UNITED SYNOD

The Rev. N. D. Goehring, who lives at 7 Buckingham place Cambridge, is a member of the United Lutheran Synod with three churches in Greater Boston. He is employed by the National Lutheran Council made up from the Augustana, United and other synods. He looks after the spiritual interests of Lutheran students in Greater Boston, and often holds meetings in his own home. He is starting a campaign to raise $50,000 for a Lutheran chapel in Cambridge, to be erected on land already owned. Pastor Goehring is a member of the Student Pastors Committee of Boston, made up of ministers of many denominations and church workers.

BROOK-FARM ORPHANAGE

On the famous Brook Farm of West Roxbury is an orphanage owned and run by the Missouri Synod conference of New England and Hope once preached and taught America's most famous literary lights. Now 50 children are cared for in the same spot. There is another home for children at Avon supported by the Augustana conference.

BOSTON CONFERENCE

Pastor John E. Nelson, D. D. of the First Lutheran Church on Walnut st. from 43 districts of Greater Boston. The membership is 800. It is the mother church, from which went three or four other churches, belonging to the Missouri synod. There are bilingual services in this Zion church—German and English. "Our purposes," said Pastor Volk, "are 1—to conserve the faith of Lutherans. 2—restoration of those who have been baptized, and our missionary projects at home and abroad. What Lutherans Believe

By REV. S. G. HAGGLUND

THE Lutheran church has been more or less fashioned by the national characteristics of the races where it has operated and there are some differences between the several groups of the church, but all accept the Bible as the Word of God. All believe in justification by faith alone. All know and accept Luther's small Catechism, that matchless little book which has been their chief text-book in Christianity for 100 years. Moreover, all Lutherans recognize that the boundary lines of the external and visible church organization do not always coincide with the invisible and spiritual boundary of the real church, the Communion of Saints, where there is one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, and where Christ is the one great central fact.

The Lutheran church is a Biblical and Christocentric church. It aims to take a middle ground, avoiding extremes, to the right and to the left. It is conservatively progressive, emphasizing the importance of the altar as well as that of the pulpit.

GOVERNMENT

The Lutheran Church is congregational in polity. Each congregation is democratically controlled Unlike some of the European synods, there is in America no bishops but presidents, deacons, elders etc. All males over 21 have the vote.

LUTHERAN RELIEF

The Missouri synod believes, as expressed by Pastor Volk: "We stand for the substitutionate, vicarial imputation of the Bible, for the Deity of Jesus Christ, salvation by faith and in the redeeming blood of the cross."

Editor's Note:
From time to time the church page will specialize on some one of Boston's many denominations with the hope that many readers now ignorant of what our citizens believe and how their worship may become more sympathetic and friendly.

COLLECTION FOR POPE PIUS XI

An official communication has been sent to all Catholic churches by Cardinal O'Connell asking that tomorrow's collections be made for Pope Pius XI.

In his appeal the Cardinal says: "Once each year an appeal is made to the faithful of the diocese on behalf of our Holy Father, the Pope, for it is the sacred duty of all Catholics to give practical manifestation of their love and loyalty to the Vicar of Christ by their generosity."

Old South Forum Continues Free

Extra publicity given the Old South forum in connection with a vote taken by trustees this week is expected to bring a large attendance at the meeting tomorrow afternoon when Miss Blanche Yurka, the well known Ibsen actress, will deliver an address on "The Social Importance of Good Theatre." Miss Yurka obtained her stage experience under David Belasco, E. H. Sothern and John Barrymore, and was at one time a member of the Repertory Theater of this city. Three-fifteen is the time of the opening of the meeting and all seats are free.

Final Recital by W. E. Zeuch Monday

The final recital in William E. Zeuch's Sunday afternoon "Hour of Organ Music" will be given tomorrow at 4:30 p. m. at First Church, Boston, corner of Berkeley and Newbury sts.

The program, which consists entirely of transcriptions from the works of Beethoven, begins with the ever-popular Prelude to Lohengrin," includes the "Tannhauser" Overture and closes with the Grand Marche on the organ, "Ride of the Valkyries." This latter piece has proved one of the great favorites with Mr Zeuch's audiences.

Jimmy Johnston Starts Poisoned Glove Alibi for Scott

SHARKEY WINS SAVES FACE OF EXPERTS

By NICK FLATLEY

MIAMI, Fla., March 1.—Whether it was a punch on the thigh or a punch in the eye, a smack on the chin or a kick on the shin, the pennies have now been placed on Phil Lupo's eyes.

Those who stayed at home and looked idly from the window missed something, as is usually the case. Sure Jack was expected to lay Phillip Scott away, but hardly with the severity of a cannibal. He wrote Scott's obituary with a cruelly heavy left hand.

There are sinister whisperings around that some cord had been rubbed on Sharkey's left glove just before the second round started, and James J. Johnston, who manages Scott started to babble. At various times in the past year Sabe and heavy material was described as a stuff that had been placed in gloves but this is an entirely new idea.

It had the effect of binding Phillips to fitted Johnston in his usually loud voice but he soon died away to a murmur when some unkind person inquired how a smart second such as Johnston is reputed to be would allow such goings-on to take place under his beaming nose.

SOME mention was also made of foul blows being struck, and the thing being whether against Scott not you may be that down to the house tally of a disappointed issue Scott had so much chance with Sharkey as you'd give pa would have with Primo Carnera or Dempsey.

It was just as well that Sharkey won, for the experts who gathered from all parts of the world to cover the heavyweight battle for Sharkey. The American champion has beaten every boxer who has tried to stop his march of Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, was signed to box Sharkey in Detroit last summer, but refused to go through with the match.

THE Eddie Mack special will start rolling back to Boston tonight. The special which will take the newspaper writers back to New York will also leave here tonight.

THE gang has had an opportunity to make a little whoopee since the fight and now everybody is anxious to get home.

FLORIDA is a marvelous spot, but that song which holds that there is no place like home still goes.

SHARKEY has a house here and says he will remain in Miami Beach until April 1, but I'll wager a new against a bit with anybody that he'll be back in Chestnut Hill long before that date.

JOHNNY BUCKLEY and his family will be starting north in a week to 10 days.

"Yeah, I'm not going to be left down here all alone and go reading home next week. A few more games of golf, a few dips in the surf and I'll be with don my heavy henny once more."

St. Joe's Pure Bouts to Start at 7:30

Because of the biggest entry list of the season, Bill Cuddy announces that the St. Joe's amateur tourney tonight in Mechanics Building will start at 7:30 p. m. In all there will be at least 42 bouts, with action slated in the 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175-pound classes, all for novices.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 1.—"The boys and girls are once more taking their daily dip in the surf here and are already beginning to cease talk about the Battle of the Palms," said Mr. Boston today.

After all, this is a great vacation spot, and a heavyweight fight is merely an incidental happening.

I found Jimmy Johnston, Scotts manager, entrenched on the lawn in front of the Dade Hotel, still prating about the fistic qualifications of his Philip.

I felt ashamed of the fact I was an Englishman when I saw the poor exhibition of boxing put up by Scott" said Norman Hurst, English sports writer. "Scott didn't act or look like a fighter."

Let him go back to England and never return to this country," chimed a chorus of voices.

"My Philip," pressed Jimmy Johnson.

And so it went for an hour.

"REFEREE LOU MAGNOLIA then sent out a statement in which he stated that the only low blow delivered by Sharkey was a punch to the thigh which didn't cause any great amount of injury. He also called attention to the fact Jimmy Johnston had agreed that Scott could not win the fight on a foul.

"Magnolia stated that the knockout punch was delivered to the body and that he did not go through the formality of counting Scott out as the British champion told him he was unable to continue.

"THE gross receipts of the show were $196,252, while the net gate after payment of a federal ticket tax of $31,536 amounted to $164,716. There were 18,782 paid admissions and 2378 complimentary tickets.

Sharkey received 25 per cent of the proceeds, which gave him $80,423, while Scott pulled down $52,313, which represented 20 per cent of the gate.

"MOST of the sport writers here approved of Johnny Buckley's statement claiming the world's heavyweight title for Sharkey. The American champion has beaten every boxer who has tried to stop his march of Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, was signed to box Sharkey in Detroit last summer, but refused to go through with the match.

"THE Eddie Mack special will start rolling back to Boston tonight. The special which will take the newspaper writers back to New York will also leave here tonight.

"FLORIDA is a marvelous spot, but that song which holds that there is no place like home still goes.

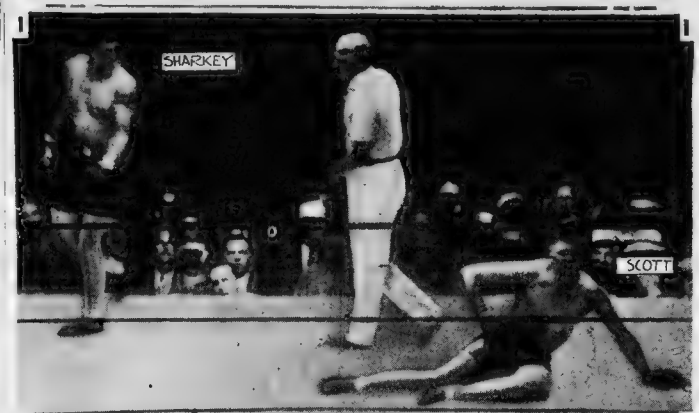
AS BRITON'S HOPES WERE BLASTED AT MIAMI



Telephoto picture shows Phil Scott on the floor after an untimely (for him) collision with Jack Sharkey's glove. The blow may have been fair or it may have been foul as the Briton claims, but, in any event, the picture is not to the credit of Phanting Phillup, who seems to be living up to his floppine reputation. (International Newsreel telephoto.)

STATE TRACK MEET TODAY

Schoolboys of Massachusetts battle this afternoon at the East Armory in the 18th annual State track meet. Performances of individuals have not, on the whole, been outstanding this season but the team competition should be the best in years.

Lynn English and Lynn Classical, Medford, Malden, Brockton and Newton are favorites to finish high in the final tally in Class A. Strength is so evenly distributed in Class B that it would be difficult to pick a probable winner in this section.

Tony Genawicz of Lynn English, a high jump record-breaker. Theo talented Shoe City lad will beat 5ft 6in in the 12-pound shotput if he is feeling right.

Last year, 1929, the cup in Class A was won by Brockton and the Class B cup became the possession of Malden.

The meet opens with trial heats at the 50. The 600 follows. Then comes the 50-yard dash. Then comes the final of the 300.

Then the 45-yard hurdles are run and all runners except the 1000-yard men are ready for the relays. Thus the defeated 300-yard men, that is those that failed to reach the final will have had a couple of hours' rest and will be strong for the relays.

John Indrisano Wins From Old Conqueror

By RINGSIDE

JOHNNY INDRISANO of East Boston, a colorful ringster, has won his way into the hearts of the Boston fans again by whipping Clyde Hull of Texas in the feature bout at the Garden.

Indrisano's victory gives him a shot now at Young Griffo of California and the Italian boy who has hit his usual good stride, is riding to the road of fame, which he was climbing a couple of years ago. At that time his victim was his conqueror.

Two years ago his victim, Clyde Hull broke Johnny Indrisano's jaw.

Indrisano started out by sparring. Coming out for the second round he was a fighter and Hull had all he could do to avoid being smacked by the consistent lefts that Indrisano kept shoving into his face with solid right-handers to the body.

Johnny, in the second frame staggered Hull with a couple of stiff punches. The Texan flashed at times although Indrisano was his master.

Both went to their task casually during the first round, jawing and jabbing away at one another for an opener. Indrisano had the advantage of play during the first frame.

Coming out in the second Indrisano started after the Texan and let fly lefts and rights which hit the target, bouncing off Hull's face and body.

THROUGHOUT the third and fourth frames Indrisano kept his left hand on Hull, pecking away at the face and alternating with body blows and occasional right hookers to the stomach.

Hull was freer with his punches in the seventh and showed to better advantage. He chucked a few lefts and rights at will, although the East Boston boy was inside on most of the play and the round was about even.

INDRISANO missed two short lefts in the eighth as the round opened and the pair clinched. Hull hit Indrisano with a left on the chin and the Italian battler stepped back and tried to box.

Indrisano then connected with his left to the face and started to fight again, having the better of the round.

The ninth round found both boys fighting. Starting at the gong both let fly with lefts and rights. Hull and Indrisano came out for the final round again full of fight and they stormed away at each other in rare form. Both scored repeatedly, although Indrisano had more stream in his punches. One of the biggest mistakes that Hull made was to rush in at Indrisano with head hanging low. The East Boston boy just brought up his left and right hands to bounce his blows off the chin.

Nine of the ten rounds went to Indrisano and the East Boston boy won the decision.

VICTORIO LIVAN, champion middleweight of Italy, gave another fine account of himself in the semifinal bout with Tony Shucco of the North End. The Italian champion did his usual classy boxing with occasional fighting thrown in. He piled his margin of victory in the closing rounds.

Billy Kane of Cambridge won the four round opener with Mike Harrington of Providence, R. I., while the next bout found Albion Holden of Attleboro winning over Frankie Messina of the North End.

Al Rackow, Winthrop, won his four-rounder, defeating Panama Joe Brooks. Dick Howell of Dorchester took the measure of Tony Lynch of Lynn after four rugged rounds of battling.

The first six-rounder found Joe Smallwood of Washington, D. C. the winner in his battle with Al Aldrich of Lawrence. Their contest was good with both boys slamming away with both hands throughout the battle.

Tommy Rawson of East Boston won a tough eight-round fight with Eddie Elkins of New York. Elkins substituted for Dom Valenti.

Handball Title Match

St Louis, March 1—Alfred Banuet, San Francisco, will defend his national four-wall singles handball championship against George Nelson, Baltimore, here tonight.

SCHOOL SIXES ON ARENA ICE

Five Boston school hockey games are on the slate for this morning at the Boston Arena. The two ice games of the day, Jamaica Plain vs. Hyde Park, and Boston Latin vs. Boston English, were shifted to the afternoon, in order that the many fans who follow the fortunes of these schools might be given a chance to see their favorite teams play.

The four teams last mentioned are the leading sextets of the Boston schools. If Hyde Park can conquer the fast J. P. team this p. m. these schools will be tied at the top of the league standing with 12 points apiece.

In this event the victor in the English-Latin clash would be at the top of the league with 13 points. In case English and Latin tie and Hyde Park defeats Jamaica Plain, a four-team tie is possible.

Judging the Jamaica Plain team on its last couple of games, however, it is hard to see how the six can be edged out of the league with Joe Lynch, Bud Phelan, Hoar and others are doing splendid work for Jamaica Plain, and have been playing steadily in team play during the season.

Hyde Park is on edge today, with everything to gain by a win, and Jamaica Plain sure will fight every stroke of the game to take the verdict.

Latin is favored to down English. Though the teams are tied in the standing, with 11 points apiece, Latin has the better record, for it has not been defeated at all, and has had few goals scored on it.

Russell Lynch and the other Latin players should put up their best game of the season today. Herb Crumlish, right-wing of English, is a clever puck carrier and will test the strong Latin defense.

The first game this morning sends Tech against Mechanic Arts. With a chance to finish near the leaders by a victory today, Mechanic Arts is prepared to put up its best game of the season.

Boat Boston battles South Boston in the second fray. These old rivals annually put on one of the feature clashes of the high schools ice windup, and their game today should be another great battle.

Dorchester faces Commerce in the next tilt. Following this Charlestown takes the ice against Brighton, and Memorial meets Boston College high.

St. John's Prep at New Hampton, and Brighton at Pennell Institute finish up the school hockey program for the day.

3 Exeter Winter Sports Teams Busy

Exeter, N. H., March 1—All three of Exeter's winter sports teams are in action today, the track team having the Harvard freshmen for opponents. The swimmers will splash with Yale freshmen and the basketball tossers meet Hebron Academy.

De Kuh Scores Kayo

New York, March 1—Arthur De Kuh knocked out Charlie Smith, British heavyweight, in the first round of the opening 10-rounder on an all-heavyweight card.

Small Boats to Have New Insurance

SMALL boat owners—lay aside the big yachts this week, temporarily—welcomed news today that a financial plan of protection from marine accidents, principally fire and theft, has been worked out by the National Outboard Association.

In the past many outboard enthusiasts have suffered the loss of the light outboard equipment through fire, or thieves have departed with the property, and owners have been able to protect with insurance only through excessive premiums.

Now however through a large firm of insurance brokers the National Outboard Association officials have succeeded in having an open policy written for benefit of their members.

Owners of pleasure boats may now insure their property against fire and theft for 2½ per cent of the insurable value of the craft, or they may get full marine coverage, including protection against transportation risks by land for 6 per cent.

A payment of 10 per cent will cover fully for such marine perils as sinking and collision, as well as fire and theft.

Incidentally the first intercollegiate outboard motor boat regatta will be held on May 18 and 17 on Skaneateles Lake, New York.

ATHLETES from 19 colleges, including Harvard Dartmouth, Brown, Princeton, Michigan, Colgate Cornell, Columbia, Rutgers, New York University and others, have signified their intention of competing.

At the same time schools in Southern California, at the invitation of Occidental, will race at Long Beach, May 3, in the first Western intercollegiate regatta.

IN the Bermuda race the latest entry is Lawrence Grinnell's 65 foot schooner Flying Cloud.

Charles Chance of Ipswich has ordered an Alden-designed 38-foot yawl bottom fishing launch which will be built at the yard of Goudy & Stevens East Boothbay, Me.

A 25-foot Jonah auxiliary knockabout from plans of Alden is being built for Henry A. Street of Providence at the yards of the Crownshield Shipbuilding Co. at Fall River. A sister ship is being built for Robert Noyes of Pomfret, Conn. and Porto Rico for use in the West Indies.

John Alden reports the sale of the 54-foot auxiliary ketch, John B. F. Haven Clark to Henry P. Kendall of Boston.

Babe Ruth Ready to Report Monday

New York, March 1. (INS)—Despite the fact that he is still unsigned and still firm in his demands for an $80,000 contract, Babe Ruth will engage in his first baseball workout of the year on Monday, Fort Frick says today in the New York Evening Journal.

"The Babe," Frick writes from St. Petersburg, plans to don his rubber undershirt on Monday morning and give the natives a treat.

Dunlap After Job in Braves Outer Garden

St. Petersburg, March 1—The entire squad of the Braves is due in St. Pete, but at this writing there are seven absentees. It is probable, however, that the majority of these will have reached camp before the whistle blows for today's labor.

Those still due to report are Johnny Neun, Harry Nolan, Russell Rollings and Gene Robertson, infielders, and Bratcher, Richbourg and Welsh, outfielders. Although living but a few miles north of St. Pete, Richbourg is always the last to amble into camp. Lance likes to stick around home and show the boys at the University of Florida how the big leaguers play ball.

Freddy Maguire, Bernie James, Ralph Boyle and Bill Dunlap were the new arrivals today. They hit camp just before breakfast and donned the spangles for today's workouts. Bernie worked into a snappy infield practice but Maguire, Boyle and Dunlap spent the day lazily shagging flies in the outfield. The afternoon session was devoted entirely to batting practice with everybody being given a chance to take his cut at the ball.

DUNLAP SHOWS PROMISE

Bill Dunlap is the hefty young man who was here in St. Pete two years ago with the Braves in the role of a pitcher. Bill wasn't up to big league standards as a hurler so he was let out to the Providence club. While in the Eastern League he reformed and became an outfielder.

That he showed ability, especially in the hitting line, is indicated by his presence with the Tribe this year as a very good prospect for a regular berth in the garden. Bill is a well-built youngster who gained a large reputation in the Eastern circuit as a fence buster.

Possibly he can't yet aspire to comparison with Speaker as to fielding grace, but if he is able to clutch fly balls with average ability his hefty hitting may earn him a chance to collect his twice-a-month check at Braves Field.

Boyle is also a product of the Eastern league. He was with the club for a spell at the latter end of last season and so has an authority than Pack McPartland, the Braves' efficient club-house man, says that Ralph has the goods.

HUB FANS EXPECTED

Now that the Miami fite is a thing of the past, St Petersburg is looking for an influx of tourists from the east coast. Among these will probably be many Greater Boston fans seeking some return for the money expended in their long trip to Florida, by getting a pre-season view of the Braves in action against the Yankees and other major league oppositions. Judge Fuchs has been spending the past few weeks in Miami and he is expected in camp almost any day, now.

But, the judge will come merely as a spectator as Bill McKechnie has been given a free rein in guiding the destinies of the club. The judge now being well able to appreciate the difficulties that beset a big league manager.

LONDON TERMS GO UNPLEASANT

London, March 1 (AP)—London morning papers, commenting editorially for the first time on the Sharkey-Scott go at Miami, view the entire affair as a disagreeable episode and used it to moralize on decay of international boxing under the influence of money and intrigue.

The Morning Post lamented that British boxing should have been represented abroad by such a "lethargic and indolent" representative as Scott, although acknowledging it had been a sporting one that Sharkey was a "tough, ugly customer without a trace of pugilistic chivalry."

The paper described the referee, Lou Magnolia, as "the one comical figure in the exhibition of the group is not so good. They like the hotel and ball park, but the rest of the town doesn't appeal to them as did Bradenton.

In the latter place, the weather was always ideal, surf bathing and fishing were possible and friends came to present to visit in such nearby places as Sarasota, Palmetto, Fort Myers, Avon Park and Winter Haven.

Here, conditions are entirely different. The weather is changeable, very hot sometimes, very cold at others. The beaches are quite a distance from town and the water is far too cold for swimming.

There are no towns within reach that are worth visiting, and time is hanging heavy on everybody's hands.

New York, March 1 (AP)—Professional motor paced and amateur bicycle sprints will be held in Madison Square Garden tonight as an appetizer for New York's 48th international six-day race starting at 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

WAGNER PINS HOPES ON LISENBEE

By JOE CASHMAN

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 1

Horace Lisenbee has serve notice that he is going to t very much in the running for regular berth on the Red Sox pitching staff this season.

The slender Tennessean, whom the Sox obtained from the Senators in the Myer deal, has been pitching steadily ever since practice started and has proved to the satisfaction of all present that he is no longer suffering from the arm ailment which made him useless to the club last season.

Though he doesn't admit it he must have worked out before reporting as he started to put stuff on the ball the very first day and is still doing it. If he hadn't trained before coming here, he would have been able to throw a ball for a week after his efforts in the opening session.

Little was expected from Lisenbee when he was signed up for the season. Both Bob Quinn and Heinie Wagner admitted that a player with an arm as bad as he had last season rarely ever regains use of it and that they weren't counting very much on him.

He has already convinced Bell of them that all the soreness has disappeared from his wing and they are now entertaining visions of him regaining his great form of 1927.

That year, his first in the major, he won more than 20 games for the Senators, and was considered a better pitcher than either of the present regular Sox hurlers, who are ranked among the best in the game today.

NOT until the campaign is under way will it be possible to determine whether he as good as he used to be, yet body can blame Quinn and Wag for being delighted over his showing in shape and for hoping again see the Lisenbee of the seasons back. Such a pitcher would make the Sox a first division contender.

None of the other pitchers are far advanced as "Lis." Wood is progressing very well. After his one session in a few batting drills they should be in pretty good shape.

The first batting session was scheduled for today, having been twice postponed, once because of heavy wind and once because of rain.

The showers didn't give the boys a rest, however. Manager Wagner made them hike in the rain out to the park, more than a mile from the hotel, and put them through stiff workout between showers.

They were in and out of the clubhouse four or five times and each time they were inside they had to sit in at skull practice.

The resourceful Heinie staged everything as scheduled, except the batting drill.

That bothered the players few since they were in the pink. They were anxious to be up there swinging at the agate once more, but he was in no hurry.

HE knows that none of his batters men, with the possible exception of Charlie Ruffing, can add any strength to the team's attack, no matter how long they practice swinging the ash.

His only reason for agreeing to any batting before the fielders arrive is to give the players a little more satisfied and to get a little better line on his hurlers.

He has plenty of time to do both so he doesn't care particularly when he starts.

The hurler squad continues in perfect physical shape which speaks well for Trainer "Bill" Bierhalter and his assistant, Bill May, a Columbus chiropractor.

The physical condition of the group is not so good. They like the hotel and ball park, but the rest of the town doesn't appeal to them as did Bradenton.

In the latter place, the weather was always ideal, surf bathing and fishing were possible and friends came to present to visit in such nearby places as Sarasota, Palmetto, Fort Myers, Avon Park and Winter Haven.

Here, conditions are entirely different. The weather is changeable, very hot sometimes, very cold at others. The beaches are quite a distance from town and the water is far too cold for swimming.

There are no towns within reach that are worth visiting, and time is hanging heavy on everybody's hands.

Yale Sextet Big Favorite to Beat Harvard Tonight

GIDDENS AND PALMER IN CLASH

NEW HAVEN, March 1—Harvard's fighting hockey sextet arrived here today to play their ancient and honorable Eli rivals at the Arena tonight.

Stop Palmer was the watchword of the Crimson aggregation as they went through a final drill in preparation for the clash [illegible] battle.

Holding the Eli left wing boy [illegible] will be a tough assignment for the Crimson defense, for Palmer's speed has enabled Yale to take 16 consecutive victories in as many starts.

Yale is expected to be a 10-6 favorite to win when the centers come to put the puck for the face-off. Every Eli skater is in perfect shape for the game.

Harvard is also ready to start its strongest six. Coach Joe Stubbs announced just before game time that he would start Barry Wood at center, Capt. Elliot Putnam at left wing, and Canadian Bobby Giddens in the right lane.

The Harvard defense will have Garth Cunningham and Sam Batchelder back of the blue line, supporting Hardy Ellis in the cage.

RIVALRY IS KEEN

Cunningham and Batchelder are two of the biggest and toughest players Harvard has had since the days of the Bigelow twins. Both play a hard checking game which is calculated to stop the Eli whirlwind attack which is sure to come right at the face-off.

The Yale lineup places Bostwick at [illegible] Luce at center [illegible] left lane. [illegible] Palmer opposite each other as they were last season.

Rivalry between these two wingmen is at its height, and Palmer has never forgotten the crimp that Giddens has put in his style for the past two years.

So tonight the fur will fly as Palmer speeds up Giddens' alley, and as Giddens tries to stick handle his way into scoring position.

Five minutes after the session opens, Coach Joe Stubbs of Harvard plans to shoot in his second line. This will have the one and only Johnny Garrison at center, Junie Stubbs in the left lane, and Johnny Cross in the right alley.

Garrison's superb stick handling and fast traveling, combined with Stubbs' bullet shots, should give Farrell, the Yale goalie, a lot to think about.

Never before has young Junie Stubbs been putting such zip into his puck-flipping. He is also uncannily accurate in placing his shot. His favorite is a high flip into the corner of the cage, and he is liable to tuck one in there tonight.

HAZARD ANXIOUS TO WIN

Hazard is anxious to win this game tonight, for they feel that once they get Yale in the Garden they will be able to tie the can on the Bulldog. The second game of the series is set for a week from tonight in the Boston Garden.

This home game is already far over-subscribed, according to Carroll Getchell, of the H. A. A. About 17,000 customers will jam their way into the North Station edifice, which is a record crowd in the Harvard-Yale series.

Hazard is prepared to match speed [illegible] in tonight's battle. Yale has [illegible] Bent, McLellan, [illegible] Stoddard, [illegible] and Sizer who will see [illegible].

The Crimson spares most likely to [illegible] tonight are "Wild [illegible]", Charlie [illegible], Mooney [illegible] and Ben Draper in the goal.

While it is unlikely that the series will go to three games, in the event that each team takes one victory, a play-off is scheduled for the Boston Garden March 12.

Tickets for the game will be filled in the order of application for the second game next Saturday.

Bowdoin Alumni to Honor Grid Coach

Bowdoin will meet its new football coach, Charley Bowser, tonight. This famous University of Pittsburg star and coach will be the honor guest at a gathering of the Portland alumni of Bowdoin in that city tonight.

Bowser is considered one of the representative football teachers in the country, a man who knows the systems of Glenn Warner and Jock Sutherland inside out and knows most of all how to teach them.

OPPOSED by the rejuvenated Ottawa Senators, the Bruins will be forced to put their best foot forward to insure victory tonight at the Boston Garden.

With the exception of Mickey MacKay, Manager Art Ross will have his entire Bruins squad available this evening. However, at least three of the Stanley Cup holders who will be in action tonight are not at the peak of their form.

Cooney Weiland, who is the leading point scorer of the league, is suffering from a sore throat, which threatens to develop into tonsilitis. Weiland has been under the care of Dr. Shortell, who prescribed gargles every two hours as a preventative of the ailment which laid Cooney low a year ago.

Weiland has been following the club physician's instructions religiously, but he cannot be expected to be up to the form he has been displaying of late. Dutch Gainor and Harry Connor, who have been out of the lineup for more than a week, are due to reappear, but they will both feel the effects of their inactivity.

THE Ottawa squad, with Manager Dave Gill and Coach Newsy Lalonde, arrived in town late last night from Detroit, where the best they could do against the faltering Cougars was a tie. Having counted on a Detroit victory, the Senators are determined to make up their lost ground at the expense of the Bruins.

The Senators are fighting Les Canadiens for second place and at present are trailing the Flying Frenchmen by half a game, but they are also only four points back of the pacemakers of the International Division, the Montreal Maroons. To a great extent, Ottawa's chances of remaining in the Canadian section fight depend upon the outcome of tonight's game with the Bruins. Les Canadiens are in Pittsburgh, and should turn in a victory over the Pirates, while the Maroons are at home with the New York Americans. If the Senators fall before the Bruins they will be two and one-half games in arrears of the Maroons and one and one-half back of the Frenchmen, with only five contests to be played.

As the Bruins do not look with favor upon a five-game series with Ottawa, where the capacity receipts would be about 50 per cent of those in Montreal, the Senators are going to encounter an inspired team this evening.

MANAGER ART ROSS will start his Thunderbolt trio, Harry Oliver, Marty Barry and Perk Galbraith, against Newsy Lalonde's aces, Hec Kilrea, Joe Lamb and Frank Finnegan. On paper, the Ottawa starting front line may be rated as stronger offensively than the Thunderbolt line but the visitors will find considerable trouble scoring on this Boston trio.

Ross' scoring line, Cooney Weiland, flanked by Dutch Gainor and Dit Clapper, will be as troublesome to Ottawa as they have been to all of the other N. H. L. clubs. Weiland and Clapper have been scoring more regularly and more often than any pair in the league. They have developed almost a perfect combination play. Both are beautiful passers and possess wonderful shots. Clapper has one of the most difficult shots in hockey to stop and Alex Connell is going to have a busy evening trying to keep the Hastings boy's drives out of the Ottawa net.

Due to the absence of Mickey MacKay, George Owen will be played on the third line, with Bill Carson and Harry Connor, and will also do outer defense relief work for Lionel Hitchman and Eddie Shore. Owen has been getting in games regularly of late and he is rounding into the best form he has shown since he joined the professional ranks.

AS usual, the fans will be interested in the battle between the league's most sensational defense men, Eddie Shore and King Clancy. The King is a fighting Irishman and with the big money in sight he can be relied upon to turn in one of the very best performances tonight. The popularity of Clancy in Boston always appears to act as a stimulator for Eddie Shore, who apparently resents the appearance of another idol, who, although wearing an enemy uniform, is held in high esteem by the Boston fans.

With only the 1500 rush seats and the standing room tickets unsold, another capacity crowd will be in attendance. The rush seat and standing room tickets will be put on sale at 7.30 this evening and the attention of more than 15,000 persons will be directed at the large playing arena when the puck is dropped for the first face-off.

BIG CARNERA, BIG ATTRACTION

Primo Carnera, mammoth of the squared circle, was the magnet which drew the crowd to the Garden where Johnny Indrisano reversed the verdict held over him by Clyde Hull, Texas battler. Carnera is shown standing alongside Referee Johnny Martin. Hull and his handlers are in the foreground. (Staff photo.)

Primo Carnera Hopes to Fight in Boston

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

PRIMO CARNERA of Italy, Man Mountain of the prize ring and former circus showman, dropped into this city on a flying visit and witnessed the boxing match between Clyde Hull of Texas and Johnny Indrisano, Italian-American boxer of East Boston, at the Boston Garden last night.

Carnera, cool and collected, with a flock of Italian admirers and friends chasing him through the gathering at the Garden, came in to announce the principals in the main bout. Towering a foot or more over the average sized man he walked slowly to a front row seat at the ringside.

Just before the main bout he was invited into the ring and shook hands with the principles and referee. He then stepped out through the ropes to the edge of the ring with microphone in hand to make a little speech in his native tongue.

HIS speech was as follows: "Ladies, gentlemen and my fellow countrymen. I am very happy to be here with you this evening. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for this wonderful reception which you have tendered me and hope that the next time I will appear in the ring before a Boston audience it will be as a contestant against any worthy opponent that the Boston Garden may select. I will now introduce to you the principals in the main bout this evening, Clyde Hull of Texas and Johnny Indrisano of East Boston. I thank you."

The Italian Giant was then escorted to an exit of the ringside where a battery of cameramen started blasting away with their flash guns to get photos of the Italian Big Boy.

Then Carnera went to his seat in Box 4, where he was received by the Honorable Bio Margotto, Royal Italian Consul General of Boston, Silvio Vitale, Vice-Royal Counsel to Italy; Mario Conti, secretary to the Italian Counsel; Napoleon Vitale; Stephen D. Basigalupo, assistant attorney-general, James V. Donnaruma, Caesar L. Donnaruma, Ugo Baldi and Al Delmont.

YOUR correspondent immediately got into a huddle with Al Delmont and in turn popped off a flock of questions which Carnera willingly answered in Italian, and Al Delmont interpreted.

What do you think of Jim Maloney, Jack Sharkey and Ernie Schaaf, our Boston heavyweights?

"I have never seen them box, but they tell me they are good," he replied.

Are you enjoying your stay in this country?

"Very much. They all run me around and there is little chance of my seeing much. They keep me in fine physical condition, though."

Do you hold to any special diet?

"No, bring on the food and I will enjoy lots of it. I like American Ices. Almost every meal I have includes a little ice cream.

"I am in hopes of continuing in the ring. Back in Italy they told me to go win the world's title and bring it home."

"I would just love to bring the title back home. Sooner or later I will meet all your contenders and defeat them."

WHAT are you going to do while in Boston?

I hope to come back here again and fight. I am leaving on the midnight train for New York."

"I am not so fussy about traveling nights on trains. The bunks are too small and I have a hard time getting my rest, but I will catch up some day."

The bouts were so long that Carnera, who intended to have a meal at the Napoli Restaurant on Friend st. with Al Delmont and the Italian party, had to call it off and rush to the South Station for the train.

He said, "Gee, that's not so good." There was a fine Italian dish for him in the waiting, and a big party had gathered for the chance to get a close-up of Carnera.

Just before Carnera was to enter his box a large gathering was blocking the entrance seeking autographs. Then the sound of the Star Spangled Banner was heard. It seemed that the only one who realized that the National Anthem was being played was Carnera.

Carnera pushed his arms out and stopped a rush of a half-hundred people.

MANY PURES TO SEEK HONORS

With a record-breaking entry list of 138 boxers from various sections of New England, the annual N. E. amateur boxing championships to be held at the Boston Arena Monday and Tuesday nights is expected to prove the most successful simon pure event ever staged in this city.

Scores of boxers who failed to file their entries on time were barred from participating in the tournament on account of the large list of entries and it is expected that there will be many gruelling struggles before the champions are crowned in the eight divisions.

On account of the large entry list the trial bouts will get under way at 4 p. m. on Monday, and it is expected that the bouts will be extended until only the semifinals and finals remain for Tuesday night.

Tufts Five Meets M. A. C. on Court

The Tufts-M. A. C. rivalry will be continued at the Goddard Gym tonight, when the two basketball teams clash in the annual game. The fans are watching for a close battle with both teams presenting the strongest lineups they have boasted in several years.

Sandwina Wins Over Bertazolla

New York, March 1—Ted Sandwina, crinkly headed German strong boy, punched out an easy decision over Riccardo Bertazolla, Italian heavyweight, in a feature 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden. There were no knockdowns. The match was staged before a crowd of 5296, the slimmest of the indoor season.

Allen to Battle Monte on March 10

Harry Allen, hard-hitting Brockton heavyweight, who put away Big Boy Rawson in just 55 seconds of the first round, and Joe Monte, another thumping son of Brockton, were signed by Col. Bob McKirdy of the Arena A. C. for a 10-round bout at the Arena a week from Monday night, March 10.

Scott's Leg in Bad Shape, Says Friend

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

MIAMI, Fla., March 1—Phil Scott, the British boxer, who medical friends say is suffering from traumatism in his right leg sciatica nerve as a result of "an enervating exterior impact" (a right hook to the right hip, in plain English) will not be himself for three or four days, possibly a week, it was said today.

He was in semi-seclusion and feeling quite badly mentally and physically, as a direct consequence of his encounter with Jack Sharkey.

While a controversy raged in boxing circles over the question of whether the much-fouled Phil was fouled by Sharkey, the defeated gladiator was taking treatment at a hospital for the alleged paralysis of the sciatic nerve of the right leg.

It was not possible to see Scott this morning but a very close personal friend, Monty Suggers, at whose home Scott had spent considerable time while training for his falling act with Sharkey, gave to International News Service an idea of Phillip's condition.

Scott [illegible] considerable [illegible] hospital [illegible] shape [illegible] foul [illegible] delivered by Sharkey. He can [illegible] the toe of his right foot on the ground but not the heel. He can just barely hobble around.

"He was given two hours of diathermy, the application of warm electricity. Galvanic current was also administered. I gave him narcotics myself. He felt much better after the treatment and thinks he will be as good as ever in a day or so but I can assure you he will not be himself again for from four days to a week. He has [illegible] He can [illegible]."

B. C. NEEDS FAST FIRST BASEMAN

[illegible] outfielder and [illegible] batterymen [illegible] Coach Hugh Duffy's instruction at the Commonwealth Armory on Monday afternoon.

Duffy has been working with a squad of 23 pitchers and catchers and the roster total will be boosted to more than 60 candidates in all when the rest turn out.

With two posts in the infield to be filled and with the announcement from Coach Duffy that no one is certain of his job, there's bound to be a lot of material on hand for inspection.

Boston College needs a first baseman and a third baseman. The outfield is oversupplied with material which may mean that some of the outer-garden boys will be converted to the inner defense.

The job at first base will be the hardest to fill. That's because Al Weston, who held down the position for four years, is the one who will be missing. Weston was one of the greatest players in Boston College history and it will take an extraordinary first sacker to erase the memories of Al.

Coach Hugh Duffy has two leading candidates in mind for the job in Larry Gibson, left fielder, and Harry Downes, catcher. Both will be tried out. And a third candidate, who can't be overlooked is John McCarthy, who played first for the freshmen a year ago. McCarthy may surprise by beating out both Gibson and Downes for the berth.

DE GLANE AND SHERRY MEET

Henri DeGlane of France who has not met with a defeat on a Boston mat, will be back at it again next Thursday night at the Boston Arena. He will have as his old foe, Jack Sherry of Ohio.

Sharing in interest will be the semifinal, a fray between Bob "Blibber" McCoy of Cambridge, and Ed Lewis, the former world's champion and shapes as likely to be a rip-snorter while it lasts.

The contest should fully demonstrate one big point whether or not Ed "Strangler" Lewis is all washed up. It is the sentiment in many quarters that the ex-champion has seen his day that never can he get past the newcomers now building up all over the country.

Harvard Polo Team Plays Yale Today

The Harvard varsity polo team will meet the Yale team at New Haven today in the first of the two Yale games ending up the polo season. The second and final game will be played in Boston on March 15.

GEORGETOWN STAR OUT OF I. C. GAMES

NEW YORK, March 1—Georgetown's chances of winning the intercollegiate indoor track and field championship here tonight suffered a sharp setback when it was announced that Karl Wildermuth, runner-up in the 70-yard dash for the last two years, would not be able to compete.

Wildermuth, who injured a leg in a race with Jack Elder, Jan. 18, was expected to return to competition in the college classic, but a telegram was received by the meet officials from John Matanza, track manager, saying this would not be possible.

The little Georgetown sprinter holds the outdoor intercollegiate championship at 100 yards, and finished only a step back of Jimmy Daly of Holy Cross, the present defending champion in the indoor sprint in both 1928 and 1929.

Georgetown counted upon Wildermuth for four or possibly five points and as a result of his loss the Hilltoppers are figured to have only the slimmest chances of taking team honors.

The Harvard track and field men, 26 strong, are at the Vanderbilt Hotel where they will stay until after the meet.

Harvard's representatives are confident of taking the measure of the Red and Blue runners of Pennsylvania, the Gray and Blue representatives of Georgetown, the Violet harriers of New York University, and the Eli trackmen of Yale on the track.

Ryder Hopes for Two-Mile Relay Win for B. C.

Jack Ryder and Boston College boosters will consider the 1930 indoor track season a gigantic success if the Nagle two-mile relay team comes through in first place in the intercollegiates at New York tonight.

Boston College has the best opportunity since 1926 when the team of McKillop, McCloskey, Ingoldsby and Daley ran off with the two-mile relay crown. They're not favored to win, but should be within yards of the leaders if they should fail.

In time trials at the Heights, Ryder's present quartet has been but two seconds behind the winning team of 1926.

The best the Eagles have accomplished at the Heights is 8.04s. for the distance. But each member of the relay can chop a second off his half-mile on the intercollegiate track, which is the fastest indoor track in the country.

The Boston College team will be Tom Daley, Tommy Meagher, Brendon Moynahan and Jack O'Brien, running in that order. All four are fighters who want to win the honors for their veteran coach.

Schmeling Begins Training for Bout

Berlin, March 1—Max Schmeling, Germany's aspirant for the world's heavyweight title, begins training today for his fight against Jack Sharkey, victor over Phil Scott, scheduled for New York in June. Maxie will train in the little wooded dale of Sienaethal, near here.

"The greatest thrill of my life came this morning," said Maxie, "when I heard American radio fans calling for me to come to America to fight.

"You can bet I am going to fight, and give my best. They won't need to have a referee come to my aid and I certainly won't yell 'foul.'

"The man who licks me will have to knock me out.

"I'll start training today, beginning with the light stuff like rope-skipping. At the end of March I'm scheduled for a four-round exhibition at the Sports palace in Berlin, and then after more training I'll probably sail for America at the end of April."

Asked what he thought of the Sharkey-Scott fight in Miami, Maxie smiled, and answered:

"I think Scott's through as a fighter."

American Matador Proves Patriotic

Madrid, March 1 (INS)—Sydney Franklin, Brooklyn's own bullfighting son, hereafter will be known professionally as "The Yankee."

Franklin made this announcement on the eve of his first arena engagement for 1930 which takes place tomorrow, for the purpose of disillusioning those fans and admirers who have dubbed him "El Ingles," or "The Englishman," because he speaks the English language. Franklin said he wanted no doubt or misunderstanding to exist as to his nationality.

McLarnin Battles Mandell Tonight

Chicago, March 1 (INS)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, the welterweight contender, meet here tonight in a 10-round bout at Chicago Stadium to settle an old question of supremacy.

The two rivals have met twice before, each scoring a victory.

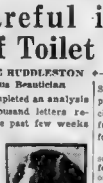
PITFALLS IN PATH OF WOMANBEAUTY SEEKERS

Be Careful in Selection of Toilet Articles

By JOSEPHINE RUDDLESTON
World Famous Beautician

I HAVE just completed an analysis of some thousand letters received during the past few weeks in an effort to discover the one outstanding pitfall women drop into in their search for beauty. I found two that are equally important. The first has been dealt with many times in this column, and so we will dispense with it quickly. It is the absolute need of cleanliness, physical and mental, if one is to attain lasting beauty.



Josephine Huddleston

So many women do not seem to realize that cleanliness means more than frequent washing. To be really clean one must remove all possible trace of impurities, both from the skin and from the system. Mental cleanliness means something more than merely thinking pleasant thoughts. It means refusing to harbor spiteful resentments, refusing to let the petty annoyances of everyday life turn one into a sour, dour, nagging, olden person.

These points all have been discussed here so many times that I'm sure you are more interested in my other discovery . . . because it never has been approached in the way I'm going to bring it to your attention today.

I know that a great many of you do not stop to analyze the claims made by manufacturers of preparations. Your letters clearly prove this. I wonder why you do not use the same COMMON SENSE in selecting beauty preparations that you use in choosing food for your family, furniture for your home, schools for your children?

It is because the beauty field is so new that you feel incapable of forming ideas about preparations, or that you are careless in interpreting the phraseology and instructions that usually accompany beauty aids.

Analyse the claims put forth by manufacturers of toiletries. And if you find them inconsistent, why of course, shun them. For instance, should a preparation claim performance of two directly opposite powers of beautification, you, common sense should warn you that it just can't be. If you are looking for a skin nourisher see that the article you buy is for that purpose, and the same rule applies to all other aids to beauty.

Manufacturers of standard beauty aids do not claim miracles for their products, but they do claim and know, as proved in laboratory tests, that their products will be of benefit if used for the purpose for which they are intended.

Beauty culture is far more complex now than at any other time in its history because it is so widespread, but this volume should not confuse you and lead you astray. It can't if you will apply the same common sense to your beauty problems and preparations that you do to the purchasing and testing of commodities that you are more familiar with.

And those statements made. If they contain words you are not familiar with, look them up in the dictionary and with the knowledge thus gained go back to the product and see whether the claims made are consistent.

The sooner that each woman learns the truth about preparations, the quicker she will be able to choose those that will be of benefit.

Lamb, the Bargain Meat

HOUSEWIVES, Hear ye! According to a report issued by the Lamb Growers Association there is a splendid crop of delicious Spring Lamb ready for shipment, all of which means that the homemaker may enjoy to the fullest extent this tender young meat at a very nominal price.

Martha Lee

Recently, when I was presenting a demonstration on forequarter cuts of lamb, a young lady sampled a juicy, tender cut of shoulder pot roast and was amazed that lamb consisted of much more than chops and that while roasts are usually the other cuts of lamb are generally relatively inexpensive.

Lamb should be one of the most popular meats this spring.

Here are two lamb dishes, tasty, delicious and inexpensive.

OKRA AND LAMB STEW

1 lb. lean lamb, free from bone
2 tbsps. butter or drippings
2 tbsps. flour
3 onions
2 cups tomato
2 cups okra, cut into thin slices
1½ tsps. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
Water

Wipe the meat and cut into cubes. Wash okra and cut into thin slices, dredge it with flour, also the meat and fry them in fat until brown. Add other ingredients, using water enough barely to cover and cook slowly either in oven or on top of stove in a tightly covered dish.

Faithfully yours,
Martha Lee

BAKED SHOULDER

Place rolled shoulder in a roasting pan. Rub drippings or lay slices of bacon over the top. Sprinkle with 1 tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper, dredge with flour and brown quickly in a hot oven, 525 deg. F. for 20 minutes. Pour half a cup of hot water over the meat, adjust the cover of the roaster closely and cook in a slow oven, 325 deg. F., allowing 25 minutes to each pound. No basting will be required. Serve with a sauce made by heating a half cup of chopped sweet pickle of any sort with the gravy in the pan.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The year 1929 was a record period for Sweden's foreign trade. Official reports reveal that $345,000,000 worth of pulp, butter, iron ore, and eggs were exported. There was a $9,720,000 surplus of exports over imports.

Commandant Mary S Allen, head of the women's police service in England, has started on an air tour of Germany and Turkey. She will confer with the chiefs of police in Cairo, Alexandria and Athens to discuss the hiring and employment of women police.

Broken Dates Worry Her

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

You have helped so many other young girls solve their love problems, won't you please help me?

I have been going with a young man for the past year and I like him very much. He gave me a friendship ring and he said he liked me very much, too.

Lately he has been calling up at the last minute and breaking dates I forgave him for this because he had some very good excuses, but the last date we had he never showed up, nor did he call up to I was angry because he had broken the date we had that week, and I said yes, because his chum told me that he broke it to go some place with him. Do you think that is the reason he didn't come?

What should I do? I have given up all my other boy friends for him. I thank you in advance. G.H.

YOUfir friend's conduct in breaking dates after date with you is inexcusable. He would not act that way if he was at all eager to go on with the friendship. The best thing for you to do, my dear, is go about with other friends who are more appreciative and reliable.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am 19 years old and have been keeping company with a young man 21 years old. He tells me that he really cares for me. But he never keeps early dates with me always puts me at 9 o'clock at night. And still he tells me he cares. Am I to still keep believing him? Or should I discontinue my friendship?

I care for this young man very much and have been going with him for one year. Why is it that he keeps late hours with me? I have quite a few friends and could go to other places with them, but could not content myself. I will gladly accept any advice you give me and I will appreciate your kindness very much. BETTY B.

WHAT is your friend's occupation? Does his work fill his time until late at night? At any rate, 11 o'clock is too late for a young girl to keep an appointment with a young man. If I were you, Betty, dear, I would have a friendly talk with him and ask him the questions you have asked me. Explain to him that you feel 11 o'clock is too late to go out alone to meet him, and ask him to come to see you at your home at an earlier hour, or else call for you there and take you to a movie or for a walk, warmly this question that is troubling you. And please know, dear girl, how thoroughly I understand your point of view in this way. Don't begin your attack on such problems by wondering what your friend will think about your politeness. Hold high the torch of what you know is the polite and gracious and fine thing to do. And, aside your fine spirit, you do know exactly what you should do to be the well-bred girl and lady. This I can read between the lines.

Now please do just this when the young man comes, introduce him to my mother or father, but on second thought decided that, since we are not going "steady," and are not deeply interested in each other, this might seem as though my family were considering him as a "prospective steady boy friend." However, I would not like to ask him in and just leave with him, as this might seem indifferent, and as if my parents did not care when and where I went.

I'll prepare for the girl to suggest when she wishes to be taken home" ANN.

Curious Creatures -:- By Richard A. Addison

ALL CATTLE, AS WELL AS DEER, ANTELOPE ETC., ARE CLASSED AS RUMINANTS; THAT IS, THEY CHEW A CUD. THESE ANIMALS HAVE STOMACHS CONSISTING OF FOUR CHAMBERS KNOWN AS RUMEN, RETICULUM, PSALTERIUM AND ABOMASUM.

WHEN THE ANIMAL EATS, THE FOOD FIRST PASSES INTO THE RUMEN AND RETICULUM. LATER IT IS BELCHED BACK UP INTO THE MOUTH, AND IS CHEWED OVER AGAIN. THIS IS TERMED "CHEWING THE CUD". THE FOOD IS AGAIN SWALLOWED, AND THIS TIME GOES INTO THE PSALTERIUM. IT LATER PASSES INTO THE ABOMASUM WHERE IT IS FINELY DIGESTED.

NOT MANY YEARS AGO SOME PEOPLE THOUGHT THE CUD WAS SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A SOMETHING THE COW CHEWED AT ITS LEISURE LIKE CHEWING GUM. AND FARMERS AT TIMES INSISTED UPON FEEDING THEIR COWS CHEWING GUM TO REGAIN "LOST CUD".

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

Running out of the house in order to save her own skin—

The door of the room opened at that moment, and Aline came walking in!

"Hello, there!" she sang out in her bright, cheerful way, shutting the door behind her.

She flopped down on the edge of Lovejoy's bed in her wet oilskin raincoat, smiling radiantly.

"I came over to hear what happened last night after I cleared out," she said. "Did you have to tell Tom about me and my boy friends? Did you tell him that those were my letters?"

Lovejoy gave her a long, long look. Didn't Aline realize what a dreadful thing she had done when she walked out of the house? When she refused to tell Tom that those letters were her letters and not Lovejoy's.

"Yes, I told Tom that they were your letters but he didn't believe me," she said with measured calm. "He doesn't believe me now. But it doesn't make any difference—He's angry with me, anyway, because he's found out that I've been playing around with Steve Ogilvy. He saw he's been picking me and I'm taking him at his word. I'm going to see a divorce lawyer today. There's no use in two people living the cat-and-dog life that we've been living lately."

Aline nodded her golden head.

"I think you're sensible," she answered smoothly. "When two people don't get along, the only thing for them to do is to separate. I know I'd leave Al in a minute if I stopped caring for him."

Lovejoy gasped. . . . Why, how could Aline sit there and pretend that she cared for her husband? If she cared she must little bit about him she wouldn't be having all these disgraceful love affairs all the time, would she?

And yet I was running around with Steve all winter while Tom and I were living together, she remembered, and her conscience gave her a hand-new prick. I'm just as bad as she is—

Aline was lighting a cigarette, scratching the match along one side of Lovejoy's shining new bedside table.

"Where are the letters now?" she asked, "I'd like to get them."

Lovejoy stared at her blankly. "Why, let's see. Tom must have them," she answered vaguely. "I seem to remember his picking them up and putting them into his pocket last night."

Aline jumped up from the bed. "Well, I'll go down to his office and get them from him!" she cried. "Do you suppose he has them with him?"

Lovejoy said she didn't know where they were. She didn't care where they were.

• • •

When Aline was gone she went downstairs and made herself a cup of coffee.

She went down the back stairs so that she would not have to say good morning to Norrie, who was sitting in the living-room with the baby.

She then went softly upstairs again and took her bath. She took a long, leisurely one, using plenty of verveine bath salts and an enormous bar of French bath-soap that she paid a dollar for.

Her red hair was lying on her temples and forehead in damp little tongs and her cheeks were flushed when she went back into her room to dress.

She opened the door. . . . And there, on the edge of the bed where Aline had been sitting an hour before, was Tom!

Mrs. Beeckman on Correct Manners

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am 16 years of age. A young man, with whom I am friendly, is to call at my home for me. When he comes, I thought of introducing him to my mother or father, but on second thought decided that, since we are not going "steady," and are not deeply interested in each other, this might seem as though my family were considering him as a "prospective steady boy friend." However, I would not like to ask him in and just leave with him, as this might seem indifferent, and as if my parents did not care when and where I went.

I'll prepare for the girl to suggest when she wishes to be taken home" ANN.

Winchester

I am proud of you for setting forth so honestly and straight-forwardly this question that is troubling you. And please know, dear girl, how thoroughly I understand your point of view in this way. Don't begin your attack on such problems by wondering what your friend will think about your politeness. Hold high the torch of what you know is the polite and gracious and fine thing to do. And, aside your fine spirit, you do know exactly what you should do to be the well-bred girl and lady. This I can read between the lines.

Now please do just this when the young man comes, introduce him to the hostess of your home, your mother, and to the host of your home, your father. If the man is well bred, he will take this introduction for granted. If he isn't quite perfectly bred, his natural intuition will tell him that of course this is what a well bred girl would do, should do in other words, that he will respect and honor you for your fineness and breeding.

Your social position, as indicated by your last sentence, rather by the earlier sentence, is the correct and discriminating one.

Yes, the young man who is best escort will wait for her to suggest the time that she wishes to leave the party.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1 Please inform me when betrothal cards are used?

2—Are they only in good form when there is to be a church wedding?

3 I have received many betrothal cards from friends. How should I announce my engagement to them?

4—Where would you suggest a working girl have her wedding at her home, or at the parish house?

My parents are unable to give me a large wedding. JOAN.

Allston.

1—Betrothal cards are never in good form. They have never been accepted in circles of society that determine our best customs and regulations.

2—It is natural—and correct, of course, for you to tell your relatives and closest friends of your engagement. Then write notes of the happy news to friends less close, either in degree of friendship or in distance. After that, if you wish, your parents may make in the newspapers formal announcement of the engagement. This means that everyone who should know of the engagement will be informed. Consequently no formal announcements need be sent.

4—This depends on the choice of the bride, and on the family circumstances, that no outsider could give advice. Insofar as she can, she should plan to have just the kind of wedding that she has always dreamed of, and she would, therefore, choose the place that most nearly carried out those plans.

JANE, Beauvue—A lady walking with a lady should take the outside of the sidewalk.

JUDITH S., Belmont—Yes.

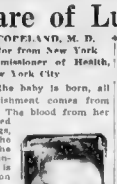
JAMES, Chicopee—A silk hat should not be worn with an ulster.

Mrs. Beeckman will answer all questions on etiquette sent by readers.

Care of Lungs in the Newly-Born

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

BEFORE the baby is born, all its nourishment comes from the mother. The blood from her heart, purified in her lungs, supplies the needs of the child. Not until the baby is born and "on its own" does the infant take care of its own lungs.



Dr. Copeland

An anxious time is that half minute after a baby's birth! The attendants are on tiptoe, waiting for that expected cry from the infant. If it is a moment like David of old experienced when he demanded news of his son, "Is the young man Absalom safe?" When the welcome cry is heard, everybody feels that the baby is safe.

Independent life for the infant begins when the air cells open the first time. Sometimes the newly born suffer from their failure to dilate. This is true of weak, puny, undernourished infants. They have not enough vitality to draw in the air necessary to open the lungs.

Older children may suffer from a serious ailment known as collapse of the lungs. Anything that interferes with the free passage of air into the finer tubes and air cells of the lungs may result in collapse of that portion of the lung.

Many times I have told of the dangers faced by a child who has a cold, with bronchial involvement. This is particularly true of the feeble, weak youngster. But any child might have one of the small branches of the bronchial tubes plugged by a pellet of mucus. Such a plug might act as a valve, permitting air to pass and none to enter that part of the lung.

Or a plug of mucus could effectively close the tube. Then it is only a question of time when the air behind it is absorbed. Very soon the lung will collapse.

There are cases in older persons where parts or all of the muscular equipment of the lung occurs. Collapse of part or all of the lung follows.

In measles, whooping cough, influenza, in any condition producing broncho-pneumonia, this unpleasant complication may appear. Wounds of the chest wall, with perforation, may cause the same trouble.

My purpose in speaking of lung collapse is more to warn against it than anything else. There is little to do for it if it actually takes place. But plenty can be done to prevent it.

An infant and young child should be guarded against colds. Their care should be such that resistance to infection is high as possible. Fresh air, sunlight, cleanliness, nourishing food, regular habits—in these are found the surest means of guarding against colds and, for that matter, against all other diseases.

It was all right for Topsy to "just grow." But we want our babies brought up in the best possible manner. Today is the time to begin.

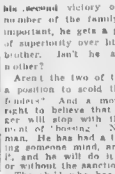
Cause of Child's Dislike

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

IT seems to be a constant source of wonder to a mother, particularly in a family of two children, why they are not as fond of each other as they might be.



Constance Cameron

There are various things which may contribute to this, but one of the surest ways I know to arouse dislike of one child for another is to make one of them the messenger who carries a send of reprimand or a command from the mother.

Imagine yourself a small boy of six years who has in a moment of intense play, wandered a few houses further down the block than he is allowed to. Suddenly upon the scene appears older brother or sister with the stern command: "You come right home this minute. You know you shouldn't have come over here."

Would you throw your arms around brother's or sister's neck in glad appreciation that he'd come to remind you that you were in for a scolding? And had come and told you right before your playmates, too, the fact of crashing and enjoyed authority? I hardly think so.

You would resent this child, not much older, if indeed any older, than yourself who "bawled you out" before your companions and made you march ignominiously home at his heels.

And as to the little messenger—well, children are human and he enjoys his moment of authority, his second victory over another member of the family, and more important, he gets a great feeling of superiority over little sister or brother. Isn't he aligned with mother?

Aren't the two of them then in a position to scold the small offender? And a mother has no right to behave that the messenger will stop with this one moment of "bossing." No he is human, and has had a bite of lording someone mind, and he enjoys it, and he will do it again—with or without the sanction of mother.

The child who has been so unceremoniously brought home feels injustice to his brother, feels that he is an outcast, with mother and brother on the opposing side, and it certainly would tend to engender any feeling of love for his brother.

If a mother has anything unpleasant which must be said she should say it herself, not put the message in the mouth of one child to convey to another. It is decidedly unfair to both children, most unfair, I think, to the child who is chosen to carry the message. He gets a false sense of importance. He is good and brother is bad, is the attitude, and this is an unhealthy state of mind for a small person to be in.

Tone, the little messenger, feeling that mother is depending upon him to help discipline small brother, feels that he has a right to be a "telling," of scouting around on his own to discover when the younger person is doing things forbidden him.

Don't let any of your children help you in your discipline with another child, nor encourage any tale bearing of one child about an other. Your children will be better friends if you administer your own punishments and if you punish only for what YOU see, not what another child reports.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

EVERY now and then some bright little theorist gets up and announces that, LOVE is a conquer her spirit of high adventure. Love is a woman's life love was the only really vital thing. Love and marriage. That's all there was any more girls who didn't marry just "hadn't lived." They were helpless, aimless, meaningless, stranded on the rocks.

Today if you told an intelligent young woman that love was going to live for except love, she would hand you a very merry ha ha.

Not, that she doesn't want and intend to HAVE love. For one mad girl does! But she wants such a lot of other things that love often gets lost in the shuffle.

She wants a career or a profession or a job. She wants to fly an airplane and drive a car and make a swimming record. She wants to travel or to create or to do positively interior decorating or to try her luck in Hollywood. She wants to write a book or paint a picture or experience "the wash" to it, her wings and fly high before settling down in a domestic nest.

Sometimes marriage and a home she thinks she wants. Love has to put in a point of it. It's up to her to our against so many rivals and to conquer her spirit of high adventure. He wouldn't dream of asking her an answer on that. What he needs is a yes or no.

Still in the end, you usually marry with her. And all of a sudden she wakes up some morning to discover that she is chained to a kitchenette, and a cozy living-room with a fireplace and a mortgage, and stains and somebody on the other side of the lamp have completely ceased to be interesting to her and other things out of her sight and imagination.

Then what happens to her. And if she does it, he fail her off wondering why life is so flavorless and why she is so unhappy, not knowing what it is all ABOUT, anyway because, without love, nothing has much lasting or rich or nutritious and even useless. A woman just isn't LIVING when she's not in love. She is merely going through the motions.

Love is not out of fashion or dead or outlawed even though much competition will ever put love out of business.

Love is just laughing to himself at all this bunk with which the modern woman is trying to kid herself and dodge fate.

Love always has "the drop" on a woman.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston Evening American.

A third grade teacher passed out papers and asked the pupils to draw a picture of their mother or any other member of the family.

Going around the room she noticed one youngster who was not drawing.

"John, why aren't you drawing?" she asked.

"Because this paper isn't large enough for my mother's picture," he replied.

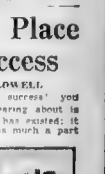
Luck's Place in Success

By LUCY LOWELL

THE "meteoric success" you always are hearing about is a myth. It never has existed; it never will. It is as much a part of that brand of imagination which loves the spectacular as is luck—and luck is the most fundamental of all the fables.



Lucy Lowell

"Luck," says Max O'Rell, "means hard knocks and privations when you have quite hesitated to endure; the long nights and days devoted to work. Luck means the disappointments you have never failed to keep, the trains you have never failed to catch."

In other words, luck means the opportunity you have created for yourself by consistent attention to business.

Thus, also, the seemingly sudden blaze of success.

I say "seemingly" with deliberation. I mean just that. The success which appears to the public "out" was being buried long before ever any evidence of it flared across the public vision. The foundations of it were being laid in long hours of lonely effort, in constantly repeated, at some one thing, in the plugging, plugging which was neither spectacular nor particularly interesting.

True success is fashioned after the manner of lighthouses. The beacon on a lighthouse goes on and goes on, and you see nothing of its structure for a very great while because it is all out of sight; it is performed beneath the water level, deep in the living rock. When the time comes to appear and the rays begin to flash through the night, nobody thinks of calling it a sudden and unprecedented achievement.

Yet this would be quite as reasonable as to declare any startling success the outcome of a single effort or deed.

The existence of that success may be sudden, it may burst forth like a spurt of flame. But the success itself is not real, is much more substantial; it is constructed of long years of study and experience and seized opportunity.

Household Hints

You can tell a poor fish from a good one." It's a simple matter if you heed a little advice. The next time you don't love want to take into your kitchen, let alone your dining room, has eyes that are not bright and clear, but dull and shrunk into the sockets. The flesh is no longer resilient, but pits if pressed against the sockets. That is a discriminating housewife is a poor fish."

A great deal of labor is saved when cleaning silver, aluminum, and so on, if the powder is applied with a cork.

Hair brushes should be washed in water to which one tablespoonful of borax has been added.

If the cover of a knife-board wears out, a piece of linoleum may be used to replace it.

JULIUS KLEIN TO BE SPEAKER IN BOSTON

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Dr. Julius Klein of Cambridge, former Harvard instructor, now Assistant Secretary of Commerce, is to speak in Boston this month. He will be heard by members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and their guests at a meeting March [illegible]. The Boston Chamber has already had as speakers Secretary [illegible] William F. Whiting of Holyoke.

Dr. Julius Klein

In line with the forecast in this column earlier this week Maine Central raised its annual dividend on the common from $4 to $5 a year. The advance was made not alone because of the good earnings of 1929, but also because of the good outlook for current year.

* * *

Revere Copper & Brass Co. has just declared its regular dividends. The company not only bears the family name of Paul Revere, famous patriot, but is a direct successor of the original company founded by him and is headed by a direct descendant of the colonial cross-country rider. While on this subject, with Patriots Day drawing near, it is timely to mention that Paul Revere's first historic ride, not the one commemorated in poetry, took him from Boston to Portsmouth, N. H.

* * *

There Paul Revere warned the Sons of Liberty of approaching British action. As a result a band of patriots seized guns and ammunition at Ft. William and Mary, now Ft. Constitution, in the first open act of war against England. The war material was later transported by ox team to Boston and used at the Battle of Bunker Hill.

* * *

Turning on our radio, we have yet to hear a Robot orchestra coming out of the ether.

* * *

Those who love the forests without having 'freak' ideas on the subject, such as protecting them by voting for compulsory placing of ash receivers on automobiles, will be truly sorry to see the defeat of the bill to exempt growing timber from taxation in New Hampshire. Unfortunately the bill was linked up with a program to tax incomes. In the Granite State the voters feel that one income tax a year is quite enough, although Massachusetts citizens submit to paying two.

* * *

The tax rate in New Hampshire towns probably averages about the same as in other states. But the towns with a small population are suffering from the long continued exodus to urban areas. In those towns lie the big timberlands. Timber is the only crop we think of that is taxed annually. The raisers of timber are not infrequently the least able to pay until they collect from their crop.

* * *

It is the old story of misguided politicians taxing an "industry" to death. To relieve the burden borne by those growing a large stand of timber would be simple, besides, the state would be sure of getting the "severance" tax when the timber was sold, unless the timber happened to be destroyed by fire or pest.

* * *

Most leaders in financial and business circles regret the overstressing at some assemblies of talk about creating a "boom." It might be remarked that the old-fashioned business boom, inevitably followed by reactions, is not wanted today. What is wanted is a steady, even flow of business, and that is the goal sought.

* * *

No wonder the grain dealers laugh at the position of the Federal Farm Board and its Congressional sponsors, now speculating in the grain futures markets after attacks over a long period of years in Congress on futures trading.

* * *

Utilities Hydro & Rails Shares Corporation reports that Herbert B. Flowers, president, New Orleans Public Service, Inc., of New Orleans, La., has accepted a directorship of the corporation.

* * *

William C. Evans has been elected chairman of Ward Baking Co., filling the vacancy caused by the death of Charles A. Ward. Howard B. Ward was elected vice-president.

* * *

Promotion of Deputy Comptroller George F. Glacy to be Comptroller of the Boston and Maine Railroad was announced today. Glacy, who is 37 years old and who started his railroad career as an office boy 22 years ago, assumes his new duties on March 1. He succeeds to the post vacated by the advancement of Comptroller William S. Trowbridge to be vice-president in charge of finance and accounting.

The strong financial position of industrial corporations in the United States is amply testified to by the huge dividend distributions in January, 1930.

Industrial companies alone paid out $419,000,000 to shareholders, compared with $289,000,000 in January, 1929; and $182,000,000 in January, 1928.

These large payments of course, reflect the profits made in 1929, but they also indicate confidence of industrial leaders in the underlying soundness of American business, which justifies them in distributing these large sums.

Beside paying out a huge total of dividends, industrial managements have been setting aside larger reserves than ever before.

MANY NEW HIGH MARKS ARE SET IN WALL ST.

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

New York, March 1 (AP)—Stock prices made further recovery in today's brief session but many of the early gains of 1 to 7½ points were cut down by a wave of profit taking in the last hour.

Nearly two score issues, including Radio Corporation, and about a dozen public utilities, moved into new high ground for the year.

There was little in the day's news to influence the price movement. Wheat futures, the recent rally in which gave the stock market much of its buying impetus, sold off today, and there was no change in the credit situation. Weekly business reviews continued to characterize the situation as "spotty."

In the public utility group Pacific Lighting was marked up nearly 6 points to a new high. American Telephone, North American, American Power & Light, American Water Works, Electric Power & Light, and Louisville Gas & Electric were bid up 1 to 2½ points to new peak prices for the year.

Brooklyn Union Gas, Philadelphia Co. and Stone and Webster also were marked up 2 points or more.

Radio Corporation common was turned over in large volume, crossing to 50 to the best price of the year. The rise in this stock was attributed in some quarters to a revival of operations by an old pool in that issue, and in others to heavy buying for the account of British interests.

American Tobacco B crossed 242 to a new high for an extreme gain of more than 8 points. Union Bag & Paper was marked up nearly 1 points to a new top at 15⅞.

United Aircraft, McKeesport Tin Plate, Rossia Insurance, Warner Bros. Pictures, Parmelee Transportation, Remington-Rand, Auto sales and Bucyrus-Erie also reached new high ground.

Interborough Rapid Transit broke nearly 4 points on the decision of State Supreme Court Justice Ingraham that the 5-cent fare stipulated in the company's contract with the city was binding.

Midland Steel Products preferred which ran up sharply in the last few minutes of trading yesterday lost 4 points on realizing.

The closing was strong.

Eastern Utilities Net Is $3,844,24[illegible]

Report of Eastern Utilities Investing Corp. for year ended December 31, 1929, shows net income after charges and taxes of $3,844,245, including $1,560,845 realized profit on sales of securities. After deduction of dividends on $5 prior preferred, $6 preferred and $7 preferred stock, there was a balance of $3,007,552 available for dividends on participating preference and class A and class B common stocks. Providing for full participating dividends $1,400,000 on participating preference stock balance was $1,607,552 equivalent to $2.28 a share on average number of 705,006 class A shares outstanding during the year.

Investments as of Dec. 31, 1929, carried at cost of $78,207,157 have present market value of more than $84,000,000.

Oil Curtailment in California Starts

Los Angeles, March 1 (AP)—Statewide curtailment of oil production, under the conservation program outlined by the industry's committee of 15, began in California today. The nine leading producing flush fields in the state, with a daily potential output of 644,966 barrels, will be limited under the curtailment program to a daily production of 374,031 barrels. Thirty fields with settled productions and an estimated potential of 365,420 barrels, will be limited to 216,464 barrels daily.

St. Croix Paper's Profits Lowered

St. Croix Paper Co. reports for 1929 net income after all charges, including depreciation and taxes, of $293,951, equivalent after preferred dividends to $10.56 a share on 25,000 common shares. This compares with 1928 net after similar charges of $435,251, or $16.21 a share on the common. Surplus carried to the balance sheet was $45,111.

Balance sheet as of December 31, 1929, shows current assets of $2,393,726 and current liabilities of $114,887, leaving working capital of $2,278,839.

Salesmanship Feats Achieved By Team Work

Principal Interest of Some Corporation Heads Is in Selling

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, March 1—The greatest salesmanship feats used to be achieved by men like Carnegie, Schwab, "Diamond Jim" Brady, Farrell.

Today the greatest salesmanship feats are achieved by organizations, by institutions, by communities.

As in other phases of business, individualism has given place to teamwork.

B. C. Forbes

• • •

Westinghouse recently made a dazzlingly important sale. Knowing that its chairman, A. W. Robertson, is always keen to give credit to whom credit is due, I tried to get the inside story of the coup with a view to having the hero tell just how he did it. But the fact was that so many different men and departments had had a hand in landing the contract that no one person could be singled out for special commendation.

• • •

An order running into millions is far from uncommon these days, especially in the steel, motor, public utility, construction, coal, oil, copper, shipping, paper, chemical and other heavy industries.

Sometimes the engineering department has more to do with securing a big order than the sales department. Sometimes a brain in the research department conceives a need, solves the problem of how to fill it and, for all the practical purposes, becomes entitled to credit for bagging the new business.

• • •

Certain corporation presidents devote more time to selling than to anything else. They love the competitive game. They like to pit their wits against the other fellow. James A. Farrell, head of the U. S. Steel Corporation is a master salesman. Schwab, during the war, brought off unique salesmanship feats. He was the first American industrialist Kitchener cabled to hurry over to London to see him. Mack Trucks' president, A. J. Brousseau, is the sales type par excellence. Numbers of utility presidents get on the job when a sizable possible order appears in the offing. So do even the biggest of our railway presidents. Ditto insurance company presidents.

Few business heads nowadays consider themselves above jumping in when they see the possibility of capturing a contract their subordinates are having insuperable difficulty in lassoing.

• • •

Did you know that public utility companies are today the most aggressive of all in attracting new industries, new business to their territories?

They now vie with the most energetic of go-getting cities and communities in bringing in new enterprises, new payrolls.

Read this, from a news story in a Miami paper about Colonel R. A. Mitchell, brother of Sidney Z. Mitchell, and senior vice president of the Alabama Power Co.

"In the last few years the Alabama Power Co. has brought important industries into the state, including the first copper wire plant built south of the Ohio river, at Mobile. This concern, the General Cable Corp., is a $2,000,000 business and turns out transmission lines and other copper wire products.

"The Alabama Power Co. also located the International Paper Co.'s Kraft Paper plant at Mobile, an $8,000,000 concern. Another such plant, involving $6,000,000, was attracted through the company to Tuscaloosa, where a paper bag company operates in conjunction.

"Silk plants at Brewton and Decatur, Ala., were attracted through the efforts of the Alabama Power Co., Colonel Mitchell stated, as was the Dixie plant of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., built at Gadsden at a cost of $8,000,000. A rubber reclamation plant was also located at Gadsden, where cast-off rubber shoes, tires and other products are manufactured into necessary rubber items."

• • •

My present hurried trip through part of the South caused me to give attention to another form of non-individual salesmanship. The conclusion reached is that the South as well as the Far West has learned better than the East how to attract new industries.

Atlanta has just issued a most elaborate publication describing operations of the forward Atlanta campaign of 1926-1929. The results revealed will interest leaders in other cities because of going ahead. Atlanta's four-year advertising campaign has brought 679 new factories, warehouses and sales offices to the city; 17,421 employes were added to the payrolls, and the estimate of money annually paid to these employes is over $30,000,000. Of the 679 new concerns attracted, 167 came from New York, 88 from Illinois, 47 from Ohio, 46 from Georgia, 35 from Michigan, 35 from Pennsylvania, 31 from Massachusetts.

Advertising brought over 9000 inquiries and 35,400 personal visits and calls. Comparing the years 1922-1925 with 1926-1929, an acceleration of two hundred per cent of gain to new payrolls in excess of "normal" is credited to the city's ably-conducted campaign.

• • •

WOOL TRADE'S VOLUME FOR WEEK LARGE

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review says today: The volume of business transacted in the wool market during the week has been fairly large and evenly distributed among the various grades. Quotations were irregular. Freight wools were slow and sales of carpet wools were moderate. The goods market has been somewhat unsettled by price reduction on the part of the leading interest.

The demand is fairly active and cutters are purchasing in larger quantities than usual. Receipts of wool in Boston for the year to date have been 23,818,700, as compared with 22,573,000 lbs. to date last year. Floor coverings are quite active.

COTTON MILL BUYING

Raw cotton is lower, but takings by the New England mills have been light. Order for cotton goods have been, as a rule, quite small, but in the aggregate of fairly large volume. Prices of the finished goods have been placed by the knitters and increased inquiry is noted for the coarse and medium counts of weaving yarns. Prices are inclined to be lower.

Worsted yarns are displaying a decided price weakness. Business is quite active, and there is a good demand from the knitters. Business with the shoe retailers has been rather slow, though most of them succeeded quite well in disposing of their stocks of light rubber footwear.

The hide and skin market is slow, with prices somewhat easier. Business in the shoe factories continues moderate. Leather is slow, with a slight downward trend.

STEEL DEMAND

Sales of pig iron during the week were about 5500 tons, with about one-third going to the local foundry. The demand for finished steel is increasing, and the fabricators are becoming more busy.

New England building lumber continues slow, with price concessions frequently noted. The market for brick, lime and cement also is weak, and deliveries have been light. The cost of frame buildings has increased about 10 per cent since last year, and other buildings about 3 per cent.

The demand for hardwoods varies considerably, and the best customers at the present time are the implement manufacturers. Prices are being maintained. Automobile sales, except of the two lower-priced models is slow, though fair numbers of second-hand cars are being sold.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Hayden, Stone & Co.—We have been very favorably impressed by the action of the market during the past week. The extreme weakness in commodity prices, bringing the average down to nearly the low of 1922, naturally caused some weakness in stocks, but it was very noticeable that there was no heavy outpouring; transactions, in fact, on the down side were comparatively small in volume. Coming so soon after the debacle of last fall, with people's nerves still somewhat on edge, it would not have been surprising if prices had yielded further. The market has stood its first test since the big break remarkably well. As soon as the pressur was lifted there was a sharp rebound. This experience would seem to demonstrate that the line of least resistance is still upward.

Hornblower & Weeks—The market again turned up yesterday under the leadership of the utilities, and we believe that irrespective of any week-end profit-taking the general tone will continue firm into next week, where we look for continued strength in the list generally.

Clark, Childs & Co.—The line of least resistance for stock prices continues to be toward higher levels.

Elmer H. Bright & Co.—We believe the outlook for the discriminating buyer is distinctly on the constructive side.

Colwell & Co.—We believe that the market has given a splendid account of itself in the face of such unsettlement as has been occasioned by the slump in commodity prices. There is little indication that the public is in the market on a major scale, and until such signs are noticeable we would favor maintaining a long position. We remain bullish on the amusement shares. Warner Bros. Pictures, Paramount and Loews' seem destined for higher levels. Warner has completed the first half of its fiscal year, and it expected that net will be in the vicinity of $4 to $5 a share. Loews' is expected to earn about $9 a share this year.

Haverhill Seeks Fresh Financing

Haverhill will receive bids until March 5 for $300,000 loan dated March 6 and payable November 7.

Everett city treasurer announces sale of $81,000 4¼% sewer bonds dated March 1, 1930, which was to take place at 10 a. m., March 5, has been postponed; bonds to be reoffered at a later date.

SCHAYE IS NEW DISTRICT HEAD FOR SEARS

Paul Schaye has been appointed district managed of the Boston retail district of Sears, Roebuck & Co. This announcement was made by executives of the company.

Mr. Schaye, who has been a resident of Boston, in charge of retail activities of the company for more than a year, will now become the active head of the stores in Lawrence, Lowell, Manchester and Fall River, as well as the smaller retail units in Dorchester, Malden, Mattapan, Quincy and Waltham. The retail department stores in Boston and Cambridge will remain under the active management of Mr. Schaye.

The first employment of Mr. Schaye by Sears, Roebuck & Co., was many years ago, when he was engaged as office boy by Julius Rosenwald. He quit this work after a time to get more education and years later became connected with the mail order division in an executive capacity.

He resigned to conduct his own business for a time, sold out to be employed by a large retail department store in Omaha, became merchandise manager and buyer for other middle west retail stores and, finally, in 1928, returned to Sears, Roebuck & Co., connected with the retail division. Mr. Schaye has managed stores for the company in Omaha and Milwaukee, before being assigned to Boston.

In Boston will be concentrated the district administration offices of operating, merchandise, advertising and accounting divisions.

"We shall have a compact and more efficient system of operation of the retail stores in this territory because of the creation of the Boston district," said Mr. Schaye. "The executives of the company feel certain that we shall b cable to give better service to our customers through this district plan of retail operation. We shall, of course, continue to secure our employes locally for each store in so far as is possible and we shall at all times operate under the policies established by Sears, Roebuck and Co. We shall continue our community interest in each community in which we are located and there will be no difference in the contact with the business life of the various cities in which we are doing business.

"The creation of the Boston district merely means that Sears, Roebucy & Co. has decided to place headquarters for these retail stores a little closer to the stores themselves and through this aft improve the service to the customers in every way possible. The whole plan has been worked out with service to the customer uppermost in mind and we shall work along these lies at all times."

Mr. Schaye said he would continue to make his headquarters in Boston.

CURB MARKET BEARS IN RUSH TO COVER

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, March 1 (AP)—The curb market moved abruptly higher in the latter part fo today's short session, as bears were driven to cover in the leading utility shares.

Electric Bond & Share, which has fluctuated in a narrow range during the past few days, was sent up more than 3 points to a new high for the year above 103. Central States Electric was again a strong feature, reaching new high ground at 33.

American Gas & Electric, American Superpower, Associated Gas A, and Electric Shareholders were among issues closing a point or two higher. United Light A, however, encountered realizing, and ended the day with a fractional loss.

United Gas Co. was again a strong feature, reaching new high ground above 34, in response to renewed reports that the Moody-Seagraves interests, Electric Power & Light interests and others are negotiating a gigantic natural gas merger, planning to pipe gas from Louisiana to Chicago.

The oil shares did not generally participate in the advance, although Cities Service closed up ⅝. Gulf lost more than a point. Few of the industrials were in demand, although Fokker aircraft and Ford Ltd., were firm, holding their recent gains.

A strong feature of the investment trusts was Interstate Equities, which rose above 14.

EASTERN MASS. REPORT OUT

Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. trustees issue to shareholders the report for 1929 containing comparative income account, also balance sheet dated December 31, 1929. Income acccount, showing net available for dividends of $1,000,703 in 1929 compared with $992,789 in 1928 has already been publiseshd.

Report shows that the company retired without financing during the year bonds with a par value of $4,567,500. During the period of public control the trustees have paid at maturity bonds in the amount of $10,577,150.

CASH IS AMPLE

Trustees continue: The company's cash position is adequate for all ordinary requirements.

Federal, state and municipal taxes amounted to $351,182, or 4.1 per cent of the gross revenue and 35.1 per cent of the net earnings.

Company's program of making improvements to roadbed has continued. Tracks rebuilt totaled 9.65 miles, of which 8.40 miles were in paved city streets.

During the year 126 passenger cars were completely reconditioned in the company's shops and 375 passenger cars repainted.

Electric passenger cars operated 39,171 miles per car failure, resulting in a car pull-in, compared to 38,071 miles in 1928, and 1550 miles of operation per car pull-in for 1921.

Company purchased 11 21-passenger coaches, replacing units of similar capacity. Eight 40-passenger coaches were put into service. There are now 90 buses in operation.

The Fall River sub-station was completed at a cost of approximately $300,000.

SELLING CAMPAIGN

There was a decrease of 967,000 electric car passenger miles and an increase of 277,000 bus miles, or a net decrease of 690,000 miles. Gross revenues for the year decreased 4.7 per cent.

An intensive campaign has been conducted to augment the sale of the $1 all-day ticket, resulting in sales of $108,703, an increase of $25,000 over the previous year.

A constant effort has been made to improve operation by speeding up schedules and keeping buses and cars on time. The net result has been an increase in speed of 20 per cent in electric car service.

Total expenditures for injuries and damages arising out of street car operation in 1929, including all expenses of the claim department, were $248,084, an increase of $15,610 over the preceding year, but lower than in any year of public control prior to 1928.

BOK AD PRIZES AWARDED AT HARVARD

The much anticipated Harvard advertising awards for 1929 were made at a dinner at the Harvard business school which was attended by a notable gathering of the leaders of the profession.

That service to the public in the truthful presentation of commercial or professional commodities is the aim of good advertising was the theme of the speakers at the dinner, at which prizes totaling $10,000 were given.

The prizes, made possible through a fund established for the purpose by the late Edward K. Bok, have been given annually the last six years.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis of Philadelphia was given a gold medal for "distinguished contemporary service to advertising." The medal was accepted on Curtis' behalf by F. F. Munroe, Boston representative of the Curtis Publishing Company.

J. C. McQUISTON

A second important award was that of $2000 to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company for its general campaign in rotogravure sections of newspapers. This presentation was made under the heading of general or institutional advertising campaigns.

The Westinghouse series of advertisements graphically depicted the service of an electrical concern in developing natural resources into home conveniences.

Bernard Lichtenberg, vice-president of the Alexander Hamilton Institute and a member of the jury of award, spoke on "Determination of the Advertising Appropriation," in which he dealt with the problem of relating the advertising appropriation to the task to be accomplished.

J. C. McQuiston, general advertising manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, came from Pittsburgh headquarters of the company to receive the coveted honor.

The recognition of the Westinghouse series of institutional advertisements placed for the most part in rotogravure sections of newspapers in 1929, showed the value of this medium as the foundation of national advertising campaigns, Mr. McQuiston said.

He pointed out that the Westinghouse award was the first given to a national institutional advertising campaign in newspapers since they were established in 1923 by the late Edward W. Bok.

A certificate and prize of $2000 were given to McQuiston and to A. L. Billingsley, president of Fuller & Smith, Cleveland advertising agency of Westinghouse.

Commenting on the broad scope of the winning advertisements, McQuiston pointed out that in 1928 he stated his belief that newspapers afforded a splendid means of nationalizing and localizing advertising.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS REACH NEW HIGH

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, March 1 (AP)—With only a few exceptions, the listed bond market dragged today. Prime rails and utilities, which have been more active in recent sessions, were virtually neglected and dealings in United States governments assumed negligible proportions.

American Telephone convertible 4½s featured the two-hour session, rising about 2 points to another 1930 high.

Parmelee Transportation 6s were again active, and likewise entered new high ground for the year around 84.

NAME TRIO IN BOYS' SCHOOL 'BRUTALITIES'

Meriden, Ct., March 1 (AP)—The names of three employes of the Connecticut School for Boys who are under fire for inhuman treatment of inmates were made public today.

They are Frank L. Maguire, Arthur F. Smith and Leon B. Staples, all of whom have supervisory powers over the boys, who range in age from 8 to 16 years. A fourth employe is said to be accused.

One of them it was said, had been dismissed or permitted to resign from the Lyman school at Westfield, Mass., for brutality.

Charges that the boys had been flogged and mistreated were filed with the school's board of trustees by the state department of welfare after a secret investigation begun at the request of James S. Peck, farm superintendent.

Ernest S. Fuller, secretary of the board, said actual investigation of the charges may not be started until the return of Dr. Jere D. Eggleston, president of the board, although it is planned to meet again next Thursday to recall Peck for further testimony.

Peck, it has been learned, was not an eye-witness to any of the alleged acts of brutality, but merely repeated to the welfare department stories told him by the boys.

Supt. Edward B. Boyd is not accused of administering punishment of a harsh nature, but the welfare department charges that he took no action against his subordinates when their infractions of the law were called to his attention.

Mrs. Kathleen Litz of Talcottville charged that her son, a former inmate, had been flogged and clubbed until he returned to her a hardened juvenile criminal with a professional knowledge of burglary.

"When he was at Meriden," she said, "I visited him regularly and found that he was continually mistreated, whipped with straps and even clubbed with hickory sticks from the chair factory. Fruit and candy I sent him were seldom received until the supervisors and monitors had taken the greater portion of it.

"While at the school one day a timid youngster of about 9 years came over to me, and while a supervisor was not looking, showed me large red blisters on his back and neck. They were caused by boiling water dropped down his neck."

BIGGEST LINER ON TRIAL TRIP

Camden, N. J., March 1 (AP)—The new turbo-electric liner Santa Clara, said to be the largest passenger steamship ever constructed in the United States exclusively for foreign trade, left the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company today for its trials off the Delaware capes.

Aboard the ship, which was built for the Grace Line and is expected to cut five days from the steamship service between New York and South America, were Mayor Harry A. Mackey of Philadelphia and other Philadelphia municipal officials, representatives of the republics of Chile and Peru and officers of the steamship line.

Daulton Mann, executive vice-president of the Grace Line, said the big liner would operate on a nine-day schedule from New York to Callao, Peru. Its maiden voyage is scheduled for April 19.

Freed of Blame for Blast That Killed 13

Elizabeth, N. J., March 1 (AP)—The Standard Oil Co. and employes are absolved from blame for the explosion at its Bayway refinery, Feb. 18, which resulted in the deaths of 13 persons and serious burns to scores of others, in reports submitted to Prosecutor David today by Dr. Albert E. Edel, of Newark, analytical expert, and Robert J. M. Welch, of Hillside, mechanical engineer.

The reports say the gaseous liquid that exploded was light naphtha which crept along a ditch to an open forge and was ignited.

Oil Merger Suit to Be Filed in St. Louis

Washington, March 1 (INS)—The government's suit to prevent the Standard Oil-Vacuum Oil merger probably will be filed in the federal district court in St. Louis next week.

Providence-N. Y. Air Line Inaugurated

Fire Cuts City's Street Cars to One

Kingston, Ont., March 1 (AP)—Fire today reduced Kingston's public transportation service to one street car. The damage was estimated at more than $125,000.

Now, Freddie's clothes were pressed and neat
And polished shoes were on his feet;
He had a most decided air
And wooed the better things with care.
Superior and haughty, he Simply exuded snobbery,
And with a supercilious
Grin looked upon the lowly Gus,
Who never properly behaved
And very seldom even shaved.
But though he was a careless slob
Our Gus was also quite a snob,
And when he gazed on Freddie's map
He sneered and thought the lad a sap.
Which only goes to show, my dear,
That things below are rather queer.

SOLONS DEFEAT N. H. TAX BILL, END SESSION

Concord, N. H., March 1—The special session of the Legislature was prorogued by Governor Charles W. Tobey, with the new tax program it had been convened to consider rejected and a new law enacted.

The tax equalization program developed by a recess commission after three years' study was rejected in its entirety and a recess commission of seven members created, charged with the task of studying taxation of retail stores and ordered to report to the next Legislature.

The Legislature also authorized a three-member commission, of which the State commissioner of highways is one, to study and designate a secondary highway system. This commission, too, will report to the next Legislature.

The rejection of the tax program was interpreted tonight as throwing the question of tax equalization into the constitutional convention which is scheduled to meet in this city June 4, and into the regular session which will meet next January.

CHICAGO BEGINS PAYING 40,000

Chicago, March 1 (AP)—The long-heralded civic payday lumbered into town today but it shunted its load of pay checks for city and school employes onto a siding marked "Monday."

The 4000 or so county employes fared much better because County Treasurer George F. Harding anticipated the transfer of the first of the rescue millions into the depository and went ahead with the issuance of checks for six weeks' back pay.

To insure payday for all Monday, Silas H. Strawn, head of the citizens' relief group, ordered $11,750,000 worth of tax warrants to be purchased with the rescue cash.

This amount will meet city, school board and county payrolls to date and will put cash into some of the pension funds.

AT THE DIAL

WHILE rumors commenced to gather in Catholic circles that Father Ahearn's Sunday afternoon Catholic Truth Period on WNAC would soon be heard on a national chain, the NBC was preparing the ground for a similar Sunday broadcast sponsored by dignitaries and prominent laymen of the Roman Catholic Church. The first of the series will be put on the air from the New York studios of WEAF at 6 o'clock tomorrow night. The program, combining dogmatic dialog and characteristic music, will run for 60 minutes.

LOCAL audiences who depend upon WEEI for the broadcast of the new religious hour will hear only the final half hour for the next few Sundays. A commercial program previously contracted for will prevent the local station from broadcasting the first half hour for the time being.

CARDINAL HAYES of New York will deliver the dedicatory address in the first nationwide broadcast this Sunday. Rt. Rev. Joseph Schrembs, bishop of Cleveland, is the first of the weekly speakers. Bishop Schrembs will discuss "The Meaning and the Necessity of Religion."

Priests who are noted for scholarship and eloquence and Catholic laymen of distinction will be heard from week to week in a wide range of subjects, both religious or cultural. The new series will present important music by famous Catholic singers and instrumentalists.

Music of Palestrina, Frescobaldi and Bach, with all the other classic liturgy preserved in the archives of the Church, will be made available to listeners of all faiths by means of radio. The famous Paulist Choir, under their leader, Father Finn, will be heard regularly in the Catholic Hour among other vocal and instrumental features.

FINAL PLANS for the program were approved by the administrative committee of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the general meeting of bishops held in Washington last November. Rev. William J. Finn, C. S. P., of New York is in charge of all music for the broadcast. Rev. Dr. Karl J. Alter of Washington is director of speakers.

Children in Industry

Explain, in Part, the ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED ADULTS

A SPECIAL Commission on Educational Requirements, having studied the problem for the better part of a year, recommends that Massachusetts children be compelled to attend school until they reach the age of 15 years.

The present compulsory school-age limit is 14.

Opposition to the change, as voiced before the legislative Committee on Education, came mainly from Fall River and New Bedford.

It was the opinion of one objector that "99 per cent of Massachusetts children remain at school until they are 16, anyway."

A New Bedford representative complained that the proposed legislation would "mean an expensive building program."

How could that be, IF most Massachusetts children remain at school until they are 16?

Another representative, this one from Fall River, complained that the proposed law would "keep children from going to work when their earnings are needed to keep homes together."

How many Fall River homes are "kept together" by the earnings of boys and girls of 14? How many children of that age are at work in Fall River? What is their average wage?

Some of these objectors, we suppose, offer themselves as the spokesmen of "labor."

We wonder if these gentlemen ever stop to reflect that if the labor of these children was not available there would be fewer grown-ups in the ranks of the unemployed.

Why employ ADULT labor, at ADULT wages, when you can hire children for the wage of children?

The opposition mentioned but a single industry. We don't believe they do the textile mills a service who picture them as dependent upon the labor of boys and girls from the eighth grade.

Klein of Columbus

Have the Red Sox Made a Find?

SEEMS a bit early for nice girls to be running away from private schools in groups of four, but seed catalogues are in the mail and the First Robin will be checking in at any moment.

Hundreds turn serious attention to the attractive folders put out by the "tourist third" steamship companies. Thoughts of elderly gentlemen turn to golf; of somewhat younger citizens, to Maine or New Hampshire and fishing tackle.

There are said to be bargains galore in used cars. Wise realtors are preparing advertisements calculated to bring building booms to the suburbs. Father is wondering where the "Easter money" will come from. . . . Mother and daughter KNOW.

"Vanity of vanities!" Men, there are but two questions of importance before us: Have the Sox a chance? Will the Braves "get" anywhere?

We shall have to wait only six weeks for the sound of the bat but at this time of year they seem like centuries. Meanwhile, the news appears to be that the "Rabbit" has joined McKechnie at Waterfront Park in St. Petersburg and that Heinie Wagner's pitching squad at Pensacola numbers 22. Twenty-two pitchers? Twenty-two CANDIDATES.

Our own interest is keenest in the Klein boy, from Columbus, who has joined the Wagnerians. Weighs 207, stands 6 feet 3, and he won't be 20 years of age until December. Wouldn't it be wonderful if——!

The Senators come to Fenway Park on April 15th.

Theory of Mutations

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

IN the fields of biology and physics have occured, within recent years, certain extraordinary developments which bear a striking analogy to each other. The quantum theory is at variance with the doctrine of continuity, which presupposes that physical changes take place by infinitesimal gradations.

The relativity theory is likewise opposed to the classic concept of "action at a distance," associated with the Newtonian theory of gravitation.

In the field of biology the mutations theory is at variance with the Darwinian concept of continuity. Darwin studied those striking variations familiarly known as "sports," which are now technically known as "mutations." He believed that organic evolution proceeded by minute variations, one form changing gradually into another form but slightly differing from it.

Although "sports" bore the appearance of being the origins of new species, Darwin rejected this notion, since it ran counter to his wide-ranging theory of adaptation to environment.

TOWARDS this problem Huxley appears to have been more open-minded than Darwin.

"Mr. Darwin's position might, we think, have been even stronger than it is," said Huxley, "if he had not embarrassed himself with the aphorism, 'Natura non facit saltum,' which turns up so often in his pages. We believe . . . that nature does make jumps now and then, and a recognition of the fact is of no small importance in disposing of many minor objections to the doctrine of transmutation."

Einstein objects to "action at a distance" just as Darwin objected to the notion that evolution proceeds by big jumps or sudden large changes. But de Vries has taken a step in biology similar to that of Planck in physics.

De Vries believes that nature sometimes does make leaps or "salutations." Planck believes that energy proceeds sometimes, not continuously, but discontinuously in patches or "quanta."

DE VRIES maintains that species of a new specific character originate by the taking of a single new step. Whereas he recognizes that these new steps, while of large size occasionally, are infrequent, he nevertheless believes that herein only is to be discerned the true origin of species.

This is a revolutionary conclusion, and has proved the incentive to prolong research.

The existence of "sports" is by no means a new discovery. It is believed that Aristotle was aware of their existence. The very theory of mutations was outlined by the brilliant author of "Religio Medici," Sir Thomas Browne, who actually employed the same term which de Vries used.

Following his illustration of the operation of this principle with reference to the coloring of animals and the human race, Browne says: "All which mutations, however they began, depend upon durable foundations, and such as may continue forever."

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE sub-debs have written their own book of etiquette. Members of the Junior League have edited this lusty little dish because they were sick of being educated on catalogues of the old bicycle days.

They recommend cool, calm profanity for flappettes. But never swear in front of your chaperon unless you want to lose the robust spelling, bee on points.

Be nice girls pet! Answers from Reyn Maxy and Smith colleges indicate the affirmative is unanimous.

Necking is a matter of inclination and opportunity. The turtle shall never neck with the giraffe, yea, even unto the third generation.

Be kind to the old folks. If grandma is forced to run an errand in a blizzard, always open the door for her.

Is it bad form to kiss a girl with whom you are not in love? Answers from Amherst, Harvard and the National Guard indicate the boys never met a nice girl with whom they were not in love.

Shall you take off your hat while talking to a young lady on the street? That depends. At Springfield they pull the hat down over the eyes, while at Yale they toss the hat over the goalposts.

How late should you stay out motoring with a young man? There were three sets of answers to this lamentable query. Until daylight. As long as it is dark. Until the young man is old.

In order to honor and obey the Eighteenth Amendment should we drink the Scotch before or after the soup course? From Princeton, Dartmouth and Wellesley comes the fair and square compromise to avoid all legal encroachments by pouring the Scotch in the soup.

Is it wrong for a young lady not to smoke? A young lady should smoke if she doesn't want to be considered effeminate.

These, and many more haphazard questions of pro rata etiquette are answered by the life members of the Junior League. The increase in illiteracy in America seems to be due to the fact that the younger generation is educating itself.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

GENERALLY the streams in one direction are longer and stronger than those in others, and so the mass of thin fluid jelly surges along. Its motion is so slow as to be barely perceptible; nevertheless, it creeps with an appearance of appetite and purpose. Normally (unless it is about to form spores) it avoids light and makes its way into damp, dark corners.

H. G. Wells

At its advancing fringe it puts out and withdraws lobes, like the lobes of an amoeba, and it can flow around and thus consume the matters upon which it lives.

It will turn aside from its course to flow over an attractive lump of food. In most cases only dead and decaying things are taken into this shapeless interior to be digested, but there are species which feed on living vegetable prey—on fungi, for example.

Sometimes, under adverse conditions (such as drought) the creature passes into a resting condition. Part of its substance hardens to a horny consistency in order to protect the rest and forms a number of hollow capsules, each capsule housing a mass of fluid protoplasm with 10 or 20 nuclei in it.

This mass of capsules can live, motionless, without giving a sign of life, for as long as three years. When conditions become more favorable, when the resting mass is moistened, for example, the hard cyst-walls are absorbed and the contents flow together into a single sheet again, and continue their slow, creeping life as if their long inanition had been only the sleep of a night.

So far our slime-mould has behaved more like an animal than a plant. It creeps about like an extremely sluggish animal; not being green it feeds like an animal. But its reproductive processes are definitely plant-like.

Because of this alternation between an animal mode of life and a vegetable mode of reproduction the group a one of those frontier forms that have found a place both in zoological and botanical textbooks.

The slime-mould reproduces itself by means of spores contained in fructifications that are very like those of the true moulds. These sporangia, as they are called, are of various shapes, depending on the species to which they belong.

They may be spherical or oval or cylindrical; they may rise on short stalks as knobs or cups or mushroom-like umbrellas. Usually they are extremely small and have to be examined with a low-power lens.

Besides containing spores, they may have tangled fibres in them, which uncoil like springs when they are moistened, thus jerking out the spores which are then distributed by wind.

The process by which the inchoate, creeping film of protoplasm converts itself into a number of highly specialized and elaborated sporangia is extraordinarily interesting.

It is almost as if a lump of plasticine were suddenly to pull itself together and model itself into a working clock. In those species which have stalked sporangia, for example, the protoplasmic sheet slowly heaps together in a number of places, acquiring a warty surface; the warts grow slowly upwards and a solid stalk is formed at their core by a hardening of their own substance; the viscid, living fluid climbs up this stalk as it makes it and at the top, it hardens and elaborates itself into the complicated structure that we have briefly described.

In this manner the whole plasmodium turns itself into a tiny forest of sporangia—the process taking somewhere about a day.

The creature that escapes from the hard spore-shell is of microscopic dimensions; it is like a combination of an amoeba and a flagellate, having a plastic body and a long whip-like tail. It can either creep like an amoeba or dance like a flagellate.

Moreover, it reproduces by division as the protozoa do, and so may give rise to a great number of similar "swarm cells." After a time the swarm cells show a sociable tendency; they collect together in groups, and they fuse with each other in pairs, completely and unreservedly like the spermatozoon with the ovum.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 1.—Big department stores and specialty shops are capitalizing telephone courtesy. Mumbling stereotyped greetings are entirely passe. Customers had grown tired of hearing "Jess a minute" and then dangling on the other end of the phone.

Today when a patron telephones there is a cheery answer of "R. H. Macy Co.—Good morning!" or "Cartier's—Good afternoon" as the case may be. The voice is pleasant and vibrant with interest, and as a result in a few months time there was a marked increase in orders.

Mercantile establishments discovered telephone orders were falling off and traced it to the indifference of receiving operators. Patrons were turning to neighboring shops, preferring to walk a few blocks for purchases to unsatisfactory results over phone.

One of the big stores on the avenue brought about the revolution. It engaged a staff of 16 carefully selected girls and put them through six weeks of intensive training. The chief idea of the credo was that no purchase was too small to receive attention.

A rule read: "When answering a call try to inject into the voice a quality of warm friendliness. Remember that many are giving a first call and if you succeed in making it easy for them you have won a permanent customers in nine chances out of ten."

Traffic congestion has given an added impetus to telephone sales and proprietors, recognizing this, are paying higher wages to such employees. In some instance a percentage system has been installed. And the whole experiment has been a pleasing revelation in the value of good manners.

A gentleman whose business success depends largely on ingratiating himself with a group of professional men finds himself in a dilemma. And just because of an unusual streak of luck at poker. He staged a Saturday night soiree at his home, inviting the gentlemen he wished to impress with his particular brand of hospitality.

The game started off evenly enough, but soon the host started winning. Throughout the evening he recklessly raised on small pairs but could not lose. His guests, losing heavily, grew calm and a little wife-faced. Came the big pot of the evening.

The host held a ten and ace and discarded three kings. He was making a draw to what he considered an impossible chance of filling a straight flush, but he filled it. In desperation he tried to dispose of one card in the discard to draw another but was caught. And branded a cheat?

Why Does This Picture Interest Us?

Why Do We Enjoy Great Danger for OTHERS?

(Copyright, 1930)

MOVIES, NOT REAL LIFE, BUT DANGEROUS

GENIUSES that concocted a British drama of the East, decided that this picture would appeal to the crowd.

In the picture story the hero, tied to the tree, has aroused the hatred of natives, and they plan vengeance.

They offer the white man as a dainty dish to the lord of the jungle, so Mr. Kean, actor, had to be tied to a property tree, while a property tiger sniffed along the ground and the audience shivered.

It's a real man and a real TIGER, although a tame tiger. He probably had been well fed, STUFFED in fact to make sure that he would not want to eat any more. But the trainer could not be responsible for his beast.

A tiger out of temper strikes the first thing he sees. Producer and cameramen in this picture worked inside of a strong iron cage. The hero, as you see, within easy reach of the tiger, is taking his chances, as moving picture men and women often do.

The philosophical question is, "WHY do we like to see others in danger?"

Not all of us are low enough to enjoy physical sufferings of others, or base enough to enjoy seeing a man tortured or hanged.

But for most of us there is a strange sensation of satisfaction in a picture of this kind. We hope nothing will happen to the man. We hope the tiger will not forget the careful training. BUT THE PICTURE DOES INTEREST US. Probably it is because we feel that WE might stand tied to the tree, as the movie hero stands.

We feel a strange satisfaction in the fact that it is somebody else, NOT ourselves that must run the risk.

YOU have two lives.

One life goes on outside you. The things you do and have done to you make up that life.

The other life goes on inside you. The things you think and feel make up that life.

You attach a great deal of importance to your outside life. You lay all your plans for it and expend all your energy on it. You think that is your real life. You think that is where your happiness and success are made or unmade.

Elsie Robinson

You do not attach much importance to your inside life. You realize that it exists . . . you know that you are constantly talking to yourself, constantly feeling and having "day dreams," but all this secret tide of consciousness seems a trivial sort of indoor sport. And so, while you are very careful in the conduct of your outside life, you let things happen any old way inside.

You are most particular about who enters your home or office, but you do not care what enters your mind. You have order and system in your outside programme, but your thoughts and feelings are higgeldy-piggeldy . . . without purpose or plan.

If your living room or your lobby looked like the inside of your mind you would be horrified. You'd promptly rush most of the contents to the garbage can. But, since the slovenly disorder is hidden in your skull, you don't care. You think it doesn't matter.

You're wrong. It matters tremendously. That inside life is really the important life. . . . it is the only real life. . . . it is the only life over which you have any true control.

You believe you control your outside life. You don't . . . and can't. Much of that outside life was determined for you before you were even born. Thousands of alien and often hostile forces control the circumstances under which you must function. The lines, "I am master of my fate; I am the captain of my soul," were not written about the outside life. But he can be master of his inside life, and there his fate is determined.

It isn't what happens to you that counts . . . it's what happens in you. Practically the same things happen to all men, but all men do not take them in the same way.

One man will build a triumph out of adversity. Another man will build a hog-wallow. And that building is always done inside the skull, not outside.

You are what you think, what you feel. Guard and systematize your thoughts, control your emotions. From them proceed the issues of your life. If that inner life is healthy and well organized, you may be sure that your outer life will reflect that prosperity. But no power on earth can make your higgeldy-piggeldy . . . without purpose or plan.
